BFA Degree Requirements

1. Credit requirements: successful completion of 120 credits with a basic distribution of at least:

72 credits in studio art courses that carry a prefix of ADD, AND, CFD, CID, CVD, FDD, FGD, FID, FPD, FSD, GDD, IDD, ILD, PHD, SDD or SMD.

30 credits in humanities and sciences courses that carry a prefix of CTD, HCD, HDD, HHD, HLD, HPD or HSD.

Students are required to complete one designated 3-credit course in each of the following areas: history (HHD prefix), literature (HLD prefix), social sciences (HPD prefix), and science (HSD prefix), unless credit has been awarded in transfer. These courses may only be chosen from the specified core curriculum listed in this book as section "R."

All degree candidates must pass the Proficiency Examination. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

12 credits in art history courses that carry a prefix of AHD (18 credits in art history for fine arts majors). Students majoring in interior design should refer to specific courses in their departmental course listing for art history courses that apply to their major.

6 credits in either studio, general humanities and sciences, art history or special courses.

2. Students must meet the requirements of their major department. Please see the individual department sections of this book for these specific requirements.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

BFA Degree Requirements: Visual and Critical Studies

1. Credit requirements: successful completion of 120 credits with a basic distribution of at least:

60 credits in studio art courses that carry a prefix of ADD, AND, CFD, CID, CVD, FDD, FGD, FID, FPD, FSD, GDD, IDD, ILD, PHD, SDD or SMD.

24 credits in visual and critical studies (VCD and VSD courses).

18 credits in humanities and sciences courses that carry a prefix of HCD, HDD, HHD, HLD, HPD or HSD. All degree candidates must pass the Proficiency Examination. Please refer to the Visual and Critical Studies Department section of this book for information on this examination, which appears with course HCD-1010, Literature and Writing I.

18 credits in art history courses that carry a prefix of AHD.

2. Students must meet the requirements of their major department. Please see the Visual and Critical Studies Department section of this book for these specific requirements.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

MAT Degree Requirements

1. Successful completion of 36 credits, including all required courses.
2. Three semesters of residency (fall, spring and summer).
3. Successful completion of the thesis project. Documentation of all MAT thesis projects must be on file in the Art Education graduate program office to be eligible for degree conferral.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

MFA Degree Requirements

1. Successful completion of 60 credits, including all required courses. Graduate students at large (GSAL) must successfully complete all requirements as determined by their department chair, in addition to the 60 credits for the MFA degree.
2. A matriculation of two academic years. Students with credits in transfer (maximum of 15) can complete the program in three semesters instead of four.
3. Successful completion of the thesis project. Documentation of all MFA thesis projects must be on file in the appropriate graduate program office to be eligible for degree conferral.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

MPS Degree Requirements: Art Therapy

1. Successful completion of 60 credits, including all required courses. Graduate students at large (GSAL) must successfully complete all requirements as determined by their department chair, in addition to the 60 credits for the MFA or MPS degree.
2. A matriculation of two academic years. Students with credits in transfer (maximum of 15) can complete the program in three semesters instead of four.
3. Successful completion of the thesis project. Documentation of all MPS thesis projects must be on file in the Art Therapy graduate program office to be eligible for degree conferral.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

MPS Degree Requirements: Digital Photography

1. Successful completion of 33 credits, including all required courses.
2. Three semesters of residency (fall, spring and summer).
3. Successful completion of the thesis project. Documentation of all MPS thesis projects must be on file in the Digital Photography graduate program office to be eligible for degree conferral.

Note: Departmental requirements are subject to change by the department chair if the chair deems that such change is warranted.

Registration Instructions and Information

UNDERGRADUATE FRESHMEN AND TRANSFER STUDENTS

Registration for undergraduate freshmen and transfer students entering the Undergraduate Division in the 2007 fall semester will be by appointment with departmental advisor.

Please read and follow the instructions listed in your major department section in this book carefully. If you have any questions regarding these instructions, please contact the Registrar's Office at 212.592.2200 or e-mail registrar@sva.edu.

CURRENTLY ENROLLED UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS

Registration for all currently enrolled undergraduate students will take place on an in-person basis from Monday, March 26 through Friday, April 6, according to the procedures outlined below. Registration will be held in the Visual Arts Museum, 209 East 23rd Street, from 8:30am to 1:30pm, and 2:30pm to 4:30pm.

Note: Students arriving in the registration area after 1:00pm will not be admitted until 2:30pm. Students arriving after 4:00pm will not be admitted until the next day.

March 5 – March 23, 2007

Students select courses, meet with department heads or advisors as needed, and complete all registration forms.

March 26 – April 6, 2007

Registration by appointment only. Students on leave of absence will be assigned a registration time on a first-come, first-served basis. They are advised to call the Registrar's Office at 212.592.2200 and make their appointment during the following time period: Monday, March 5 through Friday, March 23.

Incomplete grades made up after February 16 will not be counted toward the completed credit total for the purpose of registration.

Note: Students with fewer than 90 credits by the close of the 2007 spring semester will not be permitted to register for the fourth-year required classes except by written permission of the department chair and the departmental advisor.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

Registration for all students in the Graduate Division will be scheduled on an individual basis, from Monday, March 26 through Friday, April 6. Please contact your departmental advisor for specifics.

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

General Information

PREPARING YOUR COURSE SCHEDULE

Summer 2007 / 2008 Semesters

Using the worksheet in the back of this book, construct your summer semester schedules from the courses you select. After you have selected your course(s), complete the summer 2007 and/or summer 2008 course selection form(s) in the back of this book. Be sure to list the course number and section letter. The completed course selection form(s) should be presented when you register.

Fall 2007 / Spring 2008 Semesters

Using the worksheet in the back of this book, construct your fall and spring semester schedules from the courses you select. Choose your courses carefully. It is a good idea to have some alternative courses selected in case your first choices are not available.

After you have selected your courses and checked that there are no time conflicts, list the fall and spring courses on the course selection form in the back of this book. Be sure to list the course number and section letter. The completed course selection form should be presented when you register.

You will receive a preprinted registration form when you register. Please verify that the information is accurate. If any of this information is incorrect, please cross it off and print the correct information next to it.

Once you have completed registration, you will receive a copy of your preliminary schedule. Please make sure that they are correct before you leave the registration area, as you will only be able to change courses for the fall semester during the course adjustment periods.

Upper-class students will be given priority in selecting electives. Undergraduate students enrolled for the spring 2007 semester may not register for foundation-year courses until the first course adjustment period, August 9 – 10, 2007.

Undergraduate Students

Students who wish to take more than 15 credits per semester must receive approval from their department advisor. Note: All credits in excess of 15 will be billed at the current per-credit rate.

Graduate Students

Students who wish to take more than 15 credits per semester (16 for MFA Art Criticism and Writing) must receive approval from their department advisor. Note: All credits in excess of 15 (in excess of 16 for MFA Art Criticism and Writing) will be billed at the current per-credit rate.

Course Adjustment Periods

Course adjustment (drop/add) periods for the fall 2007 and spring 2008 semesters will be held Thursday and Friday, August 9 and 10; and Thursday, September 6 through Tuesday, September 18, from 9:00am to 1:00pm and 2:30pm to 4:30pm in your departmental advisor's office.

Course adjustment (drop/add) periods for the spring 2008 semester will be held Wednesday, November 28 through Friday, November 30 and Wednesday, January 9 through Monday, January 21, from 9:00am to 1:00pm and 2:30pm to 4:30pm in your department advisor's office.

Students are advised to keep receipts from all registrations and drop/adds and to check them thoroughly for accuracy.

SCHEDULE AND PROCEDURES FOR ALL STUDENTS

March 5 – March 23, 2007

Students select courses, meet with department heads or advisors as needed, and complete all registration forms.

March 12 through the start of classes

Registration for the summer 2007 courses (as listed in the summer 2007 section of this book).

March 26 – April 6, 2007

Registration by appointment only. Students on leave of absence will be assigned a registration time on a first-come, first-served basis. They are advised to call the Registrar's Office at 212.592.2200 and make their appointment during the following time period: Monday, March 5 through Friday, March 23.

A late fee of $50 will be charged to all students on payment plans each month that payment is late. In addition, late payment may result in student's registration being canceled.

January 9 – 21, 2008

Course adjustment period for spring 2008 semester (department advisor's office)

May 1, 2008

Due date for summer 2008 semester foundation tuition and fees. Students who do not meet this deadline and who are not on a payment plan will be charged a late fee of $200. A late fee of $50 will be charged to students on payment plans each month that payment is late. Late payment may result in your registration being canceled.

FINANCIAL REQUIREMENTS FOR REGISTRATION

1. Students with a prior semester balance will be required to obtain a financial clearance to register from either the Office of Student Accounts or the Office of Financial Aid.
2. All students who participated in the SVA Payment Plan during the 2006-2007 academic year will automatically be renewed. There will be a financial aid advisor at registration to assist you. Students who have not used the payment plan may opt to do so at that time.
3. Students who will be relying on financial aid assistance to pay their tuition should contact the Office of Financial Aid as soon as possible.
4. Financial aid recipients of any kind, other than scholarship recipients, will be required to have filed their FAFSA no later than March 1.

FEES EFFECTIVE FOR THE SUMMER 2007 SEMESTER

Tuition for summer 2007 courses (as listed in the summer 2007 section of this book) will be charged $660 per credit, unless otherwise indicated in the course information. Students who register for these courses will not be charged the departmental fee. Note: Students enrolled in a full-time 2007 summer foundation program will be charged tuition and fees as outlined in the 2006-2007 Undergraduate and Graduate Registration Book.

FEES EFFECTIVE FOR THE 2007-2008 ACADEMIC YEAR

PLEASE NOTE

1. The School of Visual Arts reserves the right to make course changes when necessary and to withdraw a course for valid reasons, including inadequate enrollment. In any case where such an action by the College makes it necessary for you to adjust your schedule, you will not be charged any fee for the course adjustment.
2. It is each student's responsibility to meet all registration deadlines. In the event of a grave emergency, your departmental advisor must be notified so that special arrangements can be made.
3. Students are advised to keep receipts from all registrations and drop/adds and to check them thoroughly for accuracy before leaving the registration or drop/add area.
4. Be sure to keep your current address on file with the College. Inform the Registrar's Office of all address changes as soon as possible.

ANNUAL SECURITY REPORT

The Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act was signed in November 1990. The act requires higher-education institutions that participate in Title IV student assistance programs to provide information on campus crime statistics to current and prospective students.

Incidents: Since August 1, 1991, a database has been maintained in the Office of Institutional Research concerning the occurrence on campus of the incidents listed below. This report covers activity for the period January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2005.

Arson	0	0	0
Burglary (theft)	8	17	22

Violations: The increase in reported cases of both liquor law and drug law violations from 2003-2005 may be due to SVA's better understanding of reporting regulations, and may not be due to an actual increase in the number of violations. Since August 1, 1991, a database has been maintained in the Office of Institutional Research concerning the number of violations occurring on campus. This report covers activity for the period January 1, 2003 through December 31, 2005.

	Jan-Dec '03	Jan-Dec '04	Jan-Dec '05
Drug abuse violations	5	10	21
Liquor law violations	21	13	140
Weapons possessions	0	0	0

These statistics are published and distributed annually to all current students and employees, and to any applicant for enrollment or employment, upon request.

Annual Notification of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act

Known by its acronym, FERPA, this important legislation guarantees to you certain rights regarding your education records—information such as your academic transcripts, financial aid records and student accounts records.

Here are your FERPA rights:

- The right to inspect and review your educational records. You may submit a written request to the registrar that specifies the record(s) you wish to see. SVA will make arrangements for access and notify you of where to go and when to inspect your records within a reasonable time.
- The right to request the amendment of your education records to ensure that they are accurate and not in violation of your privacy or rights. To do this, simply write the SVA office responsible for the record, make clear which part you want changed, and specify what you feel is inaccurate or misleading. If SVA decides not to amend the record, the College will notify you of its decision and advise you of your right to a hearing.
- The right to file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Education concerning alleged failures of the School of Visual Arts to comply with the requirements of FERPA. The name and address of the FERPA office is:

Family Policy Compliance Office
U.S. Department of Education
400 Maryland Avenue SW
Washington, DC 20202-4605

- The right to agree to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in educational records (information that would make identity easily traceable—e.g., your Social Security number), except to the extent that FERPA authorizes disclosure without consent.

An example of disclosure without consent would be the opening of your records to College officials with legitimate educational interests. A “College official” is a person employed by the School of Visual Arts in an administrative, supervisory, academic/research/support staff position (including law enforcement unit personnel and health staff); a person or company with whom SVA has contracted (such as an attorney, auditor or collection agent); a person serving on the board of directors; or a student serving on an official committee, such as a disciplinary or grievance committee, or assisting another College official in performing his or her duties. A College official has a legitimate educational interest if the official needs to review an education record in order to fulfill his or her professional responsibility.

DIRECTORY INFORMATION

SVA may disclose certain basic “Directory Information” that is generally not considered harmful or an invasion of privacy without your consent, to outside third-party organizations. Such outside organizations include, but are not limited to, federal and state agencies offering jobs and educational benefits, potential employers, insurance agencies and financial institutions. In addition, two federal laws require SVA to provide military recruiters, upon request, with your name, addresses and telephone number, unless you have advised us that you do not want your information disclosed without prior written consent.

“Directory Information” is defined by SVA as: student name, address, telephone number, e-mail address, major field of study, enrollment status (undergraduate or graduate, full- or part-time), dates of attendance, degree(s) conferred (including dates).

The College will honor a request to withhold these items of information but cannot assume responsibility to contact a student for subsequent permission to release the information. Regardless of the effect, the College assumes no liability for honoring instructions that such information be withheld.

DISCLOSURE POLICY

The School of Visual Arts will disclose information from a student’s education records only with the written consent of the student, except:

- To school officials who have a legitimate educational interest in the records. School officials may not release any information to a third party without the written consent of the student, except as specified below.

Letters of recommendation, which are made from the recommender’s personal observation or knowledge, do not require a written release from the student who is the subject of the recommendation. However, if the student wishes the recommender to include personally identifiable information from a student’s education record (such as grades, GPA, etc.), the student must provide the school official with a signed release. The signed release is to be placed in the student’s file, which holds the education record.

- To officials of another school, upon request, in which a student seeks or intends to enroll. The School of Visual Arts will make a reasonable attempt to inform the student before the disclosure, unless the student initiated the request.

- To certain officials of the U.S. Department of Education, the comptroller general of the United States, the attorney general of the United States, and state and local educational authorities, in connection with certain state or federally supported education programs.

- To persons or organizations providing financial aid to students or determining financial aid decisions, on the condition that the information is necessary to: 1) determine eligibility for the aid; 2) determine the amount of the aid; 3) determine the conditions for the aid, or 4) enforce the terms and conditions of the aid.

- If required by a state law requiring disclosure that was adopted before November 19, 1974.

- To organizations conducting certain studies for or on behalf of the School of Visual Arts to develop, validate and administer predictive tests; to administer student aid programs; or to improve instruction.

- To accrediting organizations to carry out their functions.

- To the parent(s) or guardian(s) of an eligible student who claimed the student as a dependent on their most recent income tax return, provided the parent(s) or guardian(s) provide adequate documentation of the dependent status, in writing. Disclosure may not be made without such written documentation.

- To comply with a judicial order or a lawfully issued subpoena. The School of Visual Arts will make a reasonable attempt to inform the student before the disclosure, unless ordered not to do so by the subpoena.

- To appropriate parties in a health or safety emergency.

- To a victim of an alleged crime of violence, including a non-forcible sex offense, who requests the final results of any institutional disciplinary proceeding against the alleged perpetrator of that crime with respect to that crime.

- To parent(s) or guardian(s) regarding the student's second or subsequent violation of any federal, state or local law, or of any institutional policy or rule governing the use of alcohol or a controlled substance, if: 1) the student is under the age of 21 and unemancipated at the time of the disclosure; and 2) the institution has determined that the student committed a disciplinary violation with respect to that use or possession.

- To the parent(s) or guardian(s) regarding the student's attendance and/or academic performance.

- To Veterans Administration officials, the Department of Homeland Security, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, military recruiters, or the Internal Revenue Service, under certain conditions.

A student's consent to release information from his/her education record to a third party, when required, must be submitted in writing to the custodian of the record, or to the Registrar. Such written consent must: 1) specify the records to be released; 2) state the purpose of the disclosure; 3) identify the party or class of parties to whom disclosure may be made; and 4) be signed and dated by the student. The written request may be submitted by fax but not by e-mail.

When a student authorizes the release of information, as described above, the School of Visual Arts will notify the third party that they are not permitted to disclose the information to others without additional written consent of the student.

Names of any other student(s) involved, including a victim or witness, may not be disclosed without written consent of the other student(s).

Records of deceased students. From the date of death of a student or former student, records previously available only to that student or with the student's consent may, within the first 25 years following the student's death, be released to the following:

- The personal representative of the student's estate;
- The parents or next of kin of the student; or
- Upon the closing of the student's probate estate or two years after the student's death, if no probate estate has been opened, the student's next of kin or the caretakers of the student's residuary estate under his or her last will or will equivalent.

Following the 25th anniversary of the student's death, the records of the student may be released upon good cause shown, in the sole discretion of the school administration.

Any written statement by the student before death or in the student's last will to the contrary may supersede the above rules.

HOW TO PREVENT/CONSENT DISCLOSURE

The disclosure form, as well as all other FERPA information, is available at the Registrar's Office and online (MySVA).

The disclosure form allows you to instruct SVA to do the following:

- Prevent disclosure of directory information to members of the School of Visual Arts community except to the extent that the FERPA authorizes disclosure without consent.

- Allow disclosure of both directory information and education records to parents of nondependent students.

This form serves as your instructions to SVA regarding the handling of your information. Please sign and date each line as appropriate, indicating that you have read the preceding statements to indicate your instructions to SVA.

1. DIRECTORY INFORMATION

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), a Federal law, requires that SVA, with certain exceptions, obtain your written consent prior to the disclosure of personally identifiable information from your education records. However, SVA may disclose certain basic "Directory Information" that is generally not considered harmful or an invasion of privacy without your consent, to outside third-party organizations. Such outside organizations include, but are not limited to, federal and state agencies offering jobs and educational benefits, potential employers, insurance agencies and financial institutions. In addition, two federal laws require SVA to provide military recruiters, upon request, with your name, addresses and telephone number, unless you have advised us that you do not want your information disclosed without prior written consent.

"Directory Information" is defined by SVA as: student name, address, telephone number, e-mail address, major field of study, enrollment status (undergraduate or graduate, full- or part-time), dates of attendance, degree(s) conferred (including dates).

If you do not want your Directory Information disclosed without your consent, you may choose to opt-out by notifying SVA using this written form. Please consider very carefully the consequences of any decision by you to withhold Directory Information. If you inform the Registrar's Office not to release Directory Information, all future requests for such information from non-institutional persons or third-party organizations will be refused. SVA will honor your request to withhold Directory Information but cannot assume responsibility to contact you for subsequent permission to release it. Regardless of the effect upon you, SVA assumes no liability for honoring your instructions that information be withheld.

If you wish to change your restrictions on disclosure of Directory Information, a new form must be filed with the Registrar's Office.

I understand that, under FERPA guidelines, SVA ordinarily may disclose basic information about me as "Directory Information."

I request that SVA not release my Directory Information. I understand that upon submission of this written request, Directory Information pertaining to me cannot be released to third parties (including potential employers, insurance agencies, financial institutions, etc.) apart from my written consent. I understand that, among other things, this means no office or faculty member can release any status information or other Directory Information. Should I desire to have the information re-designated as unrestricted Directory Information, that I must notify the SVA Registrar's Office of this intent in writing, or by filing a new form with the Registrar's Office.

Advertising and Graphic Design

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

GDD-2220-A

Design Procedures

Monday through Friday, May 29 – June 15 (begins Tuesday, May 29)

Instructional hours: 9:00-12:15

Studio hours: 12:30-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Sahre

Using Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Illustrator and design layout programs such as InDesign, students will develop design processes that address various communication problems. With an emphasis on enhancing technical abilities, this course will explore both traditional and new media tools best suited for effective visual communication.

GDD-2230-A

Basic Typography Workshop

Monday through Friday, July 9 – 27

Instructional hours: 9:00-11:50

Studio hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Brainard

An intensive investigation into the use of typography as a creative visual communication tool, this course will encourage innovation and risk-taking as applied to an array of design projects. Students will work on expanding their conceptual approach to typography and discover new ways to best represent their unique vision in each assignment.

GDD-2240-A

Basic Graphic Design Workshop

Monday through Friday, June 18 – July 6

Instructional hours: 9:00-12:30

Studio hours: 12:30-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Young

Refining your conceptual thinking to develop a coherent visual vocabulary of forms is the focus of this course. In this pursuit, we will also examine various aspects of graphic communication that lead to the execution of finely honed solutions to class assignments.

ADD-3010-A

Advanced Advertising

Monday through Friday, June 4 – 22

Instructional hours: 9:00-11:50

Studio hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Metzner

This is a course that will focus on breakthrough advertising for a target audience of 15- to 30-year-olds. The course will deal with advertising art direction and copywriting. You need to work hard to reject your easy, first ideas and continue to push yourself toward something that is outrageous or even scary. My contention is that everybody needs to have some edgy work in their portfolio. Why go to the beach anyway, it's not that great. Prerequisite: Two semesters of basic advertising, or equivalent.

GDD-3010-A

Communication Graphic Design

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – July 18

Instructional hours: 9:00-11:50

Optional studio hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Mehl

With heavy emphasis on concept, this course will focus on the creative process of making original and innovative, yet traditional, print advertising. The course will also explore the many aspects of the advertising field, by learning the duties of the art director, creative director, copywriter and designer. Prerequisite: Two semesters of basic graphic design, or equivalent.

GDD-3336-A (previously GDD-3403)

Three-Dimensional Design and Illustration

Monday through Friday, June 4 – 22

Instructional hours: 9:00-11:50

Studio hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. O'Callaghan

This course will deal with design and illustration solutions to problems that involve making 3D structures. Discussions about methods and materials will include everything from fiberglass to hubcaps: whatever conveys the designer's/illustrator's ideas. There will be demonstrations of various techniques like mold-making, paper and cardboard construction and casting in plastic. Although problems will be given in class, students may bring in assignments from other courses to be completed in this one. You will produce finished pieces that may be photographed for your portfolio. Guest lecturers will include professional designers and illustrators who have successful careers based on 3D work.

GDD-3611-A (previously GDD-3527)

Designing with Typography

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – July 18

Instructional hours: 12:00-2:50

Optional studio hours: 9:00-11:50 and 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Samara

This course will concern itself with the use of typography as the basic material of communication. Typography will take the place of the image, design, and illustration or photograph to convey a message. The study of proportions, character of typefaces, and the main variables of the letterform will be explored with the use of type in posters, book jackets and newspaper and magazine page layout, stressing the importance of typography in visual communication. Prerequisite: Two semesters of basic graphic design, or equivalent.

Art History

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

AHD-1010-A

Survey of World Art I

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wooster

As an introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures, this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course as appropriate.

AHD-1015-A

Survey of World Art II

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Taylor Basker

Beginning with the art of the Renaissance and continuing into the modern world, this course will explore painting, sculpture and architecture in both Western and non-Western cultures. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts of art develop and change within different cultural contexts. Methods of visual analysis will be explored. Field trips and museum visits will augment this course as appropriate. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

AHD-1050-A

Introduction to Film History

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 24

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Sinha

Serving as an introduction to the theatrical motion picture, this course will examine its nascence along with the silent era and early sound. While American narrative film will be emphasized, examples of world cinema will also be screened. Political, cultural and aesthetic history will form a background for viewing selected films—both important works and more transitory ones—to gain an understanding of how the medium developed and its cultural impact.

AHD-2020-A

Modern Art Through Pop I

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Ginsburg

This course maps the major movements and tendencies in modern art beginning with the realism of Courbet in the 19th century and continuing through pop art in the 20th century, including impressionism, postimpressionism, symbolism, fauvism, cubism, futurism, expressionism, Dada, surrealism, abstract expressionism and pop art. The art will be discussed in terms of the individual artist's intent as well as in terms of historical events and cultural issues at the times in which they were created. Museum field trips are an important part of the course.

AHD-2025-A

Modern Art Through Pop II

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wooster

This course is a survey of art from the emergence of "modernism" through the radical transformations in established modes of art-making of the postwar period. We will begin with a consideration of impressionism as a response to the style and structure of the French Academy. A study of postimpressionism, expression-

ism, cubism, futurism and constructivism follows, culminating in a discussion of many artists' return to neoclassical styles in the late and post-World War I years. The second semester will examine Dada and surrealism and the growing impact of European art on the American scene, covering the development of abstract expressionism and pop art. Close attention will be paid to the social, political and economic contexts in which artistic styles and forms have materialized, grown or changed from the mid-19th century to the present.

AHD-2066-A

You Can See the Whole World Without Ever Leaving New York City

Tuesday through Thursday; June 5 – June 28

Hours: 10:00-1:45

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wooster

New York City is a treasure trove of hidden temples, pyramids, ziggurats, palaces, Gothic cathedrals, Roman baths, as well as some of the best examples of modern architecture. This course will combine the history of architecture with field trips to significant buildings. Half of the class sessions will meet outdoors. By the end of the class, you will have been on an "around the world" tour without ever leaving New York City. The streets of New York will never look the same.

AHD-2070-A

International Cinema

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Sinha

Designed to facilitate an understanding of classic and contemporary international cinema, this course is dedicated to the study of films that have adopted a different aesthetic framework from Hollywood. We will discuss themes, ideologies, forms, the impact of history—both political and social—and the background stories of the filmmakers. Screenings will be drawn from the cinema of Mira Nair (India), Jean-Luc Godard (France), Andrei Tarkovsky (Russia), Federico Fellini (Italy), Carl Dreyer (Denmark), Luis Buñuel (Spain/Mexico) and Peter Weir (Australia), among others.

AHD-2233-A

Tribal Art: The Mythic Eye

Monday through Wednesday; June 18 – July 23

Hours: 11:00-1:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Arctander

A survey of the art created within the specific special context of traditional cultures. The art of traditional cultures will be examined in terms of formal visual and material elements and aesthetic quality within Western understanding as well as the meanings and implications of art within its own culture. Areas of investigation will include tribes of Africa, Oceania and the Native American Indian. Actual art objects will be presented as well as music and recent videos of ritual, ceremony, dance and interviews with tribal people.

AHD-2633-A

Graphic Imaging: A History

Monday through Wednesday; June 18 – July 23

Hours: 2:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Arctander

This is a course about concepts and ideas in graphic art. Such diverse areas as medieval illumination and modern animation, drawing and photography, illustration and collage will be presented in context. Related literature and music as well as film and videos will be presented at each session.

AHD-2641-A

Surrealism and Film

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

The terrors of World War I produced a flight from supposed "reason" to the world of dreams and fantasies. All of the visual arts—painting, sculpture, photography, and especially cinema—offered both shelter from the present and an arena for new combat. One of the freedoms offered by filmmaking is creating alternative worlds of the imagination that are not strictly realistic. This course will cover a range of works in all media, from French pioneer Georges Méliès to such modern masters as Jean Cocteau, Tim Burton and David Lynch. Historical practitioners such as Max Ernst, Salvadore Dalí and Hans Bellmer will also be investigated. The impact of surrealism, the exploration of inner life and the dream world, changed everything that came after. The debates as to its meaning and purpose continue even today.

AHD-2733-A

Expressionism in Films

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Expressionism, briefly defined, is art in an agitated, anxious mode that distorts the normal appearance of things by presenting them through a perturbed consciousness. It is an art of exaggeration and intense subjectivity; giving primacy to the disquieted self and characteristically portrays the world as a disrupted, menacing place. This course will examine manifestations of expressionism and its influence in the art of film. The first flourishing of expressionism in films took place in Weimar Germany, and we will study several notable instances: Dr. Caligari, Fritz Lang, Murnau. We will consider how expressionism took root when transplanted to American films: in the American work of German filmmakers, in the gangster films, the horror film, film noir, etc. We will look into the work of such expressionist-influenced filmmakers as Alfred Hitchcock, Orson Welles, Ingmar Bergman, the new Germans. We will also consider expressionism in the broader context of other art forms and of contemporary life.

AHD-2753-A

New York No Wave Film

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Murison

Between the years 1977 and 1987, New York underground film flourished in the East Village with new cinema filmmakers such as Jim Jarmusch, Charlie Ahearn, Beth B and Richard Kern, among others. Most of the films shot with Super 8 and distributed on video have been close to lost in academic film history, yet survive as a testament to the crucial development of what we now term as postmodern art. One distinguishing feature of these films is the collaboration and acting of artists and musicians, including Jean-Michel Basquiat, Deborah Harry, Fab Five Freddy, Duncan Hannah, Karen Finley, John Lurie, Lydia Lunch and David Wojnarowicz. This course will screen and discuss the historical background of each film through the filters of the 1980s art world, the club scene and punk rock music.

AHD-3002-A

The Social History of Photography

Monday through Thursday, June 4 – 20

Hours: 9:00-12:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Stephens

This course will be a thematic survey of photography from its invention to the present day. Students will study the range and influence of photographic imagery—both “high” and “low” in photojournalism, fashion and advertising art. Classes are designed to emphasize the ways in which photographs have changed our perceptions of ourselves, our society and the world in which we live.

AHD-3003-A

The Aesthetic History of Photography

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M.J. Marks

This course will be a chronological survey of art photography with an emphasis on the relationship between photography and other visual art forms. Included will be a survey of the history of criticism, and of the various ways in which artists have negotiated their definition of photographic aesthetics.

HDD-3200-A

Ideas in Art: 1960 to Present

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

The history of the foregrounding of “idea” or “content” in the visual arts is the history of the past 50 years, after the domination of abstract expressionism. It is also the history of the School of Visual Arts, where the 1966 exhibition “Working Papers and Other Visible Things on Paper Not Necessarily Meant to be Viewed as Art” was one of the breakthrough exhibitions for conceptual art. This course follows the decline of “pure” painting and sculpture and the rise of works that engage Walter Benjamin’s essay “Work of Art in the Age of Mechanical Reproduction”—works by artists who were the heirs of Duchamp rather than Picasso. This period may be thought of as a rope whose strands are new, or hybrid: media/pop culture and spectacle/political engagement. It marked the shift from dominant regional styles (e.g., the New York School) to globalism and the importance of festival art. Discussion topics: color field and the last gasp of Greenberg; the influence of Marcel Duchamp; Jasper Johns, Rauschenberg and pop; conceptualism; process art; installation art; appropriation and commodity fetishism; sex and gender in art; the return to figuration and painting as medium; the body; exhibitions and globalism; new technologies and media.

AHD-3917-A

Art Deco

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 10

Hours: 2:30-6:30

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wooster

Explore this exciting 20th-century movement from its reaction to the organic forms of Art Nouveau to streamlined modern and the 1939 World’s Fair. Major artists and designers including Ruhlmann, Sue et Mare, Eileen Grey, Charlotte Perriand, Donald, Deskey, Raymond Loewy, among others, as well as architects and filmmakers will be studied. Art Deco’s connections to other 20th-century movements and cultural events including Cubism, the Ballet Russe, the Bauhaus, Josephine Baker and Le Jazz Hot will be examined. Field trips to New York City Art Deco sites including the Empire State Building, the Chrysler Building, Rockefeller Center, Radio City Music Hall, the Waldorf Astoria and others will be a featured part of the course.

AHD-3992-A

Art and Popular Culture

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

This course will explore the interrelationships of high and popular art in the 20th century. Through a variety of approaches, we will discuss formal and socio-political ramifications of the reciprocal relationship of popular and fine arts. We will examine the relationships of different aspects of popular production—crafts, comics, films, music, performances—and high art in the work of Kandinsky and the Blue Rider group; the Soviet avant-garde and the futurists; the Mexican muralists; the “English” independent group; pop artists; ironic postmodernists and the MTV generation. Readings will include manifestos, such as Eisenstein’s “A Montage of Popular Attractions,” Italian futurist manifestos, Clement Greenberg’s “Avant-Garde and Kitsch,” as well as various comic and humor publications.

SMD-1020-A

Foundations of Visual Computing

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 9:00-11:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Newcomb

Serving as an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists, this course will cover basic skills for operating and maintaining a computer, as well as the techniques to create collages and layered images and the tools required to display work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

SDD-1050-A

Narrative Workshop

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Levin

This course will examine the history of storytelling and its fundamental elements, including story and character development, timing and narrative structure. Students will tell and write their own stories, polish them in class and discuss how they might bring their stories to life through illustrated storyboards.

SMD-1250-A

Digital Video Tools and Techniques

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 9:00-11:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Meyers

Students will be introduced to the essentials of video and digital video technologies, with a concentration on the basics of video production, nonlinear editing and digital postproduction. Projects will take students from still images to composited animations to final edited productions with sound.

SMD-2154-A

Motion Graphics with Adobe After Effects

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 9:00-11:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Reinfeld

Using combinations of still and video images, students will learn the fundamentals of keyframing, applying effects over time, field and frame rendering, creating mattes and rotoscoping. Emphasis will be placed on editing techniques, art direction, aesthetics and the overall style of professional motion graphics productions. An introduction to blue-screen techniques, compositing and layered animated images will also be covered. Asset management and basic editing disciplines will be reinforced through assigned projects. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent.

SMD-2246-A

Computer Animation with Alias Maya

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 9:00-11:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Edwards

This course will introduce students to critical thinking in 3D and the techniques required to produce a creative project using Alias Maya. Students will be guided through basic and intermediate levels of working with Maya. Students will learn how to apply their new skills into a unique visual language with which to communicate ideas, concepts and stories. The course will begin with a series of short, pre-scripted projects that utilize many of the features in Maya. Students will learn how to put these features to practical use in creating a 3D model and animation. Prerequisite: Experience with the Windows operating system.

SDD-4080-A

Thesis

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 10 students

This course will lead the student through the production process of creating a thesis project that is original and of professional quality. Weekly critiques and class discussions will allow students to progressively develop and produce their thesis projects. The creative and technical skills developed over the first three years are now applied, as students complete their thesis projects. Note: Open to senior BFA Computer Art majors only.

ESL/Studio Program Summer Workshop

This is an eight-week immersion into the English language through a range of academic and creative instructional activities, and also serves as an introduction to New York's vibrant art scene. The studio segment includes courses in drawing and digital photography, and students can earn six (6) undergraduate studio credits with successful completion of these classes.

Monday through Friday; June 25 – August 17

Instructor: C Donnelly

Through guided exercises in acting and improvisation, students will work on developing their pronunciation, fluency and confidence in speaking English.

ESD-0015-A

Introduction to the Internet-Based (iBT) TOEFL

Wednesday 2:00-5:00

No credit

Instructor: C Donnelly

The new Test of English as a Foreign language (TOEFL) integrates listening, reading, speaking, note taking and essay writing. This course will introduce students to the iBT TOEFL and how it applies to academic skills they will need in their subsequent college studies.

ESD-0020-A

Writing and Speaking About Art

Tuesday 9:00-1:00

No credit

Instructor: D. Maier

Through reading and research assignments, students will build the vocabulary to discuss and analyze art, including their own. We will also cover how to present artwork and write critiques.

ESD-0025-A

The Art of New York

Tuesday 2:00-5:00

No credit

Instructor: D. Maier

This course will introduce students to New York City's exciting art scene through field trips to museums and galleries. Lectures will be given at each exhibition and students will complete a written assignment in the museum or gallery.

ESD-0030-A

Topics in Written Grammar

Monday 9:00-1:00

No credit

Instructor: E. Blacksberg

In a seminar format, students will focus on writing paragraphs and short essays to improve grammar and usage, as well as sentence structure.

ESD-0035-A

Developing Perspectives and the Essay

Thursday 9:00-5:00

No credit

Instructor: J. Ostrega

Students will explore a different topic each week through means of reading, discussion and sociodrama in order to cultivate new perspectives, leading to a fully developed essay.

STUDIO ART COURSES

FDD-1005-A

Drawing with Mixed Media

Wednesday 9:00-1:00

3 studio credits

Instructor: A. Chang

This course will teach students to discard old habits and fears about drawing and discover the connections among the eyes, the brain and the heart. A variety of media will be introduced to provide new perspectives and techniques in drawing. There will be weekly drawing assignments. The course will include two all-day Saturday field trips to draw on location.

PHD-1005-A

New York City Through Digital Photography

Friday 9:00-3:00

3 studio credits

Instructor: E. McKenna

Using digital photography to see and to explore New York City, students will visit various sites and neighborhoods and work on specific photographic assignments. Each student will produce a book that documents these experiences and that also represents the student's artistic vision. Presentation of work and critiques, will be included.

AND-1020-A

Introduction to Animation

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – June 26

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Abrahams

The basic concepts of storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes, timing, in-betweening, weight, squash-and-stretch, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns will be covered in this course. Most importantly, this course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character mode sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in every class.

CFD-1020-A

Introduction to Production

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Petrosino

Designed as an introduction to the art of filmmaking, this course will emphasize the essential differences between film and other visual art forms through screenings of various film genres to illustrate style and process. Working with 16mm Bolex, 16mm ARRI-S and DV cameras, as well as written material from storytelling courses, students will break down projects and work on storyboards. We will discuss and practice directing and cinematography techniques and explore the director/actor relationship. Students will present a series of selected scenes—preproduction through postproduction—for critique.

CFD-1040-A

Storytelling

Tuesday through Thursday; June 5 – July 10

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Girion

An introduction to visual thinking and writing for film, this course will explore the use of images, words, and sense-of-place in the creation of characters and events that give life to a script. When reading and discussing their story assignments in class, students will discover the variety of styles and tones—using humor, action, fantasy and reality—available in communicating to an audience.

CFD-1090-A

Introduction to Editing

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 1:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Topiary

The grammar and aesthetics of editing in the visual storytelling process is the focus of this course. The first semester will examine the theory and process of editing through lectures, applications and screenings. Students will work on the Apple Final Cut Pro digital editing platform to edit assignments and exercises. Areas of exploration will include editorial and narrative structure, rhythm and pace. The second semester underscores scene study and how to maximize the actor's performance.

CFD-2010-A

Production Workshop

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – June 26

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Hillier

Using 16mm and digital cameras, students will build on the techniques previously introduced to work on more complex projects. Through lectures, technical demonstrations and assignments, participants will work in production teams, each student taking responsibility for a particular task. Special lenses, stocks, filters, lights, as well as support equipment will be introduced; projects will be assigned and produced.

CFD-2050-A

Sound Production for Film and Video

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 24

Hours: 9:00-11:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Rogers

This is a comprehensive course that analyzes the role of sound techniques in film and video—music, effects, voice-overs, sync sound, etc. Instruction in the composing of sound for film will be given and students will compose sound for theoretical situations. Readings that cover the principles of sound theory and application will be assigned. Visiting specialists will give practical instruction with recording machines, microphones and all mechanical elements used by sound recordists.

AND-2070-A

Storyboarding for Animation

Monday, Thursday; June 4 – July 23

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Poynter

The story is one of the most important aspects of a film. This is a course about creating storyboards for animated films. Students will learn continuity, basic story structure and character delineation. In storyboard form, plots, situations and conflicts are developed. The entire process, from rough sketches to a finished presentation, will be covered. Also included are storyboards for television spots and cartoon shorts.

CFD-2140-A

Screenwriting

Tuesday through Thursday, June 5 – July 10

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Girion

This course is designed to give a comprehensive and practical introduction to the art of telling a story cinematically. Through a series of writing assignments and readings, students will learn the process of developing characters and plots, as well as economic use of dialogue, story structure and creating drama. Occasional readings by professional actors will provide an opportunity for students to gain insight into their work.

CFD-3136-A

Production Workshop for Directors

Monday through Friday, June 4 – June 29

Hours: 10:00-4:00

Summer semester: 4 credits

Instructors: I. Sunara, R. Toporoff, L. Vance

Under the guidance of professionals, students will plan, cast and direct a three-to-five minute scene, using actors from the New York film community. Scenes will be assigned by the instructor and shot with HD digital technology, then transferred to AVID for editing. The goal of this workshop is to give students an understanding and the basic skills to work with actors, film crews, and a postproduction team.

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES PROGRAM

IPD-3403-A

Cinema in Toulouse

June 11 – 29

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Lacoste

Tuition: $3,500 (includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and dormitory accommodations).

This unique three-week directing program in Toulouse, located in the southwest of France on the banks of the Garonne River, offers a journey of exploration and discovery into the craft of directing. Students will write a short scene and then direct the scene in Toulouse, and work with trained actors at various locations throughout this beautiful medieval city. Working with a distinguished faculty and students at the prestigious Ecole Supérieure d'Audio Visuel, students will be immersed into one of the most important areas of filmmaking, the actor-director relationship. Mentored individually by a French director, students will learn directing techniques, the importance of rehearsal, communicating effectively with actors and collaboration on a production set. Each student will also work in various production crew positions during the program. This program is a rare opportunity to direct overseas.

For further information contact Salvatore Petrosino, in-residence coordinator, at 212.592.2194; fax: 212.592.2115; e-mail: spetrosino@sva.edu.

Fine Arts

FDD-2018-A

Drawing the Figure

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Van Dalen

This course will emphasize the primary facets of drawing the figure that have given it an enduring and prominent place in art. Drawing and representing the figure will lead to a better understanding of line, gesture, proportion, volume and composition. Observation, concept, character and materials will be discussed in relation to portraying the human figure. Classical traditions as well as contemporary examples of figure drawing will be explored. All drawing media are welcome, including ink and watercolor.

FPD-2102-A

Painting Workshop

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 3:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Ausby

This course is designed to further the development of students who are beginning a personalized approach to painting. Students will be encouraged and assisted in the development of that approach. Through discussion and criticism, special emphasis will be placed on what is unique to each student's work.

FSD-2258-A

Contemporary and Classical Carving

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: B. Segal

Create lightweight, portable sculptures and site-specific public art for architecture and exhibition. We will carve industrial foam and cover it with Aqua Resin and patina overlays for indoor and outdoor use. These models could be used for fabrication in permanent materials such as aluminum, stainless steel and bronze. This course will also introduce traditional stone-carving techniques. Stone carving instruction will include the use of hand and pneumatic electric tools as well as inlay, lamination, construction and pointing (duplicating a sculpture). Students will be encouraged to locate sites where public art could be installed, and to create proposals. We will discuss theory and technique, from Michelangelo and Rodin to Heizer and Burton to Murakami and Gehry. Field trips will range from visiting a site-specific public art-and-architecture installation to visiting a carving studio.

FID-2934-A

Fine Arts Intensive Media Workshop

Monday through Thursday, May 29 – June 14 (begins Tuesday, May 29)

Hours: 9:00-12:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: J. Tekippe

This three-week intensive course combines technical instruction with hands-on formal experimentation in the interest of empowering participants to incorporate video and emerging media technologies into their art practices. We will discuss techniques for shooting, editing and compositing digital video, working with HD video formats, digital animation, authoring DVD's and interactivity programming, with an emphasis on finding innovative ways to incorporate these technologies into traditional fine arts, installation and performance-based practice. A working knowledge of the Macintosh OS X operating system and a strong interest in working digitally are assumed.

FID-2954-AIntroduction to Video Art

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 1:00-3:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: A. Morgana

This course is an introduction to the technical and aesthetic aspects of video as an art form. Students will complete several short projects exploring the use of video equipment and techniques, including concept development, storyboarding, visual composition, staging, lighting, camera work, editing, mixing sound tracks and digital effects. The creative and aesthetic issues involved in working in a time-based, expressive medium will be emphasized, through the in-class discussion of examples of contemporary video work and individual and group critiques of student projects. Students will also become familiar with some of the debates regarding video art.

FGD-2433-APrintmaking: Silkscreen

Monday June 4 – July 23

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: G. Prande

Silkscreen, one of the most versatile and widely used methods of printmaking, will be explored through demonstrations and self-initiated projects. Painters as well as photographers will find a new way of expressing their ideas through screen printing. Images can be made using hand-drawn separations, photographic film, digital separations and photocopied images. Printing on canvas, T-shirts, wood, metal and glass, as well as large-scale works, are all possible with silkscreen. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop. Water-based silkscreen ink is used in class allowing for soap-and-water cleanup. Note: Printshop facilities are available outside of class hours.

FGD-2433-BPrintmaking: Silkscreen

Tuesday June 5 – July 24

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: C. Yoder

See FGD-2433-A for course description.

FGD-2446-APrintmaking: Monoprint, Woodcut, Linoleum

Wednesday June 6 – August 1

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Rapone

This course will introduce the printmaking processes of woodcut, linocut, monoprint and collagraph to create various types of prints. All processes will be demonstrated and applied in self-directed projects. The relief print is the oldest method of printmaking; its directness and ease of color application makes it particularly appealing to artists of all fields. In woodcut, the non-image areas of the print are carved away and color is applied to the high surfaces of the block using rollers or brushes. Color can also be rubbed in below the surface to create depths and color mixing. Paper is then pressed against the inked surface of the block or plate to transfer the color image from the block. The monoprint is unique within printmaking because every print is different. Images are painted or drawn directly onto blank plates and then transferred to paper with a printing press, resulting in large, direct, painterly prints. The use of multiple printing, chine collé and color overlays will also be explored.

FDD-3033-ADrawing Workshop

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Richer

Designed in response to the needs of artists who want to create finished paintings, sculptures and prints, this course will focus on the relationship between finished projects and drawing preparation. Too often, artists start to create a piece or body of work only to find that they have not fully prepared their projects before they begin. By using drawing as an analytical tool, a great deal of the frustration in the finished media can be avoided. Students will connect future projects to past accomplishments by using drawing as a bridge to a portfolio of ideas. Both traditional and innovative media will be employed to clarify artistic direction.

FSD-3034-ASculpture Lab: Make It Now

Monday, Wednesday, Friday; June 25 – August 23

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $200

Instructor: B. Crockett

Creative leaps and bounds are often made during periods of rigorous production and experimentation. This five-week program will focus on an ever-broadening approach to contemporary sculpture. This multidisciplinary lab (installation, video, kinetics, photography, public art, architecture and design) will offer extra attention to the use of traditional sculptural materials in unconventional ways. With an emphasis on active research and development of each project, students will be challenged to streamline their conceptual and formal languages. The course consists of studio time, technical demonstrations and support, individual and group critiques, weekly lectures and field trips.

FPD-3111-APainting Workshop

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 12:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Brickhouse

In this course, students will define their own priorities in paint. The emphasis will be on creating a dialogue within each student's body of work while continuing to explore new artistic territory. Studio time is stressed: how best to further identify and realize one's goals, how to organize one's efforts, how to work both intellectually and physically in the studio, and how to communicate one's intentions. Individual instruction will be given with the encouragement of an exchange between fellow students. We will explore various media to further inform and advance painting efforts. Students will be asked to use New York's vast cultural resources on a regular basis. The understanding of our visual culture, the evolution of our creative working process and the ability to communicate our ideas are the means toward future study. Models will be available as required.

FGD-3698-APrintmaking: Silkscreen and the Artists' Book

Wednesday June 6 – August 1

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $200

Instructor: D. Sandlin

Using silkscreen, students will explore various ways to present prints as sequential images—artists' books, themed portfolios and comics, even fanzines. The course will cover the process from concept to finished and bound multiples. Students will learn methods of making color separations for multicolor prints using traditional hand-drawn and modern photographic techniques. Bookbinding techniques will be demonstrated, including Japanese bookbinding, accordion folding and signature binding. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

SUMMER FINE ARTS RESIDENCIES

FPD-4993

Painting/Mixed Media

Summer semester: 4 credits per session

$1,875 per session; $3,500 for both sessions

Now in its third decade, this internationally renowned program offers serious artists an opportunity to work intensively in a private studio and receive individual critiques from faculty, selected for their diversity and experience.

Each participant has exclusive use of a studio (approximately 10x12'), throughout the program. Located in SVA's Chelsea building, the studios offer privacy, while supporting an environment that encourages experimentation and the development of new ideas and directions, within a community of ambitious, hardworking artists. Faculty will visit the studios Mondays through Thursdays. Exposure to the New York art world complements the on-site residency program.

Equally important to the faculty critiques are the special lectures, scheduled approximately once a week. Given by guest artists, critics and gallery directors, these talks are designed to give further insight into the realities of the working artist. Gallery tours are also included. Participants have access to the studios daily from 8:00am to 11:00pm. Overnight stays are allowed with entry to the building prior to 11:00pm. The program culminates in an open studio exhibition, which enables participants to present their work to the public.

Residency faculty and guest lecturers have included Jose Alvarez, Pedro Barbeito, Amy Cutler, Steve DeFrank, Peter Hristoff, Tobi Kahn, Tim Litzmann, Steve Mumford, Amy Myers, Bruce Pearson, Danica Phelps, Jerry Saltz and Simon Watson.

Note: A portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

FSD-4993

Sculpture, Installation and New Media Art

Summer semester: 4 credits per session

$1,875 per session; $3,500 for both sessions

Founded on the success of the Painting/Mixed Media residency, the Sculpture, Installation and New Media Art residency has been created with the same goals in mind—to give artists an opportunity to experiment with ideas in an environment that is conducive to creative exploration and supportive of their pursuits. This residency is intended for serious artists at intermediate and advanced levels.

Located in the heart of New York City, participants have their own studio space (approximately 10x12') in the SVA Sculpture Center, where they meet with faculty for individual critiques Monday through Thursday. Faculty members are selected for their diverse perspectives and professional experience. Sculpture Center staff technicians give demonstrations on materials and tools and are available for technical assistance.

Participants from the various residency programs come together for gallery walks and lectures. Guest lecturers include artists, critics and gallery directors. The critiques and lectures complement the studio work to form an intensive program of hard work, learning and personal development. The program culminates in an open studio exhibition, which enables participants to present their work to the public.

Studio hours are Monday through Friday, 8:00am to 10:00pm; Saturday 10:00am to 6:00pm; Sunday 12:00 noon to 6:00pm. Facilities allow for work with wood, metal ceramics, digital video editing, stone carving and plaster, as well as installation space and public window display. Larger projects can be developed on the expansive main floor. The program's combination of faculty, lectures, facilities and site visits make this a unique opportunity for artists interested in working in sculpture and installation.

Residency faculty and lecturers have included Jose Alvarez, Paul Amenta, Tara Donovan, Blaine De St. Croix, Steve DeFrank, Frank Gillette, Kate Gilmore, Alois Kronschläger, Donald Lipski, Mick O'Shea, Jerry Saltz and Simon Watson.

Note: A portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Public Art

June 11 – July 20

Summer semester: 4 credits; $1,875

This comprehensive seminar series brings together some of New York City's renowned artists, architects, public administrators and critics for an intensive interactive experience. This program offers participants an opportunity to experiment with ideas in an environment that is conducive to creative exploration and supportive of logistical issues involved in public art pursuits.

The program is centered on a core seminar in public sculpture and installation art, and is supplemented by individual critiques with faculty, as well as lectures and walking tours.

The heart of this program is the interaction with experts in the field of public art, and the completion of a proposal for a public art project. Lectures and walking tours will expose participants to a variety of considerations involved in the conception and fabrication of these artworks, including site, proposals, engineering, budgeting, installation and presentation. Students will be encouraged to locate potential installation sites and draft proposals for site-specific works. In addition, participants in the various residencies come together for gallery walks and lectures. Guest lecturers include artists, critics, gallery directors and public art administrators.

The program will be housed in SVA's Interior Design Department, giving artists access to a digitally equipped lab with AutoCAD for computer-aided design and drafting. Participants also have access to the Sculpture Center, where staff technicians give advice and demonstrations on materials and tools and are available for technical assistance. Facilities allow for work with wood, metal, ceramics, stone carving, plaster, digital video editing as well as installation space and public window display. The program's unique combination of faculty, lectures, facilities and visits to public art sites make this a unique opportunity for artists interested in creating public and site-specific artworks.

The program's combination of faculty, lectures, facilities and visits to public art sites makes this a unique opportunity for artists interested in creating public and site-specific artworks.

Residency faculty and guest lecturers have included Andrew Ginzel, Anita Glesta, Kendal Henry, Barry Holden, Anne Pasternak, Barbara Segal, Meryl Taradash and Nina Yankowitz.

Note: A portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

FGD-4993

Printmaking and Book Arts

Summer semester: 4 credits per session

$1,875 per session; $3,500 for both sessions

Lab fee: $125 per session; $200 for both sessions

In its inaugural year, this residency program will provide participants with access to SVA's newly expanded printmaking facility and offer them an environment in which to delve deeper into their practice. Experienced artists will develop their work in a supportive and dynamic setting with the guidance of some of New York City's experts in printmaking and book arts. Each participant has exclusive use of a studio space (approximately 8x10') providing the privacy in which to develop ideas, prepare materials for projects and meet with faculty. Twenty-four hour access to the studio is available.

Participants from the various residency programs come together for gallery walks and lectures. Guest lecturers include artists, critics and gallery directors. The critiques and lectures complement the studio work to form an intensive program of hard work, learning and personal development. The program culminates in an open studio exhibition which enables participants to present their work to the public.

The printmaking workshop area includes two silkscreen rooms with clean-up areas, a lithography/letterpress room, an etching room with vented acid booth, a plate-making room and digital output facilities. Basic materials are provided; staff technicians are available for assistance. Hours for the printmaking facilities are Monday through Friday, 9:00am to 10:00pm; Saturday, 9:00am to 5:00pm.

Note: A portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

SUMMER INSTITUTE IN THE BERKSHIRES

Join members of SVA's distinguished faculty at the Darrow School in New Lebanon, NY, for exciting summer programs in painting, sculpture, woodworking and ceramics. Nestled amongst the Shaker buildings of Mount Lebanon, the Joline Arts Center provides an ideal environment in which to create and exhibit artwork. The Arts Center, a 12,000-square-foot facility with panoramic views of the Lebanon Valley, offers spacious studios, workrooms and classrooms that support and inspire creativity. Designed to foster experimentation in art-making, these programs offer unique opportunities for developing a strong body of work.

In our painting courses, students can focus on their areas of interest, whether painting from life or working on non-representational pieces. Media varies from traditional oils and acrylic to ink and collage, and our faculty will demonstrate techniques to help you refine basic drawing and painting skills and hone your observational abilities. In our sculpture courses, we offer students the chance to experiment in wood, ceramics and found objects, and explore both modern and traditional techniques. In all of our courses, the development of a personal artistic style is encouraged.

This studio-based program focuses on providing a forum for discussion and self-expression, as well as guidance and support to advance your conceptual and technical skills. Gallery and museum tours, and guest lectures complement the course work. Participants have 24-hour access to the studios, allowing for additional time outside of class hours to work on multiple projects.

Our Summer Institute offers a stimulating environment for artists to create, discuss and develop their artwork while enjoying all that makes the Berkshires a summer haven for the arts.

Housing and meals are available on the Darrow School campus. Dormitories are historic Shaker buildings; single- and double-occupancy rooms are available and linen service is provided. Parking is available free of charge. Costs for housing and a per person meal plan are:

Single occupancy: $600 per week
Double occupancy: $525 per week

FDD-3973-A Intermediate to Advanced Drawing

Monday through Friday, July 9 – 13

Hours: 9:00-1:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Instructor: J. Shapiro

Designed to develop individual expression through drawing, students will be encouraged to work with a range of two-dimensional media and to approach drawing in its broadest interpretation. Students will focus on a subject of their choice to be refined through independent work and complementary exercises. Extended pieces and a number of smaller studies will allow for work in a variety of materials, such as pencil, charcoal, ink, watercolor, pastel, collage and mixed media. Supports include cardboard, cloth, wood and different types of papers. The possibilities inherent in different materials and how they relate to content will be explored. There will be individual and group critiques.

FPD-3973-A Figure in the Landscape

Monday through Friday, July 16 – 20

Hours: 12:00-6:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Model fee: $30

Instructor: J. Parks

Using the glorious landscape and surroundings of a Shaker village as inspiration, this course invites you to pursue the theme of the figure in the landscape. We will paint outdoors as much as possible. Energetic and frequent feedback will be given throughout intense days of painting. Instruction in landscape and figure painting techniques, including practical information on color structure, palette organization, underpainting methods, brushing and finishing will be given. The work of numerous artists will be introduced to consider the ideas and concepts that supported and inspired them. Beyond technical considerations, participants will be challenged to develop their creative and imaginative faculties in order to generate a vision that is uniquely their own. The course will include a visit to the instructor's studio in Dutchess County, some informal group discussion and a great deal of fun. Models will be available.

FPD-3973-B Painting and Content

Monday through Friday, July 16 – 20

Hours: 9:00-1:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Instructor: N. Chunn

This course will focus on seeking answers to the questions: What to paint and where to get ideas? Through extensive personal instruction, we will explore the possibilities; in group critiques, students can share their creative processes and ideas. Technical instruction in acrylics, oils, watercolors and other mediums will be given and experimentation emphasized. The goal is to provide each student with a comfort zone from which his or her creative voice can be realized. The course is open to students at all levels.

FPD-3973-C Mixed Media on Canvas

Monday through Friday, July 23 – 27

Hours: 9:00-1:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Instructor: R. Juarez

In this course, students will create artworks on canvas (16x40" or smaller) with water-based paints and mixed media. Images and materials from magazines, seed catalogs, journals and other sources will be used to create finished small-scale compositions as studies that can be applied to large-format paintings or public artworks. Instruction will be given on stretching and priming canvas, as well as collage techniques using rice paper. Students will be guided in the development of their projects and encouraged to acquire an independent understanding of their artistic vision. Individual and group critiques, as well as a visit to the instructor's studio are included.

FPD-3973-D Watercolor Landscape Painting

Monday through Friday, July 23 – 27

Hours: 10:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Instructor: K. Millington

The landscape of the Lebanon Valley and unique Shaker buildings offer the ideal environment for this course. We will focus on the process of painting in plein air to allow students to actively investigate issues such as three grounds, distance, color, temperature and atmospheric perspective. The qualities of the watercolor medium, wet-on-wet, washes and dry brush will also be explored. Students will hone their observation skills and strengthen their knowledge of the medium.

FSD-3973-A Contemporary Art and Ceramics

Monday through Friday, July 16 – 20

Hours: 10:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Lab fee: $30

Instructor: N. Tournon

Participants will produce contemporary sculptures using an ancient and "traditional" craft. While mold-making and cast ceramics will be the primary applications, any technique appropriate to a chosen project may be used. You will be encouraged to develop new approaches to work, expanding both your technical proficiency and conceptual range.

FSD-3973-B Figurative Sculpture

Monday through Friday, July 16 – 20

Hours: 1:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Lab fee: $30

Instructor: S. DeFrank

The aim of this course is to provide students with the opportunity to learn how to translate what they see into the material at hand. Students will work from the model in order to develop their skills in figuration and sculpture. Latitude will be given to expand on the classical modes of observation and proportion. Geometric forms will be discussed, along with anatomy and proportion. Basic casting and modeling demonstrations are included. This course is open to students at all levels. Note: Please bring a 24" armature with pipe and stand, and four to six bricks of #2 plasteline clay to the first session.

FSD-3973-C

Raku

Monday through Friday, July 23 – 27

Hours: 10:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Lab fee: $30

Instructor: R. Dennis

The emphasis of this course will be placed on forms and surfaces conducive to Raku. Instruction will be given on traditional clay-forming techniques, such as pinch pots, coil building, slab and throwing on the wheel. Demonstration of brush, stenciling, wax resist, carvings, sgraffito and nontraditional decorative applications will be introduced.

FSD-3973-D

Kinetic Sculpture

Monday through Friday, July 16 – 20

Hours: 9:00-1:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Materials fee: $30

Instructor: M. Taradash

Beginning with the study of weathervane designs and the structure of Calder's mobiles, students will then create their own kinetic sculptures. We will investigate various shapes that catch the wind and then rotate at different speeds. Discussions will include early 20th century and contemporary artists who have incorporated movement into their sculptures, along with their methods and materials. This course is open to anyone who would like to add innovation and movement to their artistic expression. Note: Please bring found objects, to transform into suspended sculptures, to the first session.

FSD-3973-E

Woodworking Lab: Specialized Techniques

Monday through Friday, July 9 – 13

Hours: 10:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Lab fee: $30

Instructor: A. Beverly

Specialized woodworking techniques can both enhance the design and execution of your projects. This course offers the opportunity for the intermediate and experienced woodworker to design and create sculptural forms and/or furniture. Techniques such as bent and stack lamination, curved panels, veneering, carving and inlay will be covered. In collaboration with the instructor, you will design and create maquettes, choose materials, resolve joinery techniques and complete a small piece. This course will include a visit to the instructor's studio.

FSD-3973-F

Shaker Furniture

Monday through Friday, July 23 – 27

Hours: 10:00-5:00

Summer semester: 1 credit

Materials fee: $30

Instructor: J. Bennett

This course is for woodworkers of all levels interested in learning methods for building Shaker style furniture. We will address the design elements and construction for Shaker furniture such as benches, tables, step stools, oval boxes and pegboards. Students will explore traditional and modern techniques and materials while selecting the construction process for their individual piece.

Painting in Florence

Summer semester

Instructor: P. Hristoff

This program is for serious painters at the advanced level who wish to spend up to three unforgettable weeks in the cradle of the Renaissance. Students will work in the studio and paint on location: in the gardens of an ancient palace, in a bustling piazza or from a quiet hilltop overlooking the city—magnificent sites that throughout history have attracted people from all over the world. The objective of the course is for students to experience Florence on their own terms and to render that experience on canvas. It will include guided visits to museums and historic sites.

While punctual class attendance is mandatory, the evenings and weekends are yours to explore the myriad offerings of this fabled city, from flea markets and boutiques to dining at a local trattoria or an elegant four-star restaurant. Students can also visit nearby towns such as Pisa, Siena and Lucca, or take a weekend excursion to Venice or Rome. The beaches of the Mediterranean are about an hour away by train. Accommodations at Youth Firenze 2000, a modern hostel near the Arno River, are double occupancy, with private bathrooms. Continental breakfast at a local café is included. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

Painting in Barcelona

Summer semester

Instructors: T. Carr, C. Miquel

Spend up to three weeks painting in the city that inspired Pablo Picasso, Joan Miró, Antoni Tàpies, Susana Solano and Antoni Gaudí. Classes will be conducted in the spacious studios at the Escola d'Arts Plàstiques i Disseny (LLOTJA), where a distinguished faculty will help you to clarify your artistic vision and explore new directions in your work.

The program is divided into two sections, each conducted by a different faculty member, who will organize the course and critique the work. Students may work with any style, medium and subject they choose. Classes will be held Monday through Friday and a walking tour of the city and visits to the Miró Foundation, the Picasso Museum and Gaudí's La Pedrera are included. Weekends are yours to explore this Olympic city's Gothic and modernist quarters, Gaudí's architecture and visit its many outstanding museums. You may travel to Madrid, Bilbao or Girona for the weekend.

The program offers you an opportunity to do serious work, combined with a European adventure filled with artistic inspiration. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

HCD-0121-A

Academic Skills Workshop

Monday through Friday, August 6 – 24

Hours: 9:00-5:00

Summer semester: no credit

Instructors: TBA

This special three-week workshop is designed for international students who are about to begin their studies at SVA and who would like to pursue additional study in the English language. The workshop will focus on essay writing, note taking, public speaking, writing art critiques and library research. Through written assignments and oral exercises related to the weekly field trips to New York City museums, students will develop their art vocabulary and improve their pronunciation, grammar and writing skills. There will be guest lecturers from the Humanities and Sciences Department.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

Summer semester: 3 credits

This course emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as English Romantic poetry. The course will focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development.

U.S. History II: 1865-Present

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 11

Hours: 9:00-12:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Druks

An examination of the forces behind the social, political and economic developments of American civilization and their interrelationships will be the focus of this course. Special attention will be placed on the role of individuals such as Theodore Roosevelt; Harry S. Truman; John F. Kennedy; Richard Nixon; Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Bill Clinton; and the variety of interpretations of American history. Readings will be from primary sources of the men and women who made this history. The text will be Daniel Boorstin's The Americans. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HHD-3334-R

Postcolonial Africa

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 24

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

Africa is said to be the cradle of human civilization. Today, it is a continent of reemerging independent nations with a complex history and a changing pattern of indigenous ways of life. This course will explore the culture and history of the African continent from the 1870s to the present, focusing on East, West and Southern Africa. Readings will include works of both European and African writers and activists. Selected videos will be screened.

HHD-3611-R

History of Religion

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

This course surveys the major religions of the world beginning with Hinduism, Zoroastrianism, Judaism and ending with Christianity and Islam. The spiritual crisis of the 6th century BCE that gave rise to Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism in the East will be compared to the epochs that gave rise to Christianity and Islam. While examining the similarities as well as the differences in the ultimate concepts of major Eastern and Western religions, such as moksha, nirvana, Tao and the kingdom of heaven, this course will explore the historical conditions in which the world religions evolved.

HHD-4121-R

The Genesis of Radical Islam

Monday, Wednesday; June 25 – August 13

Hours: 6:00-9:30

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Mohit

What cultural, political and social conditions have given rise to the emergence of Islamic radicalism and terrorism? What is the constituency of radical Islam and how different is it from Islamic terrorism? In the wake of the recent crisis, what future possibilities lie ahead for the political Islamic movements? What are the diversity of movements grouped under the umbrella of Islam? This course is designed to explore these questions by studying the birth of Islam and the pattern of its expansion and development throughout history. We will also examine the recent history of interaction and confrontation between the Middle East and the Western world. While particular attention will be paid to the "Palestinian question" and the achievements and failures of non-Islamic discourses in the formation of Islamic radicalism, the genesis of Islamic terrorism will be studied in light of the new wave of globalization and the emergence of the new world order.

HLD-2154-R

Myth and the Cosmos

Monday through Wednesday, June 4 – July 9

Hours: 1:00-3:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

A study of some of the world's ancient religious myths of creation, the cosmos, and man's role within it, as contrasted with the universe of modern science. Among the mythologies to be considered are those of the Egyptians, Hebrews, Indians, Chinese and Greeks. Texts for the course are: Homer's Odyssey (E.V. Rieu translation, Penguin paperback); Plato's Symposium (B. Jowett translation, many editions); John Updike's The Centaur; and The Epic of Gilgamesh.

HLD-2223-A

Short Fiction

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 17

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Auletta

In many respects, the short story is more like a play than a novel. Its brevity, immediacy, concentration on character and compression of plot enable it, in the hands of a master, to profoundly affect the reader. Some of the best literary work of the last century has been in the form of short stories. Writers we will study include: Leo Tolstoy, Herman Melville, Anton Chekhov, James Joyce, Franz Kafka and Ernest Hemingway.

HLD-3114-AWriters and Artists as Outsiders

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 3

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Robinson-Appels

Writers and Artists as Outsiders is for students interested in the representation of human sexuality. The course will focus on how same-gendered love contributes to the creation of works of art. It is primarily concerned with gay and lesbian writers of the 19th and 20th centuries in the United States and Europe, but the works of visual and performing artists will also be discussed. We will try to understand why same-gendered representation has been somewhat veiled in the visual arts as compared with the literary world where gay and lesbian characters are depicted in unveiled narratives. Authors to be read include Stein, Lorde, Rich, Anzaldúa, Barnes, Whitman, Wilde, Proust, Rimbaud, Cavafy, O'Hara, Schuyler and Ashbery. Material will be explored in a social and historical context.

HPD-3472-RContemporary Cultural Criticism: Where Do We Go From Here?

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 24

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

This course explores the collision between cultures based on the worship of nature and those fixated on continuous development. We will address such questions as: What basic human needs are fulfilled by the structure of modern urban civilization? What are the philosophical assumptions that relentlessly drive technological "progress?" What are the consequences of the destruction of communal societies and the forced re-education of indigenous, earth-based peoples? What is the potential for a renewal of commitment to natural and humanistic values? Readings include selections from such authors as Henri David Thoreau, Erich Fromm, Margaret Mead, R.D. Laing, Jerry Mander and Jean Liedloff.

HPD-3524-AMadness in Contemporary Society

Monday, June 4 – August 6

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

This course examines how the concepts of "madness" and "mental illness" have been understood in painting, photography, film, literature, music and popular cartoons, as well as by the legal, psychological and medical establishments. The following question will be addressed: What do cultural and medical approaches to madness reveal about the nature of contemporary society? Note: In addition to the 10 in-class sessions, a field trip will be scheduled at the beginning of the semester.

HPD-3641-RAbnormal Psychology I: Neurotic and Character Disorders

Tuesday, June 5 – August 14

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Borg

This course will introduce students to the psychological and interpersonal conflicts that underlie obsessional, hysterical, depressive and narcissistic disorders. Treatment strategies will also be explored with reference to actual case histories. Readings include selections from such clinical theorists as Sigmund Freud, Anna Freud, David Shapiro, Alice Miller, Charles Brenner, Karen Horney and Heinz Kohut.

HPD-4280-AMarriage and the Family

Monday, Tuesday, Thursday; June 4 – 28

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Horowitz

This course will focus on the basic functions of the family as well as its cross-cultural and historical forms. Emphasis will be placed on the American family. Issues will include immigration and minority family patterns; the family and social stratification; the family and social institutions; gender and family politics; parenthood, childhood and socialization.

HSD-3016-RScience in the Modern World

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

The triumphs of modern science have been heralded as an emancipation from the burdens of ignorance, fear, toil and disease. But have the sciences fulfilled their promise to liberate humankind? Have we truly overcome superstition and dogma, or simply replaced them with the uncertainties of a scientific "metaphysics" bristling with mysterious forces, powers, fields, waves, quarks and rays? Have we achieved the goals of knowledge and power, or have we reinvented ignorance and multiplied the dangers that surround us? In an attempt to come to grips with these questions, this course takes stock of recent scientific progress in fields such as anthropology, cosmology, ecology, subatomic physics and genetic engineering, measuring the claims of science and technology against those of the individual.

HSD-3112-RGeology

Wednesday, May 30 – August 1

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This is an introduction to the composition and history of the planet earth. We will begin with a basic discussion of mineralogy and the earth's composition, followed by a survey of the earth's history as inferred from the sedimentary record and other evidence, including the formation and development of the atmosphere and soils as well as continental plate tectonics. The role of the biosphere in formation and maintaining the physicochemical structure of the Earth's surface will be examined. Visits to the American Museum of Natural History and sites of geological interest are included. Note: In addition to the nine in-class sessions, two field trips will be scheduled at the beginning of the semester.

HSD-3113-RBotany: The World of Plants

Thursday, May 31 – July 26

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

In this course, we will explore the evolution, physiology and ecology of plants. There will be field trips to study wild plant communities in the area, as well as to a botanical garden. Students will be expected to go on at least two of these trips, which will be on Sunday afternoons. Students will make herbaria of plants collected during the course. The basic role of plants in the biosphere, and the uses of plants by humans will be discussed. Lectures will be supplemented by Attenborough's video, The Private Life of Plants, and by readings from the essays of Roger Swain and others. Note: In addition to the nine in-class sessions, two field trips will be scheduled at the beginning of the semester.

Monday, June 4 – August 6

Hours: 1:00-4:30

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

In this course, students will learn how directly, profoundly and indisputably modern science has transformed modern art, and how artists have created new forms of spiritual art for secular society. Age-old questions—What is the origin of life? What is the universe made of?—were asked anew in the modern era. Charles Darwin and Albert Einstein gave answers that precipitated abstract art by forever changing how we understand reality. The rise of science also entailed the decline of organized religion, and traditional theological questions were reformulated in secular terms. What is our place in the universe? How does a person know the world? The answers proposed by psychologists—the new doctors of the soul—have revolutionized modern society's understanding of the human psyche. Artists responded by creating metaphors for the human condition during the first secular, scientific age in human history. Note: In addition to the 10 in-class sessions, a field trip will be scheduled at the beginning of the semester.

CID-2551-A

Cartoon Hothouse! (Basic)

Tuesday, Wednesday; June 5 – July 10

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructors: J. Abel, T. Hart, M. Madden

This course will be a unique opportunity for the artist interested in cartooning to intensely focus on the process of visual storytelling with three bright stars of the contemporary cartooning movement—Jessica Abel, Tom Hart, Matt Madden. Emphasis will be placed on executing strong story structures, effective drawing, inking and the graphic compositional skills necessary to make your tales come to life. The course will examine the difference between storytelling (with its roots in drama) and narrative image-making, which is a form of poetry. Each student will produce a completed comic that achieves a meaningful balance between tradition and experimentation.

ILD-2551-A

Illustration Hothouse! (Basic)

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – June 27

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructors: J. Chung, T. Fasolino, F. Jetter

This course is a unique opportunity for artists to explore the potential of narrative, content-driven interpretive art—illustration. You will study with three legendary illustrators—Joo Chung, Teresa Fasolino, Frances Jetter—each with their own innovative approach to the genre. Students will develop projects that reflect their own point of view in relation to given texts. Personal attention will be paid to mastery of your chosen medium or mediums, be it paint, print, sculpture, ink or pencil. Experimentation will be encouraged, and the development of a professional portfolio will be discussed.

CID-4551-A

Cartoon Hothouse! (Advanced)

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – June 27

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructors: N. Bertozzi, K. Mayerson, G. Panter

Fasten your seat belts for the cartooning ride of your life. Taught by three legends in the alternative comic world—Nick Bertozzi, Keith Mayerson, Gary Panter—this is a rare opportunity for the advanced art student to “think-tank” your pictorial narrative to new levels of experimentation. Through the research and practice of different comic forms, we will explore the infinite possibilities of how to produce meaning by the sequence of images and words. You will be encouraged to construct stories in whatever genre, style and medium you like, and critically engage in the process to achieve your own ambitious artistic goals. Note: Limited shared studio space is available for students who need work space. Students must submit samples of their work for review and acceptance into this course. Please contact the BFA Illustration and Cartooning Department fourth-year advisor for information.

ILD-4551-A

Illustration/Imagist Painting Hothouse! (Advanced)

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – June 27

Hours: 12:00-4:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructors: S. Mellyn, D. Sandlin, T. Woodruff

The focus of this course will be on you and your development of content-driven paintings, drawings or objects. You will be encouraged to work on a project that will become the basis of your portfolio, a series of works that will show your unique artistic perspective, reflecting your interests and displaying your skills. These skills will be specifically addressed, mastery of your chosen medium will be exercised in the studio; conceptual prowess is addressed in the critiques. The illustration and fine art milieu will be explored in field trips to museums and galleries. Note: Students must submit samples of their work for review and acceptance into this course. Please contact the BFA Illustration and Cartooning Department fourth-year advisor for information.

ILD-4621-A

Painting the Real World—From a Bed of Roses to the Gutter

Tuesday, Wednesday; May 29 – June 27

Hours: 9:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Crane

Taught by renowned landscape painter Gregory Crane, whose work has been described by The New York Times as “an alchemical wedding of the mundane and the spiritual,” this course is designed to take the advanced painting student out of the pristine studio and into the real world. You will travel to various locations: from deep inside the woods of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden to the gritty warehouse rooftops of Red Hook. Mr. Crane will unlock many of the mysteries on how to depict atmospheric phenomenon and give you a greater understanding of the growth and rhythm of natural forms, and how to record them quickly and beautifully. You will learn how to compose pictures of dynamic intensity, abstracted from observation. The Crane experience in plein air has been treasured by many great painters and illustrators for over two decades. You will never see the world the same way again; this course will bring poetry to your images. Note: The first session will meet in Brooklyn’s Prospect Park, at the Long Meadow (just off Grand Army Plaza).

IDD-1171-A

Visual Computing for Interiors

Monday through Wednesday, May 7 – June 11

Hours: 12:00-2:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Bobkoff

This course will focus on the basic operational skills of the computer and the development of creative techniques in 2D and 3D using Adobe Photoshop, Illustrator and InDesign. Students will start learning about the computer's operating system, how to scan images at the proper resolution and develop an archive of work. The course will cover basic graphic design principles of layout and design through hands-on exercises to create business cards, letterheads, logos, layout grids, illustrations and books.

IDD-2081-A

Designing with AutoCAD

Monday through Wednesday, May 7 – June 11

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Weiss

This course is an introduction to computer-aided design and drafting (CAD). The overall concepts and ideas explored are the same as those in a manual drafting class, even though they will be taught through AutoCAD, the industry standard software program. The concepts covered will enable students to use most CAD programs. The concepts of layout, line weights, dimensions and annotation will be explored. We will approach drawing as a visual communication tool that is both artistic and informative. The course will revolve around a semester-long project that will result in a drawing that contains the various types of plans, elevations and sections of an interior space. Three hours per week of scheduled lab time is required. A teaching assistant will be available during lab time to help students with problems they may encounter in completing assignments.

IDD-3212-A

3D Studio VIZ for Interior Design

Monday, Wednesday; May 7 – June 27

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Lam

AutoDesk 3D Studio VIZ will be used to create a virtual three-dimensional interior environment. Emphasis will be on scene setting, lighting and textures, and the importance of problem-solving within an architectural space using the tool sets available with VIZ. Students will be required to complete a preliminary walk-through and a video output of their projects. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Adobe Photoshop and AutoCAD.

IDD-3213-A

Multimedia Digital Design for Architecture and Interiors

Tuesday, Thursday; May 8 – June 26

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Digital media representation of an interior space with a practical and conceptual emphasis on compositing multiple renderings, masks and digital photography to produce a sequence of simulated "film stills" is the focus of this course. Each student will document, measure and photograph an existing interior and then use this information to develop a set of 2D AutoCAD drawings. These drawings will be imported into 3D Studio Max and used as an underlay to construct an accurate 3D computer model. We will then start the rendering process, and students will learn how to light the computer model and develop textures for the interior surfaces. Multiple renderings will be achieved using Adobe Photoshop. Each student will learn how to develop highly complex Photoshop files, capable of producing multiple new readings of the space. Students will design a narrative for the stills; these images will be suitable for portfolio inclusion.

IDD-4272-A

Advanced AutoCAD 3D Modeling

Tuesday, Thursday; May 8 – June 26

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Jakubowski

This course will look at ways to take an existing two-dimensional drawing and create a three-dimensional virtual model from start to finish. While we will not use any rendering packages, we will touch upon the proper ways to create models so that they can be rendered using third-party packages such as VIZ Render, 3D Studio VIZ, form•Z, AccuRender, and others.

Photography

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

PHD-2010-A

Photographic Techniques

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 11

Hours: 3:00-6:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Arthur

A course in the optics, mechanics and chemistry of photography intended to teach students the basic principles of how the photographic process works. The working of the lens, camera, meter, film and developers will be examined.

PHD-2020-A

Black-and-White Printing

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 3

Hours: 9:00-12:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Rothman

A comprehensive workshop in professional shooting and printing methods, with an emphasis on specialized techniques by which the photographer can control the final picture to most fully reflect his/her personal vision.

PHD-2030-A

Color Printing

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 3

Hours: 2:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Donaldson

The focus of this course is to make prints from color negatives or internegatives (C-prints or Ektacolor prints). Emphasis will be on establishing a strong technical foundation in color, and also on developing a personal, aesthetic direction. A portfolio of thoughtfully executed and finely printed images will evolve from individual and group critique. Assignments, technical lectures and outside research will be included.

PHD-2040-A

Studio Photography I

Tuesday, Thursday; May 29 – July 3

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Shung

This introductory course in studio photography is for those interested in discovering the versatility of the large-format camera and the abilities of controlled studio lighting to enhance form and texture. Electronic flash and tungsten lighting, and all formats from 35mm to 4x5" cameras will be used to photograph still lifes, portraits, fashion/beauty and nudes in class. This is a hands-on studio course, with special emphasis on the large-format camera, that incorporates lectures, demonstrations and a series of assignments. Note: 4x5" cameras, lighting equipment, meters and seamless paper backgrounds will be provided during course hours. Students must supply their own cameras (small or medium format) and film, and have access to a darkroom or use a commercial lab.

PHD-2045-A

Studio Photography II

Tuesday, Thursday; July 10 – August 14

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Pluchino

This course is designed for advanced students who have successfully completed PHD-2040, Studio Photography I, or equivalent. Using all camera formats from 35mm to 4x5" and controlled studio lighting, students will complete a series of assignments, including still life, portrait, fashion/beauty and nudes. Students will be encouraged to go beyond the technical and explore the aesthetic aspects of their subjects. This is a hands-on workshop incorporating lectures, demonstrations and assignments. Note: Please bring a notebook and samples of your work to the first session. Cameras (4x5"), lighting equipment, meters and seamless paper backgrounds will be provided during class hours. Students must supply their own cameras (small or medium format) and film, and have access to a darkroom or use a commercial lab.

PHD-2050-A

Photography on Assignment

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 9 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 10:00-1:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Klein

This intermediate course in photographic nuts and bolts will include technical demonstrations and assignments concerning the use of meters, filters, lighting, flash and color film, among other topics. The course will also include discussions on how to get started in the photographic marketplace, with special emphasis on meeting the visual needs of clients who require promotional photographs (actors, musicians). Student work will be critiqued individually.

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 23 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Greenwald

Verbalizing an idea is not the same as making it visible. In this course, we will analyze your images and discuss your progress, as you work on a thematic project. It is important that we are clear about our intentions and be able to articulate them photographically. By the end of the semester, you will have forged a cohesive body of work and a vocabulary with which to discuss it. Please bring representative examples to the first session, as well as any concepts you may have for an extended project.

PHD-2080-A

Intermediate Digital Photography

Monday, Wednesday; June 4 – July 25

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Perry

Students will further their knowledge of image construction, manipulation, retouching and collage techniques, using the Adobe Photoshop program and software extensions. Emphasis will be placed on an exploration of the full potential of all aspects of the application. In addition to exploring various advanced digital imaging techniques, students will be encouraged to apply these techniques to their work, and to critically examine the profound effects that new imaging technologies are having on the ways we see and make art. A variety of topics will be covered, including advanced selection techniques, channels, paths, shape-and-text tools, blending modes, filter effects, service bureaus, color management, monitor calibration and digital cameras.

PHD-3050-A

Digital Imaging and Time-Based Media

Monday, Wednesday; May 30 – July 9 (begins Wednesday, May 30)

Hours: 6:00-9:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course will examine ways in which photographers can employ digital video, motion graphics and sound applications in their artwork. Emphasis will be placed on understanding the complex relationship between the static image and the dynamics of motion, sound and time. In addition to creating a time-based work of art, students will learn how to output their work into the QuickTime and DVD formats. Applications to be used: Adobe Photoshop, Final Cut Pro, iMovie, After Effects, iDVD, DVD Studio Pro, QuickTime Pro, Media Cleaner.

PHD-3103-A

Advanced Color Printing

Tuesday, Thursday; June 5 – July 24

Hours: 6:00-8:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Turyñ

Students will make prints from color negatives or internegatives (C-print or Ektacolor prints). While still concentrating on the development of strong technical skills, students will pursue a personal aesthetic direction. A portfolio of thoughtfully executed and finely printed images will evolve as a result of weekly individual and group critiques. Some assignments, technical lectures and outside research are also included. Prerequisite: PHD-2030, Color Printing, or equivalent.

Photo Bookworks

Tuesday, Thursday; May 31 – July 10 (begins Thursday, May 31)

Hours: 1:00-4:30

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Wallenstein

In this course we will explore the photographic book as both object and container; as works consisting of groups of images bound together in a completed form, edited and sequenced for maximum effect. The creation of different book structures such as scrapbook, single signature and accordion-fold will be covered. An overview of book arts will be presented. Students will make at least one book per week, using already existing photographs. A class project will be completed, as well.

PHD-3207-A

Location Photography

Monday, June 4 – July 23

Hours: 12:00-6:00

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Patrick McBride

Providing the technical background necessary for versatility and competence in location photography is the aim of this course. The objective is to develop each student's imagination in order to find visually compelling locations, to study the space and available light, and to determine what additional light to bring to the "set." This course will be supplemented with individual portfolio projects, both exterior and interior locations, and students will explore areas of their own special interests. Prerequisite: Students should have completed at least one studio lighting course and have working knowledge of basic lighting principles and manual camera operations.

PHD-3233-A

Advanced Fashion Photography

Monday, Thursday; June 4 – July 9

Hours: 2:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course is designed for students who are seriously interested in fashion. We will cover all aspects of the field: editorial, advertising, beauty and portrait. Both studio, with artificial lighting (tungsten and strobe); and location, with available light augmented by strobe; will be taught. Various camera formats, from 35mm to 4x5", will be used. Emphasis will be on the anatomy of a fashion shoot: working with models, hair and makeup people, editors, art directors, etc. Personal style will be stressed. Prerequisite: PHD-2040, Studio Photography I.

Digital Photography in Florence

Summer semester

Instructor: J. Rudnick

Surround yourself with the magnificent art and architecture of the birthplace of the Italian Renaissance. Photographers are invited to spend up to three inspiring weeks in School of Visual Arts' Digital Photography in Florence program.

The course will examine the artistic vision and camera control needed in image-making, and will include daily one-on-one review of each student's photography as well as weekly critiques. Advice regarding equipment, shooting and lighting techniques, personal expression, aesthetics, mood and emotional content will be offered. Daily access to digital printing facilities will be provided. Students will be directed to work on individual projects that range in scope from fine art to art for commerce and will complete a final body of work for review. This creative study will provide guidance for photographing the city of Florence, its people and the surrounding Tuscan landscape. Guided tours of museums and churches in the area will be included.

While class attendance and punctuality will be mandatory, the evenings and weekends are yours to explore the culture and traditions of this engaging metropolis, whether it's wandering through flea markets, shopping in boutiques, sampling Tuscan cuisine, or enjoying excursions to Siena, Lucca or Chianti.

Prerequisite: Two semesters of basic photography, a working knowledge of Adobe Photoshop and digital printing is required. Students will need to supply their own digital camera (4 megapixel, or higher), storage media, cables and a copy of the appropriate download software. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

SUMMER RESIDENCY IN PHOTOGRAPHY

PHD-4993

Photography

Summer semester: 4 credits per session

$1,875 per session; $3,500 for both sessions

This intensive residency offers participants the opportunity to work in technologically advanced facilities with a renowned faculty to bring critical rigor to the serious photographer. While working in all phases of black-and-white, color, digital processes and alternative procedures, the primary function of the program is to advance the content of the artist's work through one-on-one and group critiques, lectures, museum and gallery visits, and dialogue with other participants.

Critiques and lectures complement the independent work, and together these elements form an intense program encouraging creativity, learning and progress. Faculty critiques—individual and group—will be given Monday through Thursday. Special lectures given by guest artists, critics and gallery directors are scheduled approximately once a week, and are designed to give further insight into the realities of the working photographer. Gallery tours are also included.

Participants will have access to studio equipment and printing facilities, which include black-and-white and color darkrooms, digital imaging and output centers, a range of studio lighting systems, and a variety of camera sizes and formats. Facilities are available Monday through Thursday, 9:00am to 10:00pm; Friday and Saturday, 9:00am to 5:00pm. Staff technicians are available for assistance and technical support. The program culminates in an open studio exhibition which enables participants to present their work to the public.

Residency faculty and guest lecturers have included Vince Aletti, Josef Astor, Marco Breuer, Ellen Brooks, Elinor Carucci, Renée Cox, Jessica Craig-Martin, Barbara Ess, Jenny Gage, Sally Gall, Bill Jacobson, Orit Raff, Penelope Umbrico and Eric Weeks.

Note: A portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program. A $1,100 deposit for use of photographic equipment is required. Participants will be held responsible for payment of any loss, theft or damage incurred to the equipment.

UNDERGRADUATE

Department of Advertising and Graphic Design

Advertising First-Year Requirements

Freshman advertising majors must take all of the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are advertising foundation course programs, composed of foundation-year required courses. Please look over these schedules and decide which would suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, your first preference may not be available.

ADD-1010 Principles of Visual Language I

One semester: 3 credits

This studio course will explore the fundamental principles of two-dimensional design and how these principles relate to visual communication. Through direct, hands-on participation in assignments and independent projects, students will work toward developing their own unique "visual language." Experimentation with composition, visual hierarchy, typographic design, color interaction and visual narrative will be stressed. Students will explore a wide range of visual concepts, including abstraction, symmetry and asymmetry, contrast, figure/ground relationships, rhythm and harmony. Class time is used for the creation and execution of design work, along with critiques and discussions. Assignments are paper-based: supplies include construction paper, drafting and cutting tools, and gouache paint. The primary medium will be collage.

ADD-1015 (previously ADD-1010, second semester) Principles of Visual Language II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ADD-1010 for course description.

ADD-1020 Foundations in Three-Dimensional Graphic Design

One semester: 3 credits

A study of visual perception through the use of three-dimensional media is the focus of this course. A conceptual approach toward problem solving, technical skills and utilization of various media will be emphasized.

AHD-1010 Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHD-1015 Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1010 for course description.

FDD-1030 Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester) Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

HCD-1010 Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020 Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

SMD-1020 Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits

Serving as an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists, this course will cover basic skills for operating and maintaining a computer, as well as the techniques to create collages and layered images and the tools required to display work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

Graphic Design

First-Year Requirements

Freshman graphic design majors must take all of the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are 14 general foundation course programs, each composed of the foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled. Note: General Foundation 14 will not be made available until all other foundation schedules have reached capacity.

Freshmen who will begin their studies in the spring 2008 semester should refer to general foundation blocks 15 and 16.

AHD-1010

Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHD-1015

Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1010 for course description.

FDD-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

FPD-1020

Painting I

One semester: 3 credits

Foundation-year painting will explore various means of representation through the application of pigments to canvas, panels and paper. Color and its organizational principles will be investigated—both as a practical and theoretical endeavor. An exploration of form and content will be undertaken with an emphasis on technical skills. Class critiques and museum visits will be employed as vehicles to develop critical terms concerning painting.

FPD-1025 (previously FPD-1020, second semester)

Painting II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-1020 for course description.

FSD-1050

Sculpture

One semester: 3 credits

As an introduction to the material world, this course explores diverse media and their potentialities to create volume, line and mass. Ranging from the ethereal to the fabricated, materials such as clay, plaster, cardboard, wood, resin and wire will be investigated by exercises in casting, mold-making, installation and site-specific work. Discussion will include concepts of space, gravity and light, among others, as they pertain to three-dimensional form.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020

Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

SMD-1020

Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits

Serving as an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists, this course will cover basic skills for operating and maintaining a computer, as well as the techniques to create collages and layered images and the tools required to display work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

AHD-2121History of Advertising

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Warlick

A survey of creative trends in print and broadcast advertising, from late 19th-century French poster design to award-winning commercials of today is the focus of this course. We will examine early predecessors of brand awareness in American advertising and the creative revolution of the Bernbach era in the 1960s. Students will look at what works and what has been forgotten. The second wave of creative work produced in the 1980s and 1990s will focus on American and international advertising recognized in The One Show. Students are required to complete several short papers.

AHD-2127History of Graphic Design: A Survey of Graphic Design Styles from the Late 19th Century to the Present

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on the various graphic design movements: from the art nouveau movement and Jugendstil to De Stijl and Dada; from the impact of the Bauhaus to the fervor of the streamlined '30s; from Swiss International style of the '50s to the psychedelia of the '60s and on to the punk '70s and postmodern '80s. We will also examine the subjects, themes and relationship of the designer to the period. Using examples of the period as a focal point, the evolving design styles and their relationship to politics, commerce, social mores, technology and pop culture will be explored. From the beautiful to the ridiculous, the ephemeral aspects of design will be studied. Guest speakers will feature individuals who have created important design work of the periods discussed.

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Leban

How can you make your work stand out in the midst of the thousands of visual and verbal messages that bombard the public each day? How can you make your work distinctly, unmistakably yours? By questioning and rethinking your preconceived ideas and assumptions about what makes art, what makes it "good" or "bad," and which applications are possible for your work. You will assign yourself projects that we'll critique in order to identify your uniqueness and to remove any obstacles to it. We'll consider how standards and influences affect the originality of your ideas and executions, among other issues. New ideas can only result from thinking in new ways; this is the emphasis of the course.

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Joyce

Complete instruction in designing for studio and freelance work. Creative fabric design for the fashion apparel market (women's, men's and children's) and the home furnishing decorative market (drapery, sheets, wallpaper) will be discussed. Designs will include floral, paisley, chintz, liberty, ethnic, conversational, geometric, contemporary and coordinate patterns. Thorough instruction in layout: tossed, spaced, border, patchwork. How to find and use reference material is included. How to do repeats and color combinations; tracing; drawing and special painting techniques such as batik, warp, bleach, woodblock and flower shading will be shown—all valuable techniques for use in other fields (illustration, graphics, interior and fashion design, etc). The use of gouache, transparent dyes, and pen-and-ink will be examined. Computer textile designing and its relation to traditional methods will be discussed. This course is geared toward developing a professional portfolio for those seeking a job in today's market.

GDD-3010-A

Communication Graphic Design I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Samara

It has been said that abstract visual form carries more information than the literal. Students in this course will investigate both traditional and digital means of manipulating image, type and meaning, with an emphasis on the relationship between literal representation and abstraction. Students explore personal approaches to image-making through a variety of media—collage, drawing, painting, photography, software—as sources for creating rich, meaningful visual experiences. The aim of the course is to develop the skills and techniques for applying such imagery to real-world projects that will incorporate symbol development, typography and information design.

GDD-3010-B

Communication Graphic Design I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Hewitt

The work of graphic designers is generally challenging, sometimes frustrating, often exciting and rarely predictable. Agility is key. Each assignment set during this course will be very different from the next. Projects will include: symbols, icon systems, a graphic novel, visual language and guerrilla marketing. Each will explore the concept of identity. Topics to be considered include: the design greats that shape our work, the power of graphic elements, the visual messages we're exposed to every day, the emotional connections that resonate.

GDD-3010-C

Communication Graphic Design I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Poulin

An exploration of various working methods by which graphic designers precisely and effectively solve communication problems will be the focus of this course. Design solutions will be executed from roughs to finished comps.

GDD-3010-DCommunication Graphic Design I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Kim

While exploring the integrity of design, concept, representation and execution, you will talk, present, listen, try, fail, design, think, reflect, know, guess, use what you know, admit what you don't, work hard, relax and much more. By the end of the course, you will know how to do less of these for some projects and more for others.

GDD-3010-ECommunication Graphic Design I:*Knowing Your Butt From a Hole in the Ground

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Victore

Interesting and powerful graphic design does not come from trends or fashion; it comes from one person's point of view. In this course, we will develop your senses of imagery and association to make them strong, sharp and flexible. We will also attempt to broaden the concept of graphic design beyond the practical aspects of typography, grids and color theory.

GDD-3010-FCommunication Graphic Design I

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Boychuk

Students will focus on discussion and conceptual design projects with a concentration on the contemporary small design studio. Taught by business partners who work together on projects ranging from broadcast, print, publishing, music and Web graphics, the course will include projects from each of these genres with an emphasis on the challenges of design in an entrepreneurial environment. The principles of graphic design and conceptual problem solving are the focus; in addition, guest speakers and sessions specific to production and comping, as well as field trips to various studios and printing presses will round out the experience. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop as well as Adobe InDesign or a comparable layout program. Web experience and knowledge of Adobe After Effects is a plus, but not required.

GDD-3010-GCommunication Graphic Design I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: J. Fulbrook, J. Rea

One must always ask oneself, "What is the purpose and function of design?" and, "What is the ultimate goal and responsibility of a designer?" While one cannot presume to answer these questions completely, we will explore them in this course. Emphasis will be on concept, typography and learning to navigate the waters of the "real" world—including designing work that makes us proud and the art of knowing how to defend your design solutions. Projects range from invitations and book jackets to identities and packaging. Visiting professionals from such companies as Kate Spade, MTV and The New York Times, as well as other design fields will visit the class for hands-on insight into the business.

GDD-3010-HCommunication Graphic Design I

GDD-3010-JCommunication Graphic Design I: Big and Bold with Detail

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Rand

Developing strong, cohesive compositions for various graphic design challenges—book jackets, poster series, invitations and other promotional materials—is the goal of this course. We will work to develop strong typographic treatments and experimental solutions for your assignments. Having fun while creating something unique will be emphasized.

GDD-3010-KCommunication Graphic Design I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Truch

Learn the fundamentals of solid design. This course will convey a timeless, yet modern, approach that allows individuality to shine through. Typography, aesthetics, branding, communication and presentation will be emphasized. Exposure to guest artists will help students to prepare for the working world.

GDD-3010-LCommunication Graphic Design I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Leban

We will consider graphic design as a powerful form of visual language that shapes everyone's life, capable of conveying all kinds of messages—social issues, personal views, new ideas—as well as commercial and other applications for graphic design. We'll focus on clarity, aesthetics, ethics, and new techniques for personal projects and client work.

GDD-3010-MCommunication Graphic Design I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Hoffman

Taught by an SVA graduate who remembers what it was like to start out in the workplace, this course will help you to prepare for a career as a professional graphic designer. Guest speakers will provide real-world advice and share anecdotes and stories that helped them to successful early careers. Assignments will include an extensive identity project, which will start with a logo and be applied to collateral, such as shopping bags and exterior signage. We will explore how to choose typefaces, images and graphic elements that fit a project, based on concept rather than a trend or personal preference. Idea is key, and only with proper execution will you draw the consumer to the product—by making them smile, think and touching their hearts.

GDD-3010-NCommunication Graphic Design I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Shostak

This course offers discussions and assignments that emphasize the development of skills and an understanding of the processes and vocabulary of graphic design. We will begin by covering basics such as learning to understand and recognize essential information. Discussions will focus on how to create smart, visually compelling designs to move information in a comprehensive way.

Advertising Concepts I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Feldman

This in-depth workshop will concern itself with the process of how to create exciting advertising concepts by teaching students how to reach consumers in a way that really moves them, by touching a nerve instead of merely giving them the facts.

ADD-3122-A (previously ADD-3113, second semester)

Advertising Concepts II

Advertising and Graphic Design for Social Change

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Leban

We can create change in the world by using advertising and graphic design to present important ideas, to raise awareness, to stimulate thought. Our focus will be on communicating issues that concern you and many others—issues of global and local significance. We'll work on subjects such as pollution, justice, the importance of art in the world, voting, sexual stereotyping, etc., to create breakthrough campaigns that can make a difference; and we'll explore various means for making them public. The rapidly changing world is creating new demands and uses for advertising and graphic design, and new opportunities for what you can do with these powerful, influential forms of communication.

ADD-3131-A (previously ADD-3116, first semester)

The Art of Copy I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Carter

Designed for the art director who may not become a copywriter, this course will teach the necessary skills to be an art director who can write. These skills are increasingly in demand, particularly for internships and first-time positions. At a minimum, students will have a better idea of what it takes to create effective advertising; write better headlines; work more effectively with a creative partner and, of course, create body copy the way it should be written. Not to mention having a few portfolio pieces in your book that show a greater range and depth of creative execution than your competitors.

The Creative Team Concept I: Two Heads Can Be Better Than One

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Beaver, R. Reitzfeld

This course gives proof to the fact that $1 + 1 = 3$, by learning how to make the most of the dynamics of working together to create outstanding advertising. Students will work in pairs as art director and writer teams to make original work. Each team will share the writing and art directing responsibilities in an environment that more closely represents the working world. The course will: 1) explain techniques of working with other people in an advertising environment; 2) show how to contribute to the solution by listening; 3) prepare you for different relationships; 4) take the fear out of the creative team process; 5) introduce presentation skills. Note: The course will be held at Beaver Reitzfeld, Inc.

Hybrid Culture: Designing for Advertising I

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Donovan

Design has never been in greater demand at agencies than it is now. Clients and advertisers are realizing the importance that design plays in a brand. All creative disciplines should understand that design is no longer a trend in advertising—it is a necessity. Designers should not be brought in to solve the design problems of art directors at the last minute; they should be brought to the table as equal partners to solve the problem. This course is for both advertising and graphic design majors. Art directors, copywriters and designers will learn how to use design to rethink brands and elevate campaign ideas.

Digital Production Tools and Techniques

Friday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wahler

Today's graphic artist is required to have technical knowledge and production ability. This course offers complete instruction in the skills necessary to make organized, workable files. Using Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop, and design layout programs such as Adobe InDesign, we'll examine all aspects of production as they relate to print, including correct document construction, color space and color systems, separations, trapping, preflight, print production and paper considerations. Completed assignments will be sent to a service bureau for various forms of output from Linotronic output to Scitex film and matchprints. This course will combine in-class computer print production work with trips to a graphic arts production company. Students will observe work-in-progress, from scanning to final film separations. The opportunity to experiment and work with all available digital and analog print production tools will be an invaluable experience in terms of job opportunities. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop. Note: Open to junior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Apple Final Cut Pro

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Cohn

Developing a short film requires vigorous attention to form and content. In this course, students will explore Final Cut Pro, while focusing on time, space, illusion, content development and characteristics of specific genres. Camera techniques for editing in Final Cut Pro and designing and authoring DVDs using DVD Studio Pro will be covered. We will investigate the special considerations of video editing for motion graphics designers to establish a solid platform on which to create motion graphics work. Note: Open to junior and senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Adobe After Effects

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Cohn

Motion graphics is an exploding field and designers have new opportunities to work in television, film, Web and CD-ROM design. This course will provide a foundation for working in this specialization by exploring motion and the ways in which it is created. Assignments are process-oriented and focus on maintaining a level of experimentation. The basics of special effects, compositing and video editing will be explored using Adobe After Effects and Apple Final Cut Pro. Note: Open to junior and senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Motion Graphics Workshop I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: J. Metzner, O. Kleiner

Digital video is the future of graphic design. Think of graphic design that moves in time and space, and is accompanied by a sound track. Learn Apple Final Cut Pro and Adobe After Effects, and experiment with a new form of design that allows you to include digital video that you shoot, TV that you capture, typography that you design, animation that you create—all mixed together with a sound track to form video with a graphic vision of your own. The Music Video I: A “Real-World” Workshop

Wednesday 3:00-6:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Elliott

The music video is one of the most expressive commercial art forms, and this is an exciting time for the genre. The tools for creating broadcast-quality videos readily available: digital video, Adobe After Effects and Apple Final Cut Pro.

This course will be project driven and students will be encouraged to dive into the media by creating original, kick-ass content on a journey to build your own show-reel. On the practical side, we will cover all areas of the production process, from treatments and storyboards, through the shooting process and finally postproduction. The importance of meeting deadlines will be emphasized. Creatively you'll have to get out there and are invited to take chances to produce something new and exciting, experimenting with various forms of live action, animation, and motion graphics. Steered by the director and head of a video production company, students will get a great glimpse into the world of video production. Note: Open to junior and senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Toys and Games I: From Concept to Finish

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $20

Instructor: A. Benkovitz

The toy industry is a trendy business where innovative designs are introduced continually. This course will analyze successful products from different categories (games, plush, action figures, novelties), explore what great toy concepts are and how to originate them. The use of various tools and materials and how to create renderings and prototypes will be demonstrated. By taking part in brainstorming sessions, hands-on workshops and field trips to toy stores; and by testing their own designs, students will learn how to develop concepts into finished products. Manufacturing and marketing, as well as career opportunities in the toy industry will be discussed. In addition to assigned weekly projects, students will be encouraged to work on another product of their choice—limited only by their imagination. The goal is to create at least one finished product per semester, suitable for presentation to a toy company or for inclusion in a portfolio.

GDD-3378-AInformation Graphics I: How to Present Information Visually

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Grimwade

Information design is everywhere and it is an essential skill for designers. This course will concentrate on the thinking process: identifying opportunities, making a plan and seeing the idea through to the final result—the printed page or multi-media. At all times, the emphasis will be on ideas, not software. Learn how to integrate information successfully into any design environment through careful planning. We will examine the history of information graphics to the very latest approaches, as well as work on the specifics of information design: editing, research, order, hierarchy, color and typography.

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Brindisi

From environmental graphics and exhibitions to branding and identity to posters, packaging and publications, students will learn to develop effective visual communications. We will explore the design process from a multifaceted design perspective, as well as learn new skills and techniques that can be applied to every area of visual communications.

GDD-3426-B (previously GDD-3424, first semester)Corporate Identity I: Identity Design

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Baker

This overview and studio course will cover the study of identity design, and the development of leading identity design programs. Researching, naming and designing an identity system will be assigned, including design explorations, presentation techniques, refinement and the application of a logo. Typographical, color standards and the design of a graphic standards manual will also be covered, as well as the application of systems—stationery, packaging, signage and collateral materials. The study of identity and logo design will focus on the works of designers and design firms such as Paul Rand, Saul Bass, Chermayeff and Geismar, Pentagram, Landor and Charles Anderson.

GDD-3426-C (previously GDD-3424, first semester)Corporate Identity I: Brand Identity

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kammerzell

Understanding the fundamentals of branding and how to create visual identities that extend past logo design will be the focus of this course. Through exposure to a variety of visual branding issues, students will be challenged to create unique ideas and solutions that meet real-world concerns. An emphasis will be placed on understanding and capturing the essence of a chosen brand (corporation, product, service, organization, personality) to ultimately develop visual identities that target all platforms on which the brand will perform (collateral, environment, online, advertising). We will begin with specific visual branding exercises and students will choose topics of approach for these exercises. Finally, students will extend these projects into a visual identity development that encompasses several branding challenges.

Instructor: C. Roberts

The fundamentals of designing for three-dimensional objects and how to create design solutions that extend past the singular product will be the focus of this course. Through exposure to a variety of packaging problems, students will be challenged to create unique solutions that meet real-world concerns. Emphasis will be placed on using typography and color to create sophisticated solutions that target the modern boutique consumer. Beginning with single-package solutions where students are given the three-dimensional form, we will then extend these solutions into brands that encompass several products. The course will focus on specialty food packaging, though other areas will be covered.

Poster Design: Silkscreen

Tuesday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Castrucci

Materials fee: $135

This course offers the opportunity to explore the world of poster art. The process of creating a poster—from concept through final execution—will be covered. Students will complete a minimum of three projects, each with a different focus (cultural, social, advertising), and emphasis will be placed on creating strong and memorable ideas. Projects will be researched and sketches will be presented for in-class discussion. After the approval of the concept, projects will be printed using silkscreen techniques. Silkscreen is a printing method with endless possibilities. We will experiment with printing on colored and textured papers, applying various inks and screens. How visual metaphors work successfully and how to make the work accessible and challenging will be analyzed. We will also examine the beauty and the expressive power of posters created by the masters in this field—from the Bauhaus and the great Polish tradition to the contemporary perfectionism of Japanese designers. Note: Open to advertising and graphic design majors only.

Book Jacket Design and Beyond:

A Conceptual Approach to Publishing and Editorial Design I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Brower

The focus of this course is to explore how to reach beyond accepted expectations and create work that surprises not only the viewer but the creator as well. How do you wed typography, imagery and concept to communicate fresh ideas, create atmosphere, convey information and create work that is lasting and memorable? Are you best serving the client by using the medium as a means of self-expression? While the main focus will be on book jackets and covers, projects will cover a broader range: interior book design, magazine cover and layout, op-ed illustration, and more.

Experimental Book Art I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Gianakos

In this course, students will draw upon their own creativity and vision to produce projects. The experimental and conceptual aspects of creating books will be stressed. We will explore various production ideas from the one-of-a-kind book to mass-produced books. Instruction will be given on a wide range of printing techniques—typography, binding, embossing, ink selection, paper die cutting—which will then be integrated with the projects. There will be field trips illuminating the creation and production of books. Historical information, including the Bauhaus, constructivist and De Stijl movements, which were so important in the evolution of contemporary books, will be studied. Students will be required to create several books. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3521-A (previously GDD-3511, first semester)Editorial Design I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Koppel

Through a survey of the general principles of editorial design, this course will explore magazine and book cover design, page layout, typography, thumbnails and comps. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3521-B (previously GDD-3511, first semester)Editorial Design I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Torello

Check the newsstands and you'll see dozens of glossy covers, each with its own look—good, bad, cool, corporate and everything between. In this course, you will learn the fundamentals of editorial design: meeting the needs of the writers and editors, adhering to a magazine's unique appearance, creating layouts that are both stimulating to the eye and easy to read, incorporating typography into design, creating eye-catching covers, and anything else you need to know for a career in magazine or book publishing.

GDD-3521-C (previously GDD-3511, first semester)Editorial Design I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: L. Stauss, J. Glendenning

See GDD-3521-A for course description.

GDD-3521-D (previously GDD-3511, first semester)Editorial Design I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Best

This course is a survey of the general principles of editorial design. It will examine magazine design, page layout and typography, with an emphasis on story concept and experimental solutions. Students will produce an entire magazine prototype. This course will be held in the computer lab; interactive critiques are included. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3521-E (previously GDD-3511, first semester)Editorial Design I

Thursday 6:30-9:10

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Austopchuk

The study of the components of an editorial package—cover, table of contents, departments and features—will be the focus of this course. Biweekly assignments will entail the redesign of these components of various publications, culminating, in the second semester, in the creation of a complete and original publication. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3522 (previously GDD-3511, second semester)Editorial Design II

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see the corresponding sections of GDD-3521, Editorial Design I, for course descriptions.

GDD-3611-A (previously GDD-3527, first semester)Designing with Typography I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Poulin

The use of typography as the basic material of communication is the premise of this course. Typography will take the place of the image, design and illustration or photograph to convey a message. The study of proportions, character of type-faces and the main variables of the letterform will be explored with the use of type in posters, book jackets and newspaper and magazine page layout, stressing the importance of typography in visual communication. Note: Open to junior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-B (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Williams

By now, you've mastered the basics of "good type": kerning, leading, serif and sans serif, classic fonts, display fonts and so on. It is time to make any typeface work for you. From faddish fonts to the finest faces, typography will yield to your command. This course encourages experimentation in any medium. The objective is to communicate your ideas using typography as part of your visual language. You will conceive and execute five projects worthy of, and appropriate to, your aesthetic. Mix faces, alter them, create your own—make a statement, take a stand, change the world! This is your moment in history; let your imagination run free. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-C (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Goldberg

This advanced design and type course will focus on working through each piece to create portfolio-quality work. Assignments will include book jacket design, CD packaging, retail identity, posters, newspapers and magazines, and are geared to direct students toward broadening their visual language by solving problems that encourage them to attend the theater, read books, listen to music, visit museums, and so on. Students will use New York City as a canvas to discover one of the best, brightest and most inspired creative collections in the world. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-D (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Samara

Students will explore various organizing design principles, including grid-based approaches and organic, intuitive methods of structuring typographic material to a design problem. The first semester will focus on the typographic grid and students will engage in designing a single project—clarifying the information presented, developing appropriate grid(s) and refining their articulation to arrive at a solution that is clear and rigorous in its use of grid structures. In the second semester, the same project will be approached from a conceptual perspective, investigating methods such as deconstruction, temporal and organic organization and layering. The result will be two versions of the same project that display opposing characteristics while effectively communicating the content. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-E (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Tuesday 7:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Kaye

Type as an essential design element will be demonstrated through assignments that emphasize the role of two-dimensional design and page composition in creating dynamic typography. Effective type design will be explored through applying the basic principles of design to type layout. We will discuss the letterform and the aesthetic considerations involved in using type effectively and appropriately. Students will produce several completed pieces by the end of the semester. Note: Open to junior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-F (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Condak

GDD-3611-J (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Martin

This advanced course concerns itself with developing students' typographic skills beyond the basics of layout and hierarchy and into a deeper understanding of verbal/visual dynamics. Rigorous exploration of the grid as an organizing principle, the nuances of detail and treatment, and the interplay of word and image will provide a springboard into deconstruction, abstraction and conceptual overlay. Students will investigate expanded book structures, information design and the potential of typographic image in environmental and time-based projects. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-K (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

Designing with Typography I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Sahre

Through explorations of typographic messages, this course will focus on enhancing each student's sensitivity and technique in typographic design. Legibility, sequencing, unpredictability, an understanding of aesthetic composition of typographic form and meaning, and the use of the grid will be investigated. The development of a critical judgment about typography will be emphasized. Note: Open to junior graphic design majors only.

GDD-3611-L (previously GDD-3527, first semester)

GDD-3617-A (previously GDD-3531, first semester)

Alphabets and Typeface Design I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Benguiat

Typeface design (alphabet fonts) has continually been the mainstay of the graphic artist. Every aspect of how-to-do-it methods—with or without the use of computers—will be addressed, “imagination included.” Students will prepare a typeface design for personal use or submission to distributors of new font designs.

GDD-3618-A (previously GDD-3531, second semester)

Alphabets and Typeface Design II

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Benguiat

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-3617 for course description.

GDD-3626-A

Advanced Type I: The Perfect Paragraph

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Mehl

This advanced course will explore how type is used in book, editorial, Web and environmental design. Students will learn how to typeset a perfect paragraph, titles, design and use a grid, and how to compose with text and images. Projects will range from classical to experimental. Prerequisite: A working knowledge of Adobe InDesign or QuarkXPress.

GDD-3627-A

Advanced Type II: The Perfect Paragraph

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Mehl

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-3626 for course description.

GDD-3651-A (previously GDD-4363, first semester)

The Project Class I

Tuesday 3:20-6:10

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Giraldi

This is your project. This is your class. It's where you will make your film on digital tape. It's where you will work with professional people to experience an intriguing new world of artistic knowledge. The course is an exercise in making a film, but is not an exercise in itself. Thirty weeks and I will expect a four- to-five-minute film from each of you. A personal, independent film made for screening purposes. In its entirety, in its integrity, in its creativity. Note: Open to junior graphic design majors only. Registration for this course is by invitation from the department chair.

GDD-3652-A (previously GDD-4363, second semester)

The Project Class II

Tuesday 3:20-6:10

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Giraldi

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-3651 for course description.

PHD-3806-A

Advertising, Graphic Design and Photography

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: TBA

The purpose of this course is to give photography, graphic design and advertising majors the opportunity to work on projects together as they would in the professional community. The course will be collaborative and assignment driven, and will be taught by instructors from each discipline. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors, and junior and senior photography majors only.

Guerrilla Advertising I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Anselmo

A great print book still won't guarantee you the hot creative job. Today you need to surprise people with more than just a great print book. The goal and focus of this course will be to execute concepts in completely new ways so you won't be competing with anyone else's book. Today's best creative people want to be surprised—not just with great concepts, but also with creative media executions commonly referred to as “guerrilla advertising.” People are used to seeing TV spots and print, but those mediums can never surprise people like a medium that does not yet exist. (A medium that's always changing because people are thinking in ways they never have before.) Great concepts executed in unconventional ways don't lose their luster. This is not an advertising course where we put work on the wall and everyone criticizes it. Throughout the semester, students will be given a visual history of some of the most memorable guerrilla/alternate media and print concepts ever produced. The course is more about inventing than creating; print ads will still be developed and, in most cases, will present themselves in the search to find the next unexpected way of executing an idea. Note: Open to advertising and graphic design majors only.

GDD-4510-A (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Rodrigues

Strong design is not decoration. It stems from a clear understanding of the assignment and creates a fresh, expertly unique solution that is communicated visually. To arrive at this solution, you have to be open to new ways of thinking, experimentation, association and play—and venture into new territory. This course sets out to challenge preconceived notions of concept and style and tries to find a new approach to each assignment in order to create a one-of-a-kind, intelligent and visually rewarding portfolio.

GDD-4510-B (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Rotman

Intensive and fast-paced, this course includes many open-ended and self-initiated projects. Through your work, you will be strongly encouraged to shape and determine your subjective aesthetic or style. This course will provide the means for creating an intelligent, progressive and visually compelling portfolio. Note: Open to senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-4510-C (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Williams

You are both creator and entrepreneur. You and your art are inseparable. This course is designed to help you gather it all together and put it in a “box.” Please come prepared with inspiration, the willingness to work day and night, and a vision of who you want to be. You are a “contender.” Let’s make the vision real.

GDD-4510-D (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: B. Palacio-Gomez, A. Vit

This course will deal with the making and completion of a graphic design portfolio consisting of highly finished work that includes editorial design, CD design, package design, book jacket design, conceptual design and various other disciplines.

GDD-4510-E (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Austopchuk

The goal of this course is to develop a strong generalist portfolio in order to secure the job that a student is hoping to acquire. During the course of the year, weekly assignments will yield approximately 12 solid portfolio projects and may include corporate identity, magazine design, book cover and poster design, CD design, Web site design, as well as self-promotion, personal presentation and résumé design. The course is structured to let students develop an individual approach to their own design style.

GDD-4510-F (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Drummond

This course will deal with the making and completion of a graphic design portfolio consisting of highly finished work that includes editorial design, CD design, package design, book jacket design, conceptual design and other various disciplines.

GDD-4510-G (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Leban

Your portfolio should represent you as a communicator with a distinct identity; it should reflect what you love to do so that you may increase your chances of doing what you love. You'll be encouraged to be entrepreneurial and choose the subject(s) you want to explore, and create an original presentation-quality project. What you develop could turn into a product, an exhibition, a book ready for publication, a service, a Web site or a new category that is uniquely suited to your work. Note: May be taken with another portfolio course.

GDD-4510-H (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I

Thursday 7:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Kaye

See GDD-4510-B for course description.

GDD-4510-J (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Books and Related Material

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Gianakos

Your portfolio can benefit from the inclusion of visionary works. Achieving your creative potential is the primary goal of this course. Students will create all types of fine art and commercial books, as well as announcements, pop-ups, CD booklets, brochures, presentation kits, image identity and self-promotion materials, from concept through production. We will also examine a variety of 20th-century art movements and their influences on the contemporary art scene. The final presentation will express your work in an individual and unique way. Note: May be taken with another portfolio course.

GDD-4510-K (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Editorial

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Best

This course is for students who have already had one year of editorial design. We will meet at the instructor's office; this will enable students to get a firsthand look at how a major consumer magazine works, including printing signatures, advertising placement, photo editing and four-color corrections. Each student will create two highly professional magazines from the business plan to promotional design, finishing with a Web site devoted to the magazine. Note: May be taken with another portfolio course. This course will be held at the instructor's studio.

GDD-4510-L (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: The Typographic Portfolio

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Fili

This is a course for type lovers. The history, aesthetics and nuances of type and typography will be stressed in a program that emphasizes the fast-growing discipline of food packaging and labeling, restaurant identity and menu design. We will work on real projects with real clients. Ultimately, the goal of this course is to showcase typographic expertise in a wide variety of products. Note: This course will be held at the instructor's studio.

GDD-4510-M (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Motion Graphics Portfolio

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Metzner

Utilizing Apple Final Cut Pro and Adobe After Effects to create a new visual media, students will design station promos and film titles. The goal of this course is to step out of the box of traditional thinking and design by breaking the rules and codes to create a future for graphic design that moves, talks and dances to music. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of After Effects and Final Cut Pro, or instructor's permission. Note: May be taken with another portfolio course.

GDD-4510-N (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Motion Graphics Portfolio

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Metzner

See GDD-4510-M for course description.

GDD-4510-P (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Three-Dimensional Portfolio

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. O'Callaghan

This course will deal with the making of a three-dimensional portfolio consisting of highly finished samples from the redesign of a game board to the creation of a light fixture. Using various methods and materials, this course will allow you to produce personal yet professional work that demonstrates your talents and that can appeal to various design markets such as industrial, stage, product, packaging and toy design.

GDD-4510-R (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Web Site Design Portfolio

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: P. Ciccotto, G. Greenwood

This is an intensive Web design critique course aimed toward conceptualizing and creating diverse, advanced Web site designs that are production ready. Motion graphics and animation storyboarding for the Web will be covered. Extra technical assistance in HTML and Macromedia Flash will be available. While the course is organized to focus on design for the Web and critique of said design, Web technologies will also be covered to give students an understanding of their potential uses. Advanced and motivated students will have an opportunity to take a Web site design project from concept to completion. Note: Open to junior and senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-4510-S (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Alternative Design

Monday and Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: P. Sahre, H. Yampolsky

The development of a portfolio through the exploration of individual process is the goal of this course. Students will be asked to identify consistent themes of interest in their work and develop a thesis topic that will provide a framework for projects throughout the course. A document of this work will then be developed into a portfolio. Silkscreen as well as alternative means of production will be encouraged. This portfolio course will expand the definition of graphic design and will include environmental design and video.

GDD-4510-T (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Alternative Design

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Morrisey

The purpose of this course is to cultivate a portfolio through observation of personal design process. You will pinpoint consistent themes in your work in order to develop a topic that serves as the basis of your portfolio. You are the content maker. You must research, sketch and edit in order to drive content both visually and in terms of writing. Excellence in typography as well as a solid interest in creating imagery (drawing, silkscreen, photography, collage) and, even more so, in creating content—are a must. Note: Open to senior graphic design majors only.

GDD-4510-V (previously GDD-4010, first semester)

Graphic Design Portfolio I: Alternative Design

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lee

With a strong emphasis on conceptual design, this course will help students develop strategies to find their ideal jobs and prepare for life after graduation. Students will design and build an online portfolio and become familiar with the amazing possibilities of communication through the Internet. Presentation skills will also be addressed.

SENIOR PROJECT COURSES

These courses are intensive one- and two-semester offerings in specialized areas. Projects are geared toward additional diversity for student portfolios.

TWO-SEMESTER SENIOR PROJECT COURSES

Students who wish to register for the following two-semester courses must enroll for both semesters.

GDD-4601-A (previously GDD-4122, first semester)

Broadcast Design I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Black

Providing a foundation in broadcast design, this course will explore motion and the process of creating it, using basic design elements and techniques drawn from traditional design theories. Initial assignments are simple and process oriented, and focus on maintaining a level of experimentation. More complex, conceptual pieces incorporating full-motion video will follow. Commercial advertising and promotion, film, video art and photography will be surveyed for reference and inspiration. An overview of special effects, compositing and video-editing software will be presented; however, the course will be intensely focused on design. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

GDD-4602-A (previously GDD-4122, second semester)

Broadcast Design II

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Black

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-4601 for course description.

GDD-4611-A (previously GDD-4364, first semester)

Urban Design I

Monday 3:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Victore

Run as a design studio, this course will apply graphic design to the New York City landscape. Using social and cultural themes pertinent to life in New York, we will test the power of graphic design on a one-to-one level. Formats will vary from posters to flyers and any other media available. Prerequisite: A working knowledge of the silkscreen process, or must be enrolled in a silkscreen course for the semester. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only. A portfolio review is required in order to be officially enrolled. Students who are not concurrently enrolled in a printmaking course must register for FGD-Access, Printmaking Workshop Access.

GDD-4612-A (previously GDD-4364, second semester)

Urban Design II

Monday 3:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Victore

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-4611 for course description.

GDD-4623-A (previously GDD-4367, first semester)

The Real World I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Heller

Learn to invent your future. In life outside of school, you don't get to be successful by waiting for a good assignment. You have to create your own opportunities and there are no arbitrary boundaries between design, advertising, filmmaking or interactive media. How do you find clients and learn about what they need? How do you come up with concepts that you can deliver? In this course, students will work for real clients, developing creative ideas for their businesses, and then present them. It's part think tank, part entrepreneurship, part theater and part creative genius. We will identify companies in entertainment, technology, stock photography and film, paper manufacturing and fashion. As a group, we will discuss our insights about these industries and learn how to get help from experts that can add to our knowledge. Students will develop concepts that they believe are something their chosen company needs. Working both independently and as a group, you will test your concepts, develop a presentation and go before a client to sell your idea. You will have access to writers, marketing experts and sustainability experts as needed, and a guaranteed audience with the decision-maker for the client you have chosen. Note: Open to senior graphic design majors only. Registration for this course is by invitation by the department chair.

ONE-SEMESTER SENIOR PROJECT COURSES

GDD-4701 (previously GDD-4222)

Production Studio for the Graphic Designer

Friday 12:00-2:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Wahler

Today's graphic artist is required to have technical knowledge and production ability. This course offers a unique opportunity to work on-site at A to A Graphic Services, a full-service production studio, and receive complete instruction in the skills necessary to produce and manufacture finished portfolio pieces. Using Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop, and design layout programs such as Adobe InDesign, we'll examine all aspects of production as they relate to print, including correct document construction, color space and color systems, separations, trapping, preflighting, print production and paper considerations. Assignments will be produced in the studio using various output devices, from ink-jet proofers and large-format digital printers to Scitex film. Students will be able to produce their work combining digital output, transfers, direct imaging, embossing and three-dimensional packaging construction. The opportunity to experiment and work with digital and analog print production tools will be an invaluable experience. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

The Art of Retouching: How to Lie for a Living

Wednesday 6:00-8:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: K. Lotto

This course explores the fundamental tools of the fashion and advertising industries best kept secret: the skilled and creative high-end "retoucher." Using current advertising campaigns and trends as source material, you'll work on images from photo shoot to final print. Learn to evaluate and problem-solve an image through file preparation, intricate alterations, compositing and color work. A key focus is developing a "retoucher's" eye and a core set of skills—from people shaping the industry today. Discover what tools to use and how and when to use them. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Designing a Business

Tuesday 12:00-2:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: L. Singer

If you have an entrepreneurial spirit, this course is for you. It will be a comprehensive experience for anyone who wants to learn the skills it takes to make a business idea become a business reality. We will cover the steps to bring an idea to the marketplace: defining the concept for a business or product of your choice, designing the prototype and corporate identity for your company, writing a business plan and the basic legal requirements to open a business and protect your intellectual property. The final step will be the art of the pitch. Guests with various expertise will offer their guidance and input.

Senior Type Design

Wednesday 12:00-2:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: H. Condak

This course is for seniors interested in further developing their individual sensibility and type design proficiency. From information to concept to the evolution of a design, type will be the source of impetus to a cohesive design solution. We will rigorously pursue the key areas for a successful outcome of projects: a strong sense of composition, the elements of typography, aesthetic principles and visual experimentation. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only.

Branding: Communication Design

Wednesday 6:00-8:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Zeppetelli

What is a brand? We will examine the basic principles of corporate identity and develop a clear understanding of the process of creating brands. This course will concentrate on the steps designers take to create a consistent brand, such as identifying the organization's personality or essence, designing a visual identifier or logo, creating the visual elements that support the new brand, developing its visual voice through multiple applications—print collateral, Web, packaging and environmental. Students will complete projects that explore a range of issues and applications. Exercises, group critiques, research, writing and presentations will be included.

Creative Leadership in the Business World

One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: D. Millman

The good news: We are now living in what Business Week has named a "creative economy." The bad news: Now, more than ever, design will be asked to deliver a return on investment and measured performance in the marketplace. How can you truly quantify your talent and develop strategic and competitive intelligence? How can you quantify meaningful differentiation in a world already filled with design firms, creative strategists and brand gurus? In this course, students will learn how to develop a leadership position in a world of constant innovation. Topics will include: How to create a meaningful philosophy that can guide your design practice; how to create more persuasive, honest and effective design presentations; how to sell design services in the "real" world with more confidence and success. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors only. This course will meet at Sterling Brands in the Empire State Building, 350 Fifth Avenue (34th Street), Suite 1714.

Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course. *Note: AHD-1010-A is open to all departments. All other sections of Survey of World Art I are reserved for students in their foundation year of study. Foundation-year students must register for the section of this course that corresponds with their foundation program. AHD-1030

Visuality and Modern Art I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

This is the first of a two-part course that will examine the interconnections among modern art, modernity and visuality. Topics will include the historical development of "modern" vision, the impact of photography and film on visualization, and the decline of realism and the emergence of abstraction. The goal of the course is to bring together historical, philosophical, scientific and technological studies of visuality and relate them directly to "modern" artistic practice. Note: Open to Visual and Critical Studies majors only.

AHD-1035

Visuality and Modern Art II

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1030 for course description.

AHD-1040-HP

History and Theory of Modern Art I

Tuesday 10:00-11:25

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

Intended to link the visual with the theoretical and the historical, this course will survey the relationship of art to its changing composition of ideas in a globalized context. Topics include: the contested concepts of the "modern," modernism and primitivism; the emergence of abstraction; the invention of photography, collage and the found object. We will trace the development of modern art in the 19th and 20th centuries. As a model for analyzing contemporary practice, the conceptual structure of the avant-garde will be studied historically in this course. Note: This course is open only to students enrolled in the Honors Program.

AHD-1045-HP

History and Theory of Modern Art II

Tuesday 10:00-11:25

Spring semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1040 for course description. Note: For computer art and fine arts majors, successful completion of AHD-1040 and AHD-1045 will exempt them from AHD-2020 and AHD-2025, Modern Art Through Pop I and II.

AHD-1050

Introduction to Film History I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

Serving as an introduction to theatrical motion pictures, this course will examine its nascence along with the silent era and early sound. While American narrative film will be emphasized, examples of world cinema will also be screened. Political, cultural and aesthetic history will form a background for viewing selected films—both important works and more transitory ones—to gain an understanding of how the medium developed and its cultural impact. *Note: AHD-1050-A is open to all departments. All other sections of this course are open to film majors only. Foundation-year students must register for the section of AHD-1050 that corresponds with their film foundation program. AHD-1080

History of Animation I: Traditional to Digital

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Beckerman

This course explores milestones in animation, from pioneers like Walt Disney, Norman McLaren and Lotte Reiniger, to present-day digital innovators. Along the way we'll consider a range of techniques, including line-and-cel, glass painting, stop motion, clay animation, morphs and 3D characters. We'll also see how—and why—animation deserves to be seen as perhaps the most complex art form. Note: AHD-1080-A is open to all departments. All other sections of this course are open to film majors only. Foundation-year students must register for the section of AHD-1080 that corresponds with their film foundation program. These students should refer to the Film, Video and Animation Department section of this book for information on foundation-year requirements.

AHD-2003-AThe Splendors of European Animation

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Beckerman

There is more to animation than Mickey Mouse, Bugs Bunny or Bart Simpson. In this course, we will explore the glory of European animation through screenings of rare interviews with some of Europe's best animators. Learn how Ladislav Starewitch created his puppets, how Lotte Reiniger produced the first animated feature in 1926, and why European animation blossomed after World War II. We will examine how Bordo Dovnikovic, Yuri Norstein and Piotr Dumala, among others, created their stunning films as we view animated works from 1900 to the present from Great Britain, the Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Italy, Romania, Russia, Sweden and Yugoslavia. We will also examine techniques developed by European Oscar winners and discuss their influence on American animation.

AHD-2010-HPVisual Perspectives of the Premodernist World

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

The history of art serves as a visual record of the history of ideas. This course will trace the changing nature of representation in painting, sculpture and architecture from the Paleolithic to the early 19th century. Focus will be placed on the rise of civilizations in the Greco-Roman world as well as their roots in non-Western cultures such as those in Asia and Africa. Class discussions, slide presentations and museum visits are a part of this course. Topics include art and ritual, idealism and beauty, iconoclasm, the grotesque and theories of God. Note: This course is open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program. At the completion of the second-year Honors Program, students will receive three art history credits. Successful completion of AHD-2010 will exempt students from AHD-1010 and AHD-1015, Survey of World Art I and II.

AHD-2020-AModern Art Through Pop I

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Lorance

This course maps the major movements and tendencies in modern art beginning with the realism of Courbet in the 19th century and continuing through pop art in the 20th century, including impressionism, postimpressionism, symbolism, fauvism, cubism, futurism, expressionism, surrealism, abstract expressionism and pop art. The art will be discussed in terms of the individual artist's intent as well as in terms of historical events and cultural issues at the times in which they were created. Museum field trips are an important part of the course.

AHD-2020-BModern Art Through Pop I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Avgikos

This course is a survey of art from the emergence of "modernism" through the radical transformations in established modes of art-making of the postwar period. We will begin with a consideration of impressionism as a response to the style and structure of the French Academy. A study of postimpressionism, expressionism, cubism, futurism and constructivism follows, culminating in a discussion of many artists' return to neoclassical styles in the post-World War I years. The second semester will examine Dada and surrealism and the growing impact of European art on the American scene, covering the development of abstract expressionism and pop art. Close attention will be paid to the social, political and economic contexts in which artistic styles and forms have materialized, grown or changed from the mid-19th century to the present.

AHD-2020-CModern Art Through Pop I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Martegani

This course is designed as an examination of the major work, figures and critical issues in the period from approximately 1860 through the 1960s. It will begin with a discussion of the issues of modernity and modernism and proceed chronologically from Manet and the impressionists through the cubists in the first semester, continuing from the Dadaists and surrealists through pop art in the spring. The narrative of this survey will frequently be slowed to focus attention on a particular artist's practice or on concepts such as "primitivism" or the avant-garde. We will draw on a variety of critical methodologies (feminism, formalism, etc.) to analyze works of art in their sociopolitical contexts and art institutional frameworks (museums, galleries, art magazines, textbooks, film).

AHD-2020-DModern Art Through Pop I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wooster

This is the first part of a two-semester survey which maps the major modern art movements, beginning with realism and impressionism and continuing through the innovations of cubism and futurism. Students will explore the pictorial, social, political and historical aspects of modernist movements by analyzing and comparing specific paintings and sculptures. Modern masters to be studied include Courbet, Manet, Monet, Cassatt, Munch, Rodin, Matisse, Picasso and Braque.

AHD-2020-EModern Art Through Pop I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. O'Connor

This course surveys the major artists and artistic movements from the mid-19th century to the present. Cultural production is considered in relation to historical events and social, political and economic issues. Although the framework of the course is chronological, the focus is thematic; we will examine the meaning of such concepts as modernism, the avant-garde, formalism, aestheticism and postmodernism.

AHD-2020-FModern Art Through Pop I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Macapia

This course traces the evolution of modernism and modernist art from Manet and impressionism through major art movements of the 20th century, including cubism, futurism, constructivism, Dada, expressionism, the Bauhaus, surrealism, abstract expressionism and pop art. The work will be discussed in terms of the individual artist's intent as well as in terms of the historical events and cultural issues of the times in which they were created. Field trips to museums and galleries will be included.

AHD-2020-GModern Art Through Pop I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Martegani

Tracing the development of modern and contemporary art from the 19th through the 20th centuries, this survey examines and interprets visual images. Beginning with the rise of photography and its impact on painting and sculpture, the visual practices, procedures and iconography of the realists, romantics, impressionists, postimpressionists, symbolists, fauves, cubists and futurists will be studied. How do the theories affecting the rise of modern art and the artist impact contemporary practice? How does aesthetic practice represent the philosophy of its time? What social and cultural concerns shape the history of art? The second semester commences with German expressionism, moves through the Russian avant-garde, De Stijl, Dada and surrealism, the Bauhaus, European and American art between the world wars, abstract expressionism and pop. The course continues to underscore the transformation of art from the representational to the abstract, to the theoretical and conceptual in the 20th century.

AHD-2020-HModern Art Through Pop I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Goldberg

The first semester begins with a focus on the pivotal figure of Manet, followed by the emergence of the impressionist aesthetic, considered in the works of Monet, Renoir, Pissarro, Degas and Rodin. An examination of postimpressionism (Seurat and neoimpressionist followers, Cezanne, Gauguin and the symbolists, and Van Gogh) will lead us to the rise of expressionism, explored in Germany and France with a special focus on the fauves and Die Brücke; then, a close study of the creation of cubism by Picasso and Braque, and Italian futurism. The evolution of abstract art is also traced with emphasis on Kandinsky, Mondrian and Malevich. The second semester begins with an examination of Dada and surrealism. American art since 1945 will also be studied, focusing on abstract expressionism and pop art.

AHD-2020-JModern Art Through Pop I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

This course presents an introduction to the major movements and tendencies in modern art produced in Europe and the United States from the mid-19th century through the mid-20th century, including realism, impressionism, postimpressionism, symbolism, fauvism, cubism, futurism, expressionism, Dadaism, surrealism, abstract expressionism, and pop art. Topics to be addressed include: the invention of photography, collage and the found object; the contested concepts of the "modern"; modernism and primitivism; the emergence of abstraction.

AHD-2020-KModern Art Through Pop I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

This course is concerned with those styles and schools that have dominated 20th-century art. Attention will be paid to the cultural and political context in which that art appeared, how it was received and the range of its influence. The art activity of the moment will be woven through a survey of the major stylistic trends (impressionism, surrealism, abstract expressionism, pop). Emphasis will be placed on the development and application of critical criteria.

AHD-2068-BThe Language of Film

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Fee: $50 per semester

Instructor: A. Sinha

Structured as an introduction to the basic terms and concepts of cinematic language, this course will explore the vocabulary, grammar, sign and syntax of film through screenings, lectures and discussion. Feature-length narratives as well as animated, experimental and documentary shorts will be addressed, with an emphasis on examining the function of the film as a formal construct—the basic principles of film form. We will also pay particular attention to the techniques of the film medium along with the questions of types and genres of films. The course is analytical but with a thoroughly pragmatic bent: to map the extraordinary diversity of contemporary cinematic practice in relation to editing, sound, cinematography, framing, genre, auteur and narration. Note: This course is cross-listed with AHD-2068-A.

AHD-2070International Cinema

One semester: 3 credits

Fee: $50 per semester

Designed to facilitate an understanding of classic and contemporary international cinema, this course is dedicated to the study of films that have adopted a different aesthetic framework from Hollywood. We will discuss themes, ideologies, forms, the impact of history—both political and social—and the background stories of the filmmakers. Screenings will be drawn from the cinema of Mira Nair (India), Jean-Luc Godard (France), Andrei Tarkovsky (Russia), Federico Fellini (Italy)

Carl Dreyer (Denmark), Luis Buñuel (Spain/Mexico) and Peter Weir (Australia), among others. Note: The course sections below are cross-listed with AHD-2070-A and AHD-2070-B.

History of Advertising

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Warlick

A survey of creative trends in print and broadcast advertising, from late 19th-century French poster design to award-winning commercials of today is the focus of this course. We will examine early predecessors of brand awareness in American advertising and the creative revolution of the Bernbach era in the 1960s. Students will look at what works and what has been forgotten. The second wave of creative work produced in the 1980s and 1990s will focus on American and international advertising recognized in The One Show. Students will be required to complete several short papers.

History of Graphic Design: A Survey of Graphic Design Styles from the Late 19th Century to the Present

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on the various graphic design movements: from the art nouveau movement and Jugendstil to De Stijl and Dada; from the impact of the Bauhaus to the fervor of the streamlined '30s; from Swiss International style of the '50s to the psychedelia of the '60s and on to the punk '70s and postmodern '80s. We will also examine the subjects, themes and relationship of the designer to the period. Using examples of the period as a focal point, the evolving design styles and their relationship to politics, commerce, social mores, technology and pop culture will be explored. From the beautiful to the ridiculous, the ephemeral aspects of design will be studied. Guest speakers will feature individuals who have created important design work of the periods discussed.

History of Typography

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Shaw

The history of typography traces the development and use of Western letterforms from inspirational Roman capitals through the invention of type to the present. Typefaces will be examined as products of culture and technology as well as examples of changes in aesthetic ideas of form. Typography will be explored from its roots in manuscript practice to its evolution in books, advertising, posters and ephemera. There will be an emphasis on how typography functions as visual language.

AHD-2188-A

History of Drawing

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Werner

In practice as in theory, the concept of drawing contains two, somewhat contradictory, narratives. The first is the theory and practice of European drawing in the period between the late Middle Ages and the French Revolution, the time when

"drawing" became a clearly defined genre. The second is the infinite number of variations in the practice of this genre, such as cartoon, tattoo, graffiti, architectural drawing, "painterly" painting. This course spotlights those aspects of the history of drawing most relevant to present-day artists and art historians—history of techniques, problems of connoisseurship, evolution of theory and systems of representation. We will analyze concepts that include "calligraphic," "linear" and "spontaneity" in an historical context, as much to understand where we are going as where we have been. Note: The first session of this course will meet at SVA. Subsequent sessions will meet at the College or will be held at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

AHD-2194-A

Performance Then and Now

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Oehlich

Beginning with the modernist movements in Zurich, Berlin, Cologne and Paris, this course will then go on to focus on performance art of the 1960s and '70s. Using examples from performance, film, written text and photography, we will discuss how the body was used as a reactionary figure with which to circumvent the status quo. For instance, we will trace the influence of World War I photography (and its portrayal of stereotypical military figures) on Dada photomontage artists like Hannah Höch and Raul Hausmann (who literally cut-up and disfigured the human body). We will also examine the work of the surrealists and the various ways that artists such as André Breton, Salvador Dalí, Claude Cahun and Jean Cocteau manipulated and presented the human body in their variant mediums. Psychoanalytic, feminist and postmodern "body theory" will be resourced in order to understand the historical precedents for contemporary performance art.

AHD-2213-A

Film Noir

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

This course is an examination of one of the most enduring pictorial and narrative styles of American sound films. Named by French film critics in the 1950s, its roots are found in American and German silent films. Influenced, too, by the French poetic realism of the '30s, film noir reached its zenith in the postwar America of the '40s and '50s. Films like Body Heat, Blade Runner and Blue Velvet pay homage to the noir style. An understanding of American film is not possible without a grounding in this mysterious, sinister, graphically vigorous movie style.

AHD-2226-A

American Art: The Rise of Pop Culture

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Goldberg

Beginning in the 1920s through Neo-Dada of the 1950s, this course will examine the rise of American pop art and its focus on consumer culture. Discussions will include an exploration of pop art's European antecedents; the movement's zenith in the 1960s with artists such as Warhol, Lichtenstein and Oldenburg; pop manifestations in Europe; commodity art of the 1980s and pop art's lasting influence.

AHD-2233

Tribal Art: The Mythic Eye

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Arctander

A survey of the art created within the specific special context of traditional cultures. The art of traditional cultures will be examined in terms of formal visual and material elements and aesthetic quality within Western understanding as well as the meanings and implications of art within its own culture. Areas of investigation will include tribes of Africa, Oceania and the Native American Indian. Actual art objects will be presented as well as music and recent videos of ritual, ceremony, dance and interviews with tribal people.

AHD-2254-AThe Arts of Ancient Egypt and the Near East

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Kawami

This course will survey the art of the peoples who inhabited the great cultural centers of Egypt, Mesopotamia and Iran from their earliest appearances in the fifth millennium BCE to the conquest by the Greeks under Alexander the Great in the fourth century BCE. We will focus on the stylistic and iconographic developments of the cultures and civilizations that flourished in the area and will emphasize the continuity across the millennia of artistic imagery, forms and techniques.

AHD-2258-AThe Silk Road and Islamic Art

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lundquist

This course combines the thousand-year history of the art and cultural exchange that constitutes the Silk Road, including a focus on Islamic art and architecture. We will examine the interchange that produced Buddhist, Christian, Manichaean, Iranian, Sogdian and Islamic art along the 7,000 mile stretch of commercial routes that connected China with the West, across Central Asia. The major developments in Islamic art and architecture, especially the great Islamic dynasties of the Middle East and Central Asia, will also be presented.

AHD-2261-AWhat is Latin American Art?

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Stellweg

Beginning with an introduction to the ideas that have typified the art from Latin America, this course will explore how the European encounter with the Americas' vast indigenous cultural models radically altered, transformed and revolutionized art on both continents. Latin America's cultural interaction with European and U.S. cultural centers, the mutual confrontations of high art and popular culture and relationships between Euro-American and local formal styles will also be addressed. Moreover, the course will study contemporary artists from the United States and Europe in terms of their connections to pre-Columbian and Colonial urban art and culture. Exploring the pendulum relationship, we will cover Latin American modernism from 1900 to 1945 and show how ideas and influences traveled back and forth across the Atlantic, enriching the art of the entire Western Hemisphere—beyond traditional boundaries and geographic borders. Emphasis will be placed on the artistic production of certain countries, such as Mexico, Brazil, Argentina and Cuba. Discussions will focus on how artists both contributed to and responded to nationalism and 'indigenism' while forging unique contributions to international modernism. The effects of colonialism and modernization on the art from Latin America will also be discussed.

AHD-2266-AAfrican Art

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Becker

This course relates the African influence on contemporary art forms and cultures of North and South American and the Caribbean, to familiarize students with the concept of cross-cultural experience. We will trace the African influence from its origins in transatlantic trade and the plantation system. Looking at weavings, textiles, flags, quilts, writings, religious artifacts, sculpture and other art forms, we will make direct comparisons between the function of pattern, iconography, symbolism, magic and ideographic writings. Emphasis will be placed on cultural transformation and its historical, economic and political contexts.

AHD-2277-AChinese, Japanese and Korean Art

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Cheng

This course will concentrate on major epochs of Chinese and Japanese art, from their beginnings to modern trends of the 20th century. The arts of Korea and other Asian countries will be touched on where relevant. Course activities include a museum trip and participation in a Japanese tea ceremony.

AHD-2299-AThe Art and Symbols of India and the Himalayas

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Cummins

This course examines the art of India and its extension into the Himalayas. It traces currents of religious belief and aesthetic preference through four millennia of Indian history, looking at temple architecture, sculpture and painting from many of South Asia's diverse regions.

AHD-2511-AThe Renaissance in Italy

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Edwards

This course will examine the distinctive character of the Renaissance in Italy beginning with the 14th century. We will concentrate on the three great centers—Florence, Rome and Venice—studying the works of artists from Giotto to Michelangelo. Topics to be discussed are the influence of antiquity, the emergence of the artist as a man of culture and genius, and the link between the artist and the sociopolitical setting in which he worked.

AHD-2544-AMannerism

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Rosenberg

We will begin with a discussion of Mannerism as a concept of wide-ranging implications for the history of 16th- and 20th-century art. Artists to be discussed include Michelangelo, Raphael, Leonardo, Titian, Del Sarto, Romano, Bronzino, Florentino, Pontorno, Parmigianino, Tintoretto and El Greco, as well as contemporary artists, photographers and filmmakers. Topics will include the controversy behind the term "Mannerism," the characteristics and analysis of various works of art, the social and political influences of the age, the sexual politics of the time period, and the relationship of Mannerism to modern and contemporary art. We will take several museum trips and view recent films.

AHD-2566-ABaroque Art

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Werner

The word "baroque" usefully describes a span of world culture, from circa 1600 to the French Revolution. In the realm of art, the concept of "baroque" can only be clarified by engaging directly with the artworks of that period. This course is based on direct examination and discussion of a series of artworks at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. We will begin by focusing on the major European artists who flourished between 1600 and 1660: Caravaggio, Rubens, Bernini, Velázquez, Rembrandt, Poussin. The course then considers baroque as a cultural and social phenomenon, and finds a consistent outlook in art from 1600 to the French Revolution in 1789, in which decorative arts, drawing and printmaking have their place, as do thinkers and artist-politicians like Descartes, Locke, Diderot and Rousseau. Finally, "baroque" was an international movement, perhaps the first global cultural movement. In this view, the arts and industries of China, Japan, Persia, South and North America have their place as well. Note: The first session of this course will meet at SVA. Subsequent sessions will be held at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

AHD-2633Graphic Imaging: A History

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Arctander

This is a course about concepts and ideas in graphic art. Such diverse areas as medieval illumination and modern animation, drawing and photography, illustration and collage will be presented in context. Related literature and music, as well as film and videos will be presented at each session.

AHD-2711-AArt and Music: A Comparative Analysis

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Beckley

The parallel development of visual and acoustic expression will be studied through the use of slides, recordings and videos. This development will be presented beginning with the Renaissance, through detailed analysis of key movements in the relationships between music and the visual arts. Selected scenarios of various periods and the motivations of the artists and composers will be presented along with contemporary references to painters, sculptors, performance artists and dancers. In addition, we will look at the growing noncommercial production of highly personalized music that is disseminated via the Internet. Finally, using exercises that analyze and alter current musical habits, students will consider the impact of music on their own artwork.

AHD-2722-AHistory of Comedy in Films

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

This course seeks to identify and define the fundamentals of comedy in film history through an in-depth study of the comedians, directors and films that make up the body of this genre. The course will establish the two basic forms of comedy—physical and situational—and, by extension, their subsets in spoof, slapstick, satire and the one-liner, from Chaplin to Woody Allen. The utilization of comedy as a method of commentary on and a release from geopolitical, social and cultural factors in the 20th century will provide the context and overview against which films as chronologically diverse as City Lights, Dr. Strangelove and Annie Hall are examined. Special attention will be given to those contemporary artists stretching the boundaries of and redefining traditional comedy (in SoHo's performance art scene, Chicago's Second City, Monty Python and Saturday Night Live) and their contribution through avant-garde theater techniques and improvisation to current film comedies.

AHD-2733-AExpressionism in Films

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Expressionism, briefly defined, is art in an agitated, anxious mode that distorts the normal appearance of things by presenting them through a perturbed consciousness. It is an art of exaggeration and intense subjectivity; giving primacy to the disquieted self, it characteristically portrays the world as a disrupted, menacing place. This course will examine various manifestations of expressionism and its influence in the art of film. The first flourishing of expressionism in films took place in Weimar Germany, and we will study several notable instances: Dr. Caligari, Fritz Lang, Murnau. We will consider how expressionism took root when transplanted to American films: in the American work of German filmmakers, in the gangster films, the horror film, film noir, etc. We will look into the work of such expressionist-influenced filmmakers as Alfred Hitchcock, Orson Welles, Ingmar Bergman, and the new Germans. We will also consider expressionism in the broader context of other art forms and of contemporary life.

AHD-2741-AWar and Religion in Art and Film

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Z. Amar

Using documentary and feature film productions, journalistic photographs as well as examples in painting and sculpture, this course will examine the cultures of war in relationship to the monotheistic religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam throughout the world. The representation of war and religion will be explored through the ideologies of blood, violence, vengeance and grace.

AHD-2808-AWho's Looking (The Function of Women in Film)

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

Film both reflects and generates ways in which women are seen and function in our culture. The development of feminist film criticism and theory has given women a perspective from which to challenge the male-dominated film industry. Women are fighting back as critics, scholars and filmmakers. This course examines, from a feminist position, films by such masters as Jean-Luc Godard, Alfred Hitchcock and Martin Scorsese and also takes a look at some current box-office biggies. Critical readings by Laura Mulvey, Meaghan Morris and Angela Carter will ground discussions of such issues as the relationship of aesthetics and politics, and the construction of gendered positions both on the screen and in the audience.

AHD-2811-AWomen Make Movies

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

During the 1970s, the feminist movement gave rise to a powerful wave of women filmmakers; they emerged on a worldwide scale, primarily in the independent sector. During the '80s, the number of women directors increased, and one or two even penetrated that patriarchal monolith—the Hollywood film industry. We will examine the past 30 years of women's filmmaking and also take a look at some of its antecedents. We will screen films by Chantal Akerman, Jane Campion, Julie Dash, Susan Seidelman, and others.

AHD-2817-AComic Criticism

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Singen

This course explores the history of comics as the gradual development of a set of narrative conventions, a particular iconography and a number of recurring themes, fantasies and preoccupations. Starting with a consideration of the different modes of storytelling that comic artists employ, we will discuss the relationships between comics and other genres of entertainment, such as cinema, vaudeville and magic lantern shows. Other topics will include: the difference between national comic traditions (American, European, Japanese); specific types of comic heroes, including the funny animal (what's so funny about him?); the superhero (what makes him super?); the boy-wonder (will he ever grow up?); the femme fatale (why can't we resist her?); and the emergence of the graphic novel. This course focuses on the detailed analysis of the work of artists such as Herriman, Spiegelman, Trondheim, Herge, Segar, Clowes, Doucet, MacCay and Katchor.

AHD-2831-AIntroduction to Visual Culture

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Leslie

Tired of hearing about art versus design versus advertising versus the comic book? This course is designed to explore the issues of what constitutes culture—who said so, why, and what we can learn from and change about it. Our "society of the spectacle" engages case studies from sports, the mall, Madonna, James Bond, drag balls, Disneyland, Spike Lee, television, comic books and, yes, the fine arts, for their role in the construction of cultural values. Subtopics range from contemporary myth, the hero and heroine, the use of stereotypes and icons, attitudes toward gender and ethnicity and their consequences for the meaning and understanding of "culture." Critical approaches are introduced to explore how cultural norms are established and to develop your own position in the current debates. Readings are from the German Frankfurt and British Birmingham schools of social thought, film and visual theory, studies in popular culture, feminism and cultural theory.

AHD-2842-AUnderstanding Kitsch

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

Although the etymology of the term is debatable, “kitsch” is generally understood to refer to the questionable aesthetic of mass-produced items created to appeal to crass, unrefined tastes. Since its emergence in the mid-1800s, artists have borrowed from and been inspired by this aesthetic; by the twentieth century, kitsch and high culture seemed at times to be so intertwined as to be indistinguishable. Championed by some as the “democratization” of taste and decried by others as catering to the lowest common denominator, kitsch embraces notions eschewed by arbiters of high culture, such as sentimentality, melodrama and cuteness. This course will discuss the culture and environment that gave birth to kitsch and its continued development. We will use kitsch as a vehicle for examining concepts that may shed light on how we view fine art objects, including an introduction to political, historical and psychoanalytical models of interpreting art; the origins of suburbia; and the difference between kitsch and propaganda. All of these topics are considered as we try to get to the root of the question: What makes fine art “art” and kitsch “kitsch”?

AHD-2847-AWhat Is Conceptual Art?

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Morgan

Conceptual art is a term that is frequently bandied about as if everyone knows what it is. The assumption of the course will be that the premises of conceptual art have been largely misunderstood. While emphasis is given to the “idea” in works of art, we will undertake an investigation into the language of how the idea is transcribed into art. The course will show the development of the phenomenon, beginning with Marcel Duchamp and will trace its evolution from the late 1960s through to the present. Artists discussed will include Lawrence Weiner, Bruce Nauman, Robert Barry, John Baldessari, Adrian Piper, Joseph Kosuth, Haim Steinbach, Sherrie Levine, Joseph Nechvatal and Maurizio Bolognini.

AHD-2862-AArchitecture and the Visual Arts

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Lorance

From the ancients to the present day, painters, sculptors and architects have worked side-by-side creating permanent environments that serve and symbolize mankind. In recent years, however, the boundaries among these media have begun to collapse, inspiring new approaches to art and architectural form. This course will trace the roots of contemporary practice, focusing on the historical links and reciprocities found in the classical tradition, European modernism and postmodernism. Artists and architects to be studied include: Michelangelo, Gaudí, Le Corbusier, El Lissitzky, Mondrian, Matta-Clark, Graham and Gehry. We will also consider the history of the museum, its design and its impact on the visual arts.

AHD-2947-AGame Culture: From Super Mario to Half-Life

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Chuk

Virtual reality has entered a new realm of accessibility gained by an influx of video games and the rapidly growing game culture that surround them. Video games are no longer limited to arcades—they have taken over homes and traveled alongside users on buses; they have extended into the everyday world, creating normalcy out of virtual environments in public and semi-public spaces. We will examine this expansion—its negative and positive effects—and the role game culture plays in the American economy, global exports, attitudes toward violence and general consumption of our daily rituals and free time. Looking back at the short but significant history of gaming, we will explore its transformation from hobby to cultural tool. Finally, this course will address how gaming encourages group activity, serves as cultural commentary and bridges the physical gaps that separate participants and their varying identities.

AHD-2953-ATechnology of Art: Inching Toward the Virtual

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Chuk

This course will examine how technological development affects works of art, media and everyday life, allowing for the potential of interactivity. The ease and accessibility of technology allows us to create artistic work more affordably and efficiently. We can adjust on the fly; fix in postproduction; and alter, duplicate or manipulate with the appropriate software. Technological advances have increased the absence of the material form, which takes shape in computer art, virtual mapping, television/TiVo, mp3/iPod, and mediated public and semi-public spaces. The result is a do-it-yourself revolution, making interactivity a more acceptable and attractive feature. As creators and receptors of art, we are both inhibited and enlightened by this technology. From YouTube to the ubiquitous MySpace phenomenon, these outlets have a positive and negative impact on how we perceive, use, and create works of art and media.

AHD-3002The Social History of Photography

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Stephens

This course will be a thematic survey of photography from its invention to the present day. Students will study the range and influence of photographic imagery, both “high” and “low” in photojournalism, fashion and advertising art. Sessions are designed to emphasize the ways in which photographs have changed our perceptions of ourselves, our society and the world in which we live.

AHD-3003The Aesthetic History of Photography

Spring semester: 3 credits

This course will be a chronological survey of art photography with an emphasis on the relationship between photography and other visual art forms. Included will be a survey of the history of criticism, and of the various ways in which artists have negotiated their definition of photographic aesthetics.

AHD-3060Masters of Light

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Light is more than an aesthetic choice. It is also the electric bulb, x-rays, the beginning of the world (Genesis), photography, the big bang, cinema, Einstein’s Theory of Relativity, photonics; it is the most important tool we currently use in medicine, communications, engineering and art. This course begins with the history of the physics and science of light and shadow. What exactly is light and when did we define it? What are the differences between artificial and natural light and how did the invention of artificial light change the nature of art and culture? In the second part of the course, each student will give a presentation on a master of light—painter, photographer, filmmaker or light artist.

AHD-3067-AAmerican Maverick Filmmakers

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. LoBrutto

This course will study American masters of filmmaking who, during the second half of the 20th century, worked outside the established aesthetic and narrative conventions of mainstream Hollywood production methods. We will examine the innovative forms of cinematic grammar and storytelling of such filmmakers as Robert Altman, John Cassavetes, Stanley Kubrick, Sam Peckinpah, Martin Scorsese and Oliver Stone. Through lecture, discussion and exploration of stylistic and thematic issues, their work will be analyzed for filmic and expressive properties. Topics will include the directional process, utilization of cinematography, editing, sound, production design and collaboration with actors and screenwriters. Films to be studied include: McCabe and Mrs. Miller, Nashville, Paths of Glory, 2001: A Space Odyssey, The Shining, The Wild Bunch, Straw Dogs, Faces, A Woman Under the Influence, Killing of the Chinese Bookie, Mean Streets, Taxi Driver, Goodfellas, Born on the Fourth of July and JFK.

AHD-3121-AThe Future of Jackson Pollock

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

A considered look at the contradictions between the public myth and the art of Jackson Pollock, one of the premier American artists of the 20th century, whose larger-than-life persona has come to define the tortured creative figure—witness the recent award-winning Hollywood movie. Through slides and film screenings and museum visits, Pollock's torment will be seen not as singular and private, but public and historical, as he projected his life into his era of passion and conflict. Through the study of Pollock in the context of his time—the Great Depression and World War II—a new figure will emerge: one devoted to the public issues of the 1930s and 1940s, such as mass culture, mass man, the struggle for renewed cultural personality, and the dualism of human nature and action. In this course, Pollock will newly be seen as someone who internalized the conflicts of history as his own, yet emerged triumphant—before he drove off the road.

AHD-3137-AIrony and Beauty

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Matlin

Irony is a puzzling concept, far deeper than the dictionary definition: "Irony is the act of using words to convey a meaning that is the opposite of its literal meaning." If this were the case, all sarcasm would be irony and the truly ironic act would be nothing more than a cheap theatric. Thankfully, real irony is hard to come by. It is rooted in something more than cleverness, just as beauty is more than simply being pretty. The idea of beauty is at its core a moment of transcendence, an experience of something greater than the tangible world has to offer. When done well, irony is a concentrated disaffection with what has been presented as truth; it is a mode of rebellion. The question becomes: Can beauty and irony co-exist or are they mutually exclusive? Is there any irony in the paintings of Barnett Newman or is it all deadly serious? Has irony become too easy? And has beauty ceased to answer any real questions? These are the issues we will address as we try to reconcile these seeming opposites.

AHD-3140-HPMemory and History in Film

Wednesday 6:20-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Sinha

A range of issues will be addressed in this course, all intended to explore the relationship between history and memory in the films of Alain Resnais, Chris Marker, Andrei Tarkovsky and Alexander Kluge. How do the modernist and post-modernist discourses of memory and history take shape in these filmmakers' works? Questions crucial to the understanding of how cinema (re)works the ideas of history and memory through representation will be raised. What is the nature of this relationship? How do individual and social memories intersect? We will attempt to answer these and other questions as we trace the trajectories of two forces—memory and history—always at odds with each other in the films of these directors. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take AHD-3140-HP, Memory and History in Film, or AHD-3145-HP, Issues in Contemporary Art Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse.

AHD-3145-HPIssues in Contemporary Art*Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Avgikos

We will focus our attention this semester on the impact/influence of globalism on visual culture and contemporary art. On one hand, we will frame the idea of "globalism" by rifling through the bones of history, including post-World War II distribution networks and post-Colonial legacies that begin to manifest in art in the '60s and '70s. On the other hand, we will investigate various exhibition formats, artists, audiences, narratives, circumstances and more (emphasis on '80s to the present), all of which contributed to the thrilling complexity of "worldwide visual culture" and the "global communication continuum." As Guy Davenport stated, "Art is the attention we pay to the wholeness of the world." This idea will be our first talking point. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take AHD-3140-HP, Memory and History in Film, or AHD-3145-HP, Issues in Contemporary Art Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse.

AHD-3404-AHistory of the Independent Avant-Garde Film

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

Artists have been fascinated by the images of Hollywood film and the possibility of making films in the context of the aesthetics, issues and economics of the art world (rather than those of the film industry). We will examine the history of what we refer to as "avant-garde film" from its beginnings in futurism, constructivism and surrealism (in Europe and the former Soviet Union) through its reemergence in American abstract expressionism to its present context in postmodernism. Among the filmmakers studied will be Buñuel, Man Ray, Dulac, Vertov, Deren, Brakhage, Snow, Landow, Godard, Akerman, Mulvey/Wollen, Jarmusch, Duras. There will be weekly in-class screenings; keeping a film journal is required.

AHD-3899-AThe Development of Video Art

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

A viewing and lecture series devoted to tracing the development of video art. Through economics, issues and aesthetics, independent video is tied more closely to the art world than to the industry (television). We will examine this relationship as well as the relationship between video and film (in terms of production, exhibition, medium specificity, use value). Videomakers to be studied include Acconci, Serra, Jonas, Hearn, Paik, Viola, Bowes, Klier, Feingold, Godard, Wegman and Nares. There will be weekly in-class screenings; keeping a video journal is required.

AHD-3909-ASurrealism

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Mauro

This course will examine the social, artistic and political background out of which (and often against which) the surrealist movement began in the 1920s in Paris and surrealism's particular relationships to the modernist art movements that preceded it, particularly its immediate ancestor, Dada. The course will survey the various sources of surrealist inspiration and ideas in the areas of literature, psychology, art and philosophy. It will cover surrealist drawing and painting, sculpture, photography and film as well as surrealism's invention and cultivation of multimedia techniques, games and exercises that aimed to free image, object, language and experience from the constraints of traditional form and practice.

We will explore surrealism's many paradoxes, including its highly problematic relationship to Woman (as fantastic object of its unrelenting passion) and women (as real members and associates of the movement), and its ambivalent position regarding popular culture.

AHD-3914-A

The Archeology of Surrealism: 1863-1924

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

This course will end, not begin, with André Breton's 1924 Surrealist Manifesto. Our goal is to understand the birth of modernity (mostly in France) via the works and personas of Charles Baudelaire, Arthur Rimbaud, Alfred Jarry, Sigmund Freud, Arthur Cravan, Jacques Vache, Marcel Duchamp, Man Ray, Collette, Mina Loy, Max Ernst, Baroness Elsa von Freytag and Salvador Dalí. Our examination of surrealism proper will emphasize the work of Georges Bataille and Louis Aragon. Extensive reading will be required.

AHD-3921-A

Under the Influence: Altered States

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

Experiences of spontaneous visions and altered perceptions are not rare in art history, nor in the histories of music and writing. Countless artists have had experiences that go beyond those which are granted by the ordinary five senses. Some (e.g., the surrealists) have experimented with drugs specifically to bring about these visions; others are haunted by illness that can cause hallucinations or a sense of otherworldliness. They create art as a way to cope with such symptoms. Recently, events like "Burning Man" have drawn hundreds of people together to commune with one another, take drugs and experience a state outside of ordinary existence. These rituals seem at once to be a throwback to a more primitive era as well as a quest for contemporary answers to age-old questions. What does this resurgence of interest in the visionary realm mean? What kind of inspiration can be gained from going beyond the physical world? What about the dangers of toying with altered states of consciousness? What will the effects of these experiences be on the creation of art?

AHD-3942-A

Animals and Humans in Art and Culture

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

What makes us human? How are we similar to rather than different from animals? What kinds of consciousness, emotions and language systems do animals possess and what are the implications? How have our policies on the environment affected animal populations and behavior worldwide? Such questions are a serious subject of academic study (e.g., Carey Wolfe, Donna Haraway), and art practice (Josef Beuys, Stelarc, William Wegman, Eduardo Kac, Sam Easterson, Natalie Jeremijenko, Sue Coe, Patricia Piccini). This course will study such writers and artists in order to explore our personal, artistic, historical and theoretical relationship to animals and art.

AHD-3966-A

Strip-Searched: Art and Sexuality

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Rosenberg

According to the British art critic John Berger: "Men look at women. Women watch themselves being looked at." How are art and sexuality intertwined? Pin-ups, odalisques, goddesses, divas and poseurs are some of the sexualized and stereotyped images found in art history. This course will delve into the analysis of artworks that are overtly sexual, erotic and titillating. From Manet's Olympia to Meret Oppenheim's L'Objet/Fur Tea Cup to Hannah Wilke's Hello Boys strip act performance video, we will examine the representation of sexuality as seen in art whose subject is woman in all her many definitions. The course will include visits to museums and galleries, screenings of films/performances, reading of theory texts and works of fiction, as well as a look at autobiographical literature on artists and art-making. Prerequisites: AHD-1010, Survey of World Art I, and AHD-1015, Survey of World Art II, or equivalent.

AHD-3976-A

Art and Activism

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Gookin

This course addresses the cultural responses to social crises in the 20th century. Focusing on the international movements in art since the 1960s, artists to be discussed include Joseph Beuys, Guerrilla Art Action Group, Group Material and the public art projects of Gran Fury, the Guerrilla Girls and Act Up. Topics covered range from artists' involvement in the antiwar protests against Vietnam, Artists Call Against U.S. Intervention in Central America and the civil rights movement, as well as artistic responses to the AIDS crisis, domestic violence, etc. The course covers the historical background behind these unconventional art practices in lectures, and through student research. The semester culminates in the development of a final project that will take the form of an activist work (i.e., an exhibition, event, artwork) to be designed by the class. Guest speakers will be featured.

AHD-3981-A

Art, Propaganda and Politics

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Cone

All aspects of the visual arts can be used for propaganda purposes: posters, of course, but also painting, sculpture, the decorative arts, photography, architecture, film. This course will explore how dictators like Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Henri Philippe Pétain conveyed their ideological messages to the masses through these different mediums. It will also show that while the aestheticizing of politics by fascist regimes has given political art a bad name, the infiltration of art by politics can also be a means of resistance to political, racial or gender-based oppression when used by individuals. In addition, contemporary examples of art and activism will also be examined.

AHD-3982-A

The Culture Club

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Yablonsky

Limited to 15 students

For this workshop in art criticism, students will explore the ways in which arts journalism operates in our culture. How does the press influence the public's perception of art? How does it impact an artist's career? What are the different attitudes expressed by such journals and newspapers as Artforum, October, The New York Times, Time Out New York, The New Yorker, Film Quarterly, among others? What responsibilities do artists and critics share? How do you pitch a story idea? Identify the issues? Students will develop their critical faculties by attending performances and events in theater, dance, film and visual art; writing reviews; reading and occasionally visiting with, current critics, such as Robert Hughes, Louis Menand, Peter Schjeldahl, Ben Brantley and Michiko Kakutani; and researching historic contributions to the field from such writers as John Ruskin, Clement Greenberg, James Agee, Dorothy Parker and John Berger.

AHD-3986-A

What is Cinema?

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

What do we mean when we say cinema is an art? Does a film always have to entertain and tell a story in a linear, straightforward manner? What are the components that make a film an artwork versus merely a movie? Who are some master filmmakers in film history, and how do they use film as cinema, not plot? We will discuss such questions starting with film's "primitive" beginnings in America and France, moving to Dada and surrealism, the rise of the noir B-movie into the European New Wave movement of the 1960s, into the rise of American experimental and independent film of the '70s and '80s. Celebrated contemporary films and filmmakers from the 1990s to the present will be drawn from international, narrative and non-narrative traditions. We will also see how "cinema" has become a subject of contemporary art in the work of Gregory Crewdson, Douglas Gordon and Stan Douglas.

AHD-3989-AArt and the Beat Generation

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Morgan

One of the fascinating periods in recent American culture was the period of the 1950s, when members of the abstract expressionist and neo-Dada art community (Pollock, de Kooning, Guston, Berman, Conner, Mitchell) worked in relative proximity with writers of the "beat generation" (Kerouac, Ginsberg, Corso, the Cassadys, Ferlinghetti). The premise of this course is to examine the structural relationship of the visual and literary arts by exploring how language and imagery signify cultural ideas during the '50s and '60s.

AHD-3992-AArt and Popular Culture

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

This course will explore the interrelationships of high and popular art in the 20th century. Through a variety of approaches, we will discuss formal and socio-political ramifications of the reciprocal relationship of popular and fine arts. We will examine the relationships of different aspects of popular production—crafts, comics, films, music, performances—and high art in the work of Kandinsky and the Blue Rider group; the Soviet avant-garde and the futurists; the Mexican muralists; the "English" independent group; pop artists; ironic postmodernists and the MTV generation. Readings will include manifestos, such as Eisenstein's "A Montage of Popular Attractions," Italian futurist manifestos, Clement Greenberg's "Avant-Garde and Kitsch," as well as various comic and humor publications.

AHD-3997-AIntersections of Art, Science and Technology

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Anker

From atomic theory to the decipherment of the human genome, science has spilled out of the laboratory and into our lives. When we add to this mix the invention of the Internet and its global perspectives in cyberspace, a revolution is upon us. As scientists engage in molecular makeovers, plastic surgery and nanotechnology, the corporeal body has become a topic of public and aesthetic discourse in itself. This course will examine the ways in which artists are addressing genetic engineering, new anatomical models, reproductive technologies, and cloning as part of the emergent "sci-art" movement taking place in the United States and abroad. Other topics will include genetically modified food, the commodification of bio-matter and lab residencies for visual artists. In addition, new imaging and 3D digital technologies will be conceptually explored. Field trips and visiting speakers complement the course material.

AHD-3999-AArt Creates Communities: Project in Chelsea

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Martegani

The effects of gentrification on disadvantaged communities and how artists may contribute to bridging cultural and social gaps will be researched and explored through on-site projects. The first part of the course will seek to define public art, study the interconnection of art and community, and address such questions as: Can artists truly collaborate with communities? Who are "the public"? Can art contribute to society, affect it, perhaps better it? Our case study is located in Chelsea, a neighborhood radically transformed by recent economic initiatives, including the influx of high-end art galleries; it is now a diverse area—home to condominiums as well as local public housing developments. Two artists will be invited to work with a group of children from the local Clinton Middle School, engaging them in different ways according to their own interests, artistic language and sensibility, and creating true works of art. Projects will encompass a variety of media. Artists who participated in the past include Tim Rollins, Gary Simmons, Anna Gaskell, Michael Joo, Elmgreen and Dragset, Luca Buvoli, Slater Bradley, Saya Woolfalk and Hope Ginsburg. Students will also work in a group on their own art project with the children. At the end, they will help install their collaborative projects in an exhibition at the middle school.

AHD-4140-ASenior Seminar

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Avgikos

Unlike the historical avant-garde that situated itself outside of mass culture, today's emerging avant-garde art seems to anticipate ways of working from within and in relation to mass culture. Art is steadily moving out from the "white cube" to participate in a global continuum that's hosted by satellite TV and cable, the Internet, all forms of wireless communication and international biennials. The fractious history of art and mass culture has grown exponentially within the past two decades in direct proportion to the invention of new imaging technologies and the development of global economies. This course proposes to examine the scant, but rich, history of relations between art and mass culture, and to chart the rise of media-related art. We will immerse ourselves in screenings of contemporary video/multimedia work of the past two decades and seek out as many pertinent exhibitions as we can throughout the semester. We will also read interviews with artists and curators, as well as texts on media theory, globalism and the like. Note: Senior fine arts majors have priority registration for this course.

AHD-4140-BSenior Seminar

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kuspit

The seminar will examine theoretical issues in art through a critical discussion of various current exhibitions. Different texts will be used to provide a sensitizing framework for discussion. Students will be expected to make a class presentation about a particular artist or movement. Note: Senior fine arts majors have priority registration for this course.

AHD-4140-CSenior Seminar

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Kotik

In the 1960s, installation art became a prominent tool for many artists to convey their ideas about the changing structure of society, the art market and, above all, art itself. The temporal and site-specific aspects of installation work corresponded well to the flux of artists' ideas. The practice of creating installations or environments has roots in history that can be traced back as far as the Counter-Reformation. This course will review the history of this medium, concentrating above all on the renewed interest in installations in the 1980s and emphasizing current work of both well- and lesser-known installation artists. Lectures, museum trips and gallery visits will be included. Note: Senior fine arts majors have priority registration for this course.

AHD-4140-DSenior Seminar

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

The art world today is marked by a renewed appreciation of the content of art—what it "says" as much as the way it says it. The insistence on content rebuffs the progressive formal purification of the modernist narrative that insisted on the supremacy of "art" itself. Subsequent developments revealed this narrative to be part of the utopian dream which postmodernism rejected out of the force of world events. The seminar discussions will consider the "content" of art—relative to its form; to political, social, philosophical and spiritual pressures from the world in which it is made and circulates. Students will view exhibitions, critique them in class and write brief reviews on the basis of these concerns. Note: Senior fine arts majors have priority registration for this course.

AHD-4140-ESenior Seminar

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kuspit

See AHD-4140-B for course description.

The following series, HDD-3200, Ideas in Art, carries humanities and sciences credits.

HDD-3200-A

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: T. Huhn

A thorough survey of the visual art will be provided in this course, as well as the philosophies of art, of the last four decades. The goal is to thoroughly familiarize students with the visual arts, and attendant ideas, beginning with the American art of the 1960s and concluding with contemporary art.

HDD-3200-B

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: M. Cone

In this course, we will investigate the situation of art since pop—its philosophical presuppositions, its exclusions and its historical context. Beginning with American art of the 1960s, this course will take into account the richness of artistic sensibilities that have emerged in the U.S. and in other parts of the world in recent years. A gallery visit will be included.

HDD-3200-C

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: D. Goldberg

This course will investigate contemporary art, from pop art to postmodernism. Beginning with the 1960s, which witnessed the birth of pop art, minimalism, postminimalism, and conceptual art, we will study how these movements continue to be relevant today. Readings will include primary texts and critical works. There will be visits to museums and gallery exhibitions.

HDD-3200-D

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: T. Huhn

See HDD-3200-A for course description.

HDD-3200-E

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: R. Morgan

As the title for the course suggests, “ideas” are an intrinsic aspect of art and the aesthetic process. The focus will be given to ideas, both as intentional ingredients within works of art and as critical responses given to various works by artists, critics, art historians and theorists—primarily through an examination of the art and writing of the past four decades.

HDD-3200-F

Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

Instructor: J. Decter

Does every break with tradition lead to a “redefinition” or reinvention of art? Yes and no. This is one of the issues that will be explored, as we look at the important transformations that have occurred in American and European visual arts from the mid-1950s through the contemporary period. How do we recognize what art is today? Do we find art where and when we want to find it? Can anything be named “art”? Here are some of the course themes, in order of presentation: into and out of abstract expressionism; prepop, pop art, postpop; minimalism; art and the everyday; the conceptual drive; modernism into postmodernism (and back again?); the return of visual pleasure; art and politics (or art as politics?); the multicultural era (issues of representation?); the revenge of sub/youth culture and popular culture.

Department of Computer Art

First-Year Requirements

First-year computer art majors must take all the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are four computer art foundation course programs, each composed of the foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

AHD-1010 Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHD-1015 Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1010 for course description.

AND-1030 Introduction to Animation

One semester: 3 credits

This course will cover basic concepts such as storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes and timing. Students will also learn in-betweening, squash-and-stretch, weight, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns. Most importantly, the course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character model sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in class.

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

HCD-1010 Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020 Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

SDD-1050 Narrative Workshop

One semester: 3 credits

This course will examine the history of storytelling and its fundamental elements, including story and character development, timing and narrative structure. Students will tell and write their own stories, polish them in class and discuss how they might bring their stories to life through illustrated storyboards.

SMD-1200 Introduction to Imaging Tools and Techniques

One semester: 3 credits

Two-dimensional image capture and creation is the focus of this introductory course. From simple image manipulation photographs to creating complex collages of layered images, students will use raster, vector and page-layout programs to create and present their original images. Students will explore the use of digital cameras, flatbed and film scanners and learn to prepare their images for a variety of output options. We will also cover basic visual computing skills, including file-naming conventions, color management and color modes.

SMD-1250 Introduction to Digital Video Tools and Techniques

One semester: 3 credits

Students will be introduced to the essentials of video and digital video technologies, with a concentration on the basics of video production, nonlinear editing and digital postproduction. Projects will take students from still images to composited animations to final edited productions with sound.

Computer Art Second-Year Requirements

The required course load is 15 credits each semester, including at least 3 humanities and sciences credits per semester. All students should see their advisor about individual humanities and sciences distribution credit needs.

Students who wish to enter the department or change their major should contact their advisor. All changes of this kind require a transcript and portfolio review by the Computer Art Department chair. Courses must include any missing requirements from the foundation year, or the first semester of the second year that were not waived by equivalent course work and portfolio review. Since many requirements may not be entered midyear or taken out of sequence, some additional time in school may be required.

Second-year computer art majors are required to complete:

REQUIREMENT A

One semester of:

SDD-2090	Professional Practices
SMD-2110	MEL Scripting and Basic C++ Programming
SMD-2146	Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation I
SMD-2147	Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation II
SMD-2157	Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics I
SMD-2158	Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics II
AHD-2020	Modern Art Through Pop I
AHD-2025	Modern Art Through Pop II

REQUIREMENT B

One 3-credit studio elective that is not offered through the Computer Art Department. Please refer to individual departmental listings for elective courses open to all students.

Computer Art Third-Year Requirements

The required course load for third-year students is 15 credits each semester, including at least 3 humanities and sciences credits per semester. All students should continue to see their advisor about humanities and sciences distribution requirement needs.

Third-year computer art majors are required to complete:

REQUIREMENT A

One of the following two groups:

SMD-3146	Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation III
SMD-3147	Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation IV
SMD-3568	Thesis Preproduction: Computer Animation
or
SMD-3157	Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects III
SMD-3158	Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects IV
SMD-3566	Thesis Preproduction: Visual Effects and Broadcast Design

REQUIREMENT B

One semester of:

SMD-3110	Sound and Vision: Producing a Sound Track
SMD-3120	Thesis Research

REQUIREMENT C

One 3-credit studio elective from any undergraduate department, including the Computer Art Department. Please refer to individual departmental listings for elective courses open to all students.

Computer Art Fourth-Year Requirements

The recommended course load is 15 credits each semester. Students should see their advisor early to determine remaining credit needs and requirements. You must be able to complete all 120 credits of the BFA degree, including all course and credit requirements, within the fourth year to be eligible to graduate.

Fourth-year computer art majors are required to complete:

REQUIREMENT A

One semester of:

SDD-4080	Thesis I
SDD-4085	Thesis II

REQUIREMENT B

Choose one of the following production skills courses. The one you choose must be in the same discipline as your thesis course, otherwise permission from the department chair is required.

One of the following groups:

SMD-4011	Production Skills: Computer Animation I
SMD-4012	Production Skills: Computer Animation II
or
SMD-4022	Production Skills: Visual Effects and Broadcast Design I
SMD-4023	Production Skills: Visual Effects and Broadcast Design II

REQUIREMENT C

One semester of:

SDD-4030	The Business of Being an Artist
SDD-4090	Thesis Special Topics

REQUIREMENT D

One 3-credit studio elective from any undergraduate department, including the Computer Art Department. Please refer to individual departmental listings for elective courses open to all students.

Computer Art General Course Listing

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

Computer art majors may register for courses in the Film, Video and Animation Department with the proper prerequisites and permission from both department chairs, space permitting. Students will not be charged any course fee associated with these courses. Please refer to the film, video and animation section in this book.

Note: Courses are listed in numerical order.

SDD-2090-A Professional Practices

Wednesday 3:00-5:50
Spring semester: no credit
Instructor: J. McIntosh

Class time is reserved for discussion of topics relating to the use of computer-generated images in the entertainment, video and game industries. Students will explore the many aesthetic and career options they face as they begin to formulate their educational goals and career paths.

SDD-2107-A Techniques for Visual Thinking

Wednesday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: S. Cudlitz

This is a course that will expand each student's understanding of drawing to encompass the skills and vocabulary of diverse visualization methods. Students will learn techniques used in a variety of design and media disciplines to facilitate both individual and collaborative creative processes. Each student will be required to complete 12 specific group and individual visualization tasks and assignments in a standard sketchbook/journal format. The course will explore techniques for time-based linear media as well as nonlinear concepts and processes. Class participation is required and is an essential aspect of this course. Students should have basic drawing skills.

SMD-2110 (previously SCD-2110) MEL Scripting and Basic C++ Programming

One semester: 3 credits
This course will introduce the basic skills required to work effectively from one operating system to another and will include networking issues, backing-up projects and unique I/O procedures. Students will also learn the basic C++ programming and scripting skills that are required to work effectively in computer animation, and with the Maya Embedded Language specifically.

SDD-2114 Life Drawing for Computer Animators

Tuesday 9:00-11:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: J. Ruggeri

Gesture, movement and character expression are important considerations for the computer animator. This drawing course will explore various facets of human expression, such as emotions and physical mannerisms. Using models, students will learn to "catch" a moment in time through quick poses, as well as work out individual subtleties through longer poses. Field trips will be part of the challenge of learning to draw people in crowds and in motion.

SMD-2134-A Humorous Illustration for Computer Artists

Thursday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Levin

This course is designed for students who aspire to work as professional illustrators, choosing humor as their medium of expression. Students will learn how to create and execute humorous content using Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator. The course will cover choreography of visual and subjective matter, the narrative, working with subtext and adhering to concept. Computer techniques, personal style, as well as the structure and use of humor in the development of dynamic work will also be covered. Professional-level assignments will be given in such areas as political and gag cartooning, magazine illustration, children's books, advertising, and others. There will be heavy individual critiquing and guest lectures by top working professionals. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2134-B.

SMD-2146 (previously SCD-2146, first semester) Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation I

Each section limited to 17 students
Professional practices will be stressed in creating preliminary sketches, concepts and designs. Students will learn how to employ geometrical primitives, extruding and lathing as well as de-forming objects and working with mesh objects. 3D animation is explored by analyzing motion, understanding the devices of anticipation, reaction, overlapping motion, and squash-and-stretch, to add clarity and strength to sequences. Students will create storyboards and motion tests, and develop concepts as integrated with basic animation techniques of keyframe interpolation, model, light and camera animation.

SMD-2147 (previously SCD-2146, second semester) Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation II

Spring semester: 3 credits
Each section limited to 17 students
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see SMD-2146 for course description. Note: Students must register for the spring course section that corresponds to their fall section of this course.

SMD-2157Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 17 students

Using combinations of still and video images, students will learn the fundamentals of keyframing, applying effects over time, field and frame rendering, creating mattes and rotoscoping. Emphasis will be placed on editing techniques, art direction, aesthetics and the overall style of professional motion graphic production. An introduction to blue-screen techniques, compositing and layering animated images will also be covered. Asset management and basic editing disciplines will be reinforced through assigned projects.

SMD-2243-APhotoshop: Beyond the Foundations

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. McCormack

People often say they know how to use Adobe Photoshop, but do they really know its most important features and how to harness its power? Each session will concentrate on one isolated aspect of Photoshop. By the end of the semester, every student will be a Photoshop power user. Issues to be focused on include levels, curves, actions, layer styles, filters, extract, alpha channels and liquefy, among others. In one semester, this course will cover the Photoshop universe. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2243-B.

SMD-2244-AFlashtooning Animation with Macromedia Flash

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Pearlman

How to use Macromedia Flash for cartoon-style animation for the eventual display on the Web will be the focus of this course. Discussions include proper scanning, optimization of images and animation techniques, such as keyframing and how to use them in Flash. Students will also learn how to use light and color in a cartooning environment. Students should have some experience with inking their own line art. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2244-B.

SMD-3110Sound and Vision: Producing a Sound Track

Fall semester: 3 credits

Students will gain an understanding of the basic principles of audio capture, enhancement and production by focusing on the methods used in creating a professional sound track. Examples of award-winning videos and animations will be analyzed scene by scene. Students will compose a sound track for an existing project or their thesis production. This will include writing or locating appropriate music, gathering and recording sound effects, and mixing the final track.

Fall semester: 3 credits

In addition to advanced story and character development, timing and narrative structure will be taught through a series of written exercises and reading assignments. Students will tell and write their own stories and have them critiqued in classroom discussions. Students will develop scripts and draw storyboards using traditional and computer-assisted methods. Students must register for the corresponding section of their thesis preproduction discipline.

SMD-3146 (previously SCD-3146, first semester)Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation III

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 17 students

This course will stress professional techniques and work flow methodology to maximize students' realization of their working drawings. Students will develop highly accurate timing to achieve their individual style of animation. Editorial decisions involving narrative, character and scene design will be an integral part of this course. Topics will include: planning and executing complex models, testing how well they perform in production, skeletal rigging, constraints and scripted expressions. The course will also cover animation strategies, advanced keyframe editing and motion tests; shaders, textures, lights and camera moves.

SMD-3157Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects III

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 17 students

This course will explore the design requirements for professional-quality broadcast graphics and title design for feature films and multimedia projects. Students will capture and use original footage to create a title sequence that includes an audio sound track, still images and typographic elements. Asset management, aspect ratios, resolutions, interpolation algorithms, color depth, color timing and image stabilization techniques will be addressed. Students will learn to work with lighting, grain matching, perspective control and camera moves to create the illusion of photorealism in the final composite.

SMD-3162-A

Interactive Media: Design and Programming I

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Students will explore a variety of concepts and processes for using programming to enhance any screen-based project. Working with Macromedia Flash and basic ActionScript programming, students will create working prototypes of interactive design and animations. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3162-B.

SMD-3163-A (previously SMD-3162, second semester)

Interactive Media: Design and Programming II

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Students will learn advanced concepts and the processes of programming within the Macromedia Flash ActionScript environment. Working with OOP (Object-Oriented Programming), students will create reusable components and application of external languages like XML to make interactive screen-based projects more efficient and elegant. Prerequisite: SMD-3162, Interactive Media: Design and Programming I. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3163-B.

SMD-3221-A

Advanced Adobe Photoshop Techniques

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Eismann

This course will explore the most advanced creative and production techniques of Adobe Photoshop, including image layer management, shapes and vector masking as well as integrated Web tools. Students will identify their professional and creative goals as they develop a portfolio of images. They will learn to design images for maximum results, whether the images are created for photographic printing, offset reproduction or the Web. The entire imaging process will be examined and explained, along with the most effective shortcuts that will speed the production process. Prerequisite: SMD-2243, Photoshop: Beyond the Foundations, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3221-B.

SMD-3228-A (previously SCD-3228)

3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Eiser

Alias Maya is widely used in the 3D animation industry and is highly regarded for its modeling, animation and special effects capabilities. Starting with storyboards, students will then learn modeling, cameras, lighting, surfaces, motion scripting and rendering. Several examples of high-end 3D animation will be demonstrated and analyzed. Note: This course is not intended for students who are pursuing a thesis project in computer animation. Students who have taken SMD-3146, Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation III, or SMD-3147, Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation IV, may not enroll in this course. This course is cross-listed with SMD-3228-B.

SMD-3229-A (previously SCD-3229)

3D Modeling and Animation with Maya II

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Eiser

Alias Maya is an industry leader in 3D content creation used by computer graphics professionals in the film, broadcast, industrial design and game development industries. This course will further explore Maya's more advanced tools and capabilities through in-class exercises and assigned projects. Topics will include character design, animation, skeletal rigging, dynamics, particles and shading. Prerequisite: SMD-3228, 3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I, or equivalent. Note: This course is not intended for students who are pursuing a thesis project in computer animation. Students who have taken SMD-3146, Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation III, or SMD-3147, Computer Animation: 3D Modeling and Animation IV, may not enroll in this course. This course is cross-listed with SMD-3229-B.

SMD-3231-A

Digital Photography for Computer Artists

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Eismann

This intensive hands-on course will introduce you to the fundamental concepts of classic photography, including: determining proper exposure, lighting, lens choices, image composition, black-and-white and color photography. In addition, the course will delve into the most important aspects of digital photography, such as: which file formats are best, camera management, and advanced digital dark-room techniques with Adobe Photoshop. The course will cover fundamental studio lighting techniques as well as provide a thorough understanding of digital camera types. Students will come away with a working knowledge of photographic exposure techniques to compensate for a variety of lighting situations and an understanding of camera optics and their impact on image composition. Students must provide or have access to their own digital camera. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3231-B.

SMD-3246-A

Lighting for Film and Video

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Hillier

This course is an introduction to the concepts and techniques behind successful lighting for film and video. Students will learn the fundamentals of three-point lighting, white balancing and color temperature, and explore various lighting scenarios. Special attention will be paid to the different lighting needs of new digital video formats, and will include hands-on lighting assignments in the field and discussion of the results in class.

SMD-3257-A

Adobe After Effects Techniques

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Meyers

After Effects is a powerful compositing and animation tool for creating video special effects, 2D and 3D animation, and broadcast graphics. Using keyframes, we will cover how to animate masks and filters over time, to create precise motion paths using bezier curves and to achieve complex layered compositions. Note: This course is not intended for students who are pursuing a thesis project in visual effects and broadcast design. Students who have taken SMD-3157, Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects III, or SMD-3158, Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects IV, may not enroll in this course. This course is cross-listed with SMD-3257-B.

SMD-3258-A

Advanced Adobe After Effects

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Meyers

After Effects is now an integral design tool in video production and motion graphics studios. After Effects is an extremely precise tool that allows the artist to control each element of design and digital effects with a degree of subtlety that was once only available on extremely expensive computer workstations. Through class exercises and examples, students will learn to explore and discover the technical aspects of this program and incorporate these aspects into their own animated designs and motion graphic projects. Prerequisite: SMD-3257, Adobe After Effects Techniques. Note: This course is not intended for students who are pursuing a thesis project in visual effects and broadcast design. Students who have taken SMD-3157, Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects III, or SMD-3158, Visual Effects and Broadcast Design: Motion Graphics and Digital Effects IV, may not enroll in this course. This course is cross-listed with SMD-3258-B.

SMD-3267-A
Creating 3D Graphics for Broadcast Design

Wednesday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: E. Reinfeld

The ability to integrate 3D graphics in broadcast design and interactive media is now an essential design skill. This course will examine how to extrude type into 3D and to model simple 3D elements, as well as how to control CG lighting, rendering, masking and motion tracking. The integration of live-action footage with computer graphics will be covered as a foundation for dynamic visual effects for both still and moving images. Prerequisite: SMD-3257, Adobe After Effects Techniques. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3267-B.

SMD-3341 (previously SCD-3341)
Digital Matte Painting

Thursday 9:00-11:50
One semester: 3 credits
Instructor: D. Mattingly

Digital matte painting (DMP) is a field that has been around since the early days of still and moving images. Initially created as paintings on large pieces of glass, the digital revolution has extended the form to levels previously unimagined. In the current climate of heavy visual-effects productions in film, broadcast, the Web and video games, the skills necessary to perform quickly and with emotion have become all the more crucial. The beauty of working in digital matte painting is that it employs traditional art skills blended with cutting-edge technology. This course will introduce students to the history of the medium, the philosophy of "style" (photorealistic, non-photorealistic) and the practical applications used to execute a shot. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3341-B and SMD-3341-D.

Digital Sets and Environments

Thursday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: D. Mattingly

The use of digital sets and environments has grown exponentially in the last few years as filmmakers discover the savings and flexibility this technology offers. Digital sets can be created for a fraction of the cost of building physical sets or going on location. With digital sets, you can film actors against green screen, and later decide what the background will look like, including setting the scene in an environment that does not exist outside of the imagination of the filmmaker. This course will take students through the process of casting actors and filming them against green screen with tracking markers. The live action footage will be tracked and imported into either a 3D program or a compositing program, where an environment will be created using a combination of painting, photographic elements and 3D geometry. Students will complete two digital environments during the course of the semester.

SMD-3408-A (previously SCD-3408)

Video Game Design I

Monday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Reyna

This course is an exploration of the design and production of computer games. After brief introductions to level design, texture creation and character development, students will create a modification of an existing game. Weekly sessions will be made up of short background lectures and practical exercises. A playable game level will be created with an emphasis on available tools and shared spaces.

SMD-3409-A (previously SCD-3411)

Video Game Design II

Monday 12:00-2:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Reyna

A continuation of SMD-3408, Video Game Design I, this course will cover textures and lighting in greater depth. Terrain creation, scripting and special effects will also be investigated. Weekly sessions will follow a format of demonstrations and practical exercises. A playable game level and short in-game cinematic will represent the scope of the final project. Prerequisite: SMD-3408, Video Game Design I, or equivalent.

SMD-3449-A

Introduction to Macromedia Flash Animation

Friday 12:00-2:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: O. Haddock

Macromedia Flash is the standard for creating interactive vector graphics and animation on the Web. Students will explore the foundation assets and techniques used within Flash and build several small projects as a basis to create a large portfolio of vector-based interactive animations. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3449-B.

SMD-3452-A

Advanced Macromedia Flash Animation

Friday 12:00-2:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: O. Haddock

Flash continues to add more advanced levels of interactivity and controls for animation. Students will explore these functions using different methods with if/else statements, for loops, arrays and functions. The content created will help students produce dynamic reusable code to build a foundation of skills they can continue to develop upon in future projects. Prerequisite: SMD-3449, Introduction to Macromedia Flash Animation, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3452-B.

SMD-3461-A (previously SCD-3461)

Previsualization for Film

Monday 12:00-2:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: J. Ignaszewski

Previsualization is quickly becoming a staple for cutting-edge feature filmmaking, especially when expensive and complex effects are involved. This course will look at the evolution of this practice, from the earliest applications of the storyboard to the modern utilization of digital toolsets. Other topics will include time, cost, and studio utilization. Students will break down a script, conduct physical scene surveys and create a 3D scene reconstruction that allows for lens selection and offers lighting plans.

SMD-3481-A

Editing for Visual Effects

Monday 3:00-5:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: J. Ignaszewski

This course will stress the importance of rhythm and timing in editing to create a story with dynamic visual effects shots. Elements such as camera angles, color, light and shadow placement, and audio syncing will be discussed in context to editing your digital film. We will review how to work from storyboards and shot breakdowns. Topics relating to visual effects production such as quality level, time and budget limits will be covered.

SMD-3558Dynamic Abstraction—Writing Art-Making Machines with Macromedia Flash

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Davis

Fundamentally, art and design have been taught as the very static process of executing style and method and arriving at an end result. In this course, students will learn to write programs that generate compositions and animations. With this method, the end result is never static. Students will learn how to use Macromedia Flash and ActionScript to build these art-making programs that can be used multiple times for various projects. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3558-B and SMD-3558-D.

Spring semester: 3 credits

This course stresses the professional aspects of previsualization and detailed character sketches in developing and planning an animated short. Students will continue concept development and begin production of their senior thesis projects. Students are required to finalize 3D models and environments and create a full-length previsualization for their thesis projects.

SMD-3703-A (previously SCD-3703)Figure Sculpting for the Computer Animator

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Feligno

In this course, students will study the human form and its application to a 3D character model. Students will learn how to build an armature and how to sculpt a clay figure. Specific attention will be spent on the anatomy, human proportions and body mechanics. Students will then take the principles learned in creating the clay figure and apply them to a new or pre-existing 3D model.

SMD-3711 (previously SCD-3711)Traditional Animation Techniques with Maya

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course is devoted to the techniques of traditional animating using a 3D program. Students will be given a working character model and rig for use during class, and will be responsible for creating content and motion. Students will animate using both Pose to Pose and Straight Ahead animation techniques, borrowed from both traditional cel and stop-motion animation. We will discuss how to take an animation from storyboard to finished animation, incorporating the principles of anticipation, follow-through, arcs, overlapping animation, secondary animation and staging into each animated assignment. Students will utilize the methods of squash-and-stretch, moving holds and exaggeration to define weight and timing; dialogue will be used as a blueprint for timing lip-synch and corresponding body motion. Emphasis will also be placed on the importance of acting and storytelling to properly choose key poses. Paper and pencil will be used as a precursor to any animation completed on the computer.

Saturday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on advanced skills in specialized areas of computer animation. Students will refine their modeling and rigging skills to create lifelike characters, props and environments. We will delve further into all aspects of Maya's modeling tools from NURBS to polygons to subdivision surfaces. Students will also learn how to improve their character setup skills in order to create characters that move realistically and naturally.

SMD-3731-A (previously SCD-3731)Advanced Compositing, Tracking and Match Move Techniques

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Ennis

The ability to integrate composited images into a seamless transparent moving image is the core of contemporary visual effects. Students will create shadows and the illusion of depth of field and limited focus range. They will learn about correct color space, bit depth and film formats, advanced keying, matte edges, importing and exporting track data with Maya, advanced color correcting, blur and grain warp and morph.

SMD-3741-A (previously SCD-3741)Lighting Aesthetics

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Halbstein

The aesthetics of effective lighting for film, video and still imagery will be addressed in this course. Students will use the program of their preference (Maya, Combustion, After Effects, etc., or a combination of software) to produce still and moving images that focus on lighting design as it pertains to mood, visual communication and narrative. While not a technical course, guest lecturers will address some technical issues throughout the semester. Field trips to film screenings, museums and galleries will complement the course material. Projects will be based on understanding, critiquing and digitally replicating lighting styles and effects used by painters, filmmakers and lighting designers from various disciplines.

SMD-3757Introduction to Effects Animation with Houdini

Monday 6:30-9:20

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Leuders

Houdini is one of the most complete visual effects packages available. This course will give an overview of the user interface, general workflow and creating procedural networks. We will also cover the basic capabilities of particles (POPs), Houdini146s new Dynamics Operators (DOPs) and creating Houdini Digital Assets (HDA). Students will create a scene implementing the concepts learned in class, and then convert the scene into a working Houdini Digital Asset (HDA).

SMD-3771-A (previously SCD-3771)Advanced MEL Scripting and Programming

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Dickinson

Learn how to become a power MEL scripter. Basic programming for MEL, as well as the basic structure and architecture of Maya, will be covered in this course. Go outside the box and learn how to create scripts for all aspects of Maya, including dynamics, rigging, rendering, modeling and animation. We will explore existing scripts and students will learn how to create and manipulate their own innovative scripts that can optimize workflow and create new animations that were not possible with plain Maya tools.

SMD-3821-ACreature Creation

Saturday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Williams

Create highly detailed fantasy creatures through this intensive course that will demonstrate professional-level techniques and tools and discuss ideologies to create believable, three-dimensional fantasy art. Assignments will include student interpretations of a classic horror figure (Frankenstein, mummy, wolf man, vampire, etc.) and a hybrid human/animal. Lectures and demonstrations of modeling and rigging as it relates to fantasy art fare (trolls, goblins, witches, wizards, ogres, dragons) will be included. The course will focus primarily on modeling and texture using Maya, Photoshop and ZBrush. Prerequisite: SMD-3721, Advanced Modeling and Rigging, or equivalent. Note: All students must receive instructor permission to enroll. Contact the BFA Computer Art Department to register for this course.

SMD-3832-AAdvanced Compositing Pipeline

Thursday 6:30-9:20

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course will focus on the visual effects pipeline as it applies to both visual effects and broadcast design, and computer animation projects. Students will learn new techniques in color correction, effects editing, and compositing for 2D and 3D animation (RPF support). Other topics will include 3D tracking, HDR imaging and advanced project management. Class projects will produce demo reels for visual effects shots. Prerequisites: A solid foundation in Adobe After Effects, Adobe Photoshop and at least one 3D application.

SMD-4011 (previously SCD-4011, first semester)Production Skills: Computer Animation I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 15 students

Seniors will continue to perfect thesis concepts and techniques, while exploring advanced topics that will be incorporated into final projects. Scene lighting and animated lighting are crucial design elements of animation projects. This course will analyze lighting and camera concepts and techniques used in film, video and computer animation and show the student how to begin constructing a library of camera effects. Limited to 15 students

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see SMD-4022 for course description.

SMD-4026 (previously SCD-4026)Professional Compositing Techniques

Monday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Ennis

The creative responsibilities of a professional compositor require knowledge of both 2D and 3D applications. Computer graphics-controlled lighting and effects capabilities are increasingly offered in high-end compositing tools. This course will survey the compositing tools available today, as well as the skills that are required to be a compositor for film and video projects.

SDD-4030The Business of Being an Artist

Fall semester: 3 credits

Computer artists work in creative environments with short deadlines and ever-changing needs, and the number of artists required to complete a project fluctuates constantly. Many artists work as project hires, while others are full-time staff members. Working as a freelance artist can be extremely rewarding, if one is careful to protect one's own interests. Students will learn the essentials of résumé preparation as well as interviewing skills required for employment in a dynamic and competitive industry. Issues of financial planning, health insurance and investments will be discussed in reference to freelance and salaried employment opportunities. Developing a basic business plan, negotiating contracts and keeping financial records will be among the course assignments.

SMD-4041-AAdvanced Sound Design and Mixing

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Holley

The focus of this course will be advanced sound design, placement and mixing techniques. These techniques will then be applied to each student's thesis project. Through lectures, student presentations and in-class assignments, students will be provided with work critiques to assist them in constructing a soundscape for their theses.

SMD-4043 (previously SCD-4043)Dynamics and Particles Systems

Saturday 1:00-3:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Fina

This course will demonstrate how to seamlessly integrate 2D and 3D using Maya's visual effects tools. Students will learn how to re-create real-life forces of nature such as rain, fire and smoke. They will also learn how to produce natural-looking motion and collisions caused by gravity, wind and friction. Topics will include dynamics (e.g., rigid body, soft body), particles, emitters and fields.

SMD-4043-B spring

SMD-4048 (previously SCD-4048)Lighting and Rendering

One semester: 3 credits

The focus of this course will be lighting and rendering issues that might be encountered during production. A technical and aesthetic overview of lighting workflow—lighting for studio, presentation, cinema and special effects—will be addressed, as well as tonal evaluation of images, color temperature and color theory. Technical issues will include: shadows, soft shadow control, light types, lighting setup and control, custom light-control interface design; raytracing, mental ray versus Maya renderer, Caustics, Final Gathering, global illumination. Rendering issues will include advanced shaders and shading networks, Maya/mental ray shaders, rendering in layers, batch rendering, command line rendering, render scripts; camera, lens, shutter attributes, camera animation and cinematography. Students will also examine a variety of outside resources, such as classical painting, photography and both current and classic films.

SMD-4052-A (previously SCD-4052)Advanced Postproduction Techniques

Monday 6:30-9:20

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Students will examine their thesis projects and concentrate on enhancing their final productions by reediting sequences, animation timing, camera animations, color corrections, compositing issues and title design sequences. Thesis projects must be nearly complete before students can enroll in this course.

SDD-4080Thesis I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: Thesis Committee

Each section limited to 15 students

This course will lead the student through the production process of creating a thesis project that is original and of professional quality. Weekly critiques and class discussions will allow students to progressively develop and produce their thesis projects. The creative and technical skills developed over the first three years are now applied, as students complete their thesis projects. Students must register for the corresponding section of their production skills discipline.

SDD-4090-AThesis Special Topics

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: J. McIntosh

Class time is reserved for discussion of special topics, senior requirements, production scholarships, visiting artists and technical workshops as required throughout the senior year.

SMD-4999-AComputer Art Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

Computer Art Electives

Open to All Departments

Note: Students who do not attend the first two course sessions and fail to call the Computer Art Department may forfeit their seat in the course. A student ID card validated with the current semester computer art ID sticker must be presented. Courses are listed in numerical order. All sections of the following courses are open to all departments.

SDD-Access

Computer Art Center Access

Two semesters: no credit

Lab fee: $500 each semester

This is for students who want to use the Computer Art Department's Macintosh or PC computers in order to work on their own projects without the guidance of a faculty member. Students are expected to have a full working knowledge of both the software and hardware they will be using. Note: Permission of the Computer Art Department chair is required.

SDD-2107-A

Techniques for Visual Thinking

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Cudlitz

This course will expand each student's understanding of drawing to encompass the skills and vocabulary of diverse visualization methods. Students will learn techniques used in a variety of design and media disciplines to facilitate both individual and collaborative creative process. Each student will complete 12 specific group and individual visualization tasks and assignments in a standard sketchbook/journal format. The course will explore techniques for time-based linear media and nonlinear concepts and processes. Participation is an essential aspect of this course. Prerequisite: Students should have basic drawing skills.

SDD-2114

Life Drawing for Computer Animators

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Ruggeri

Gesture, movement and character expression are important considerations for the computer animator. This drawing course will explore various facets of human expression, such as emotions and physical mannerisms. Using models, students will learn to "catch" a moment in time through quick poses, as well as work out individual subtleties through longer poses. Field trips will be part of the challenge of learning to draw people in crowds and in motion.

SMD-2134-B

Humorous Illustration for Computer Artists

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Levin

This course is designed for students who aspire to work as professional illustrators, choosing humor as their medium of expression. Students will learn how to create and execute humorous content using Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator. The course will cover choreography of visual and subjective matter, the narrative, working with subtext and adhering to concept. Computer techniques, personal style, as well as the structure and use of humor in the development of dynamic work will also be covered. Professional-level assignments will be given in such areas as political and gag cartooning, magazine illustration, children's books, advertising, and others. There will be heavy individual critiquing and guest lectures by top working professionals. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2134-A.

SMD-2243-B

Photoshop: Beyond the Foundations

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: C. McCormack

People often say they know how to use Adobe Photoshop, but do they really know its most important features and how to harness its power? Each session will concentrate on one isolated aspect of Photoshop. By the end of the semester, every student will be a Photoshop power user. Issues to be focused on include levels, curves, actions, layer styles, filters, extract, alpha channels and liquefy, among others. In one semester, this course will cover the Photoshop universe. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2243-A.

SMD-2244-B

Flashtooning Animation with Macromedia Flash

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Pearlman

How to use Macromedia Flash for cartoon-style animation for the eventual display on the Web will be the focus of this course. Discussions include proper scanning, optimization of images and animation techniques, such as keyframing and how to use them in Flash. Students will also learn how to use light and color in a cartooning environment. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Students should have some experience with inking their own line art. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2244-A.

SMD-3162-B

Interactive Media: Design and Programming I

Friday 3:00-5:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: TBA

Students will explore a variety of concepts and processes for using programming to enhance any screen-based project. Working with Macromedia Flash and basic ActionScript programming, students will create working prototypes of interactive design and animations. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3162-A.

SMD-3163-B

Interactive Media: Design and Programming II

Friday 3:00-5:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: TBA

Students will learn advanced concepts and the processes of programming within the Macromedia Flash ActionScript environment. Working with OOP (Object-Oriented Programming), students will create reusable components and application of external languages like XML to make interactive screen-based projects more efficient and elegant. Prerequisite: SMD-3162, Interactive Media: Design and Programming I. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3163-A.

SMD-3221-B

Advanced Adobe Photoshop Techniques

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: K. Eismann

This course will explore the most advanced creative and production techniques of Adobe Photoshop, including image layer management, shapes and vector masking as well as integrated Web tools. Students will identify their professional and creative goals as they develop a portfolio of images. They will learn to design images for maximum results, whether the images are created for photographic printing, offset reproduction or the Web. The entire imaging process will be examined and explained, along with the most effective shortcuts that will speed the production process. Prerequisite: SMD-2243, Photoshop: Beyond the Foundations, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3221-A.

SMD-3228-B (previously SCD-3228)

3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: E. Eiser

Alias Maya is widely used in the 3D animation industry and is highly regarded for its modeling, animation and special effects capabilities. Starting with storyboards, students will then learn modeling, cameras, lighting, surfaces, motion scripting and rendering. Several examples of high-end 3D animation will be demonstrated and analyzed. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3228-A.

SMD-3229-B (previously SCD-3229)

3D Modeling and Animation with Maya II

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: E. Eiser

Alias Maya is an industry leader in 3D content creation used by computer graphics professionals in the film, broadcast, industrial design and game development industries. This course will further explore Maya's more advanced tools and capabilities through in-class exercises and assigned projects. Topics will include character design, animation, skeletal rigging, dynamics, particles and shading. Prerequisite: SMD-3228, 3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I, or equivalent. This course is cross-listed with SMD-3229-A.

SMD-3231-B

Digital Photography for Computer Artists

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: K. Eismann

This intensive hands-on course will introduce you to the fundamental concepts of classic photography, including: determining proper exposure, lighting, lens choices, image composition, black-and-white and color photography. In addition, the course will delve into the most important aspects of digital photography such as: which file formats are best, camera management, and advanced digital dark-room techniques with Adobe Photoshop. The course will cover fundamental studio lighting techniques as well as provide a thorough understanding of digital camera types. Students will come away with a working knowledge of photographic exposure techniques to compensate for a variety of lighting situations and an understanding of camera optics and their impact on image composition. Students must provide or have access to their own digital camera. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3231-A.

SMD-3257-B

Adobe After Effects Techniques

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Meyers

After Effects is a powerful compositing and animation tool for creating video special effects, 2D and 3D animation, and broadcast graphics. Using keyframes, we will cover how to animate masks and filters over time, to create precise motion paths using bezier curves and to achieve complex layered compositions. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3257-A.

SMD-3258-B

Advanced Adobe After Effects

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Meyers

After Effects is now an integral design tool in video production and motion graphics studios. After Effects is an extremely precise tool that allows the artist to control each element of design and digital effects with a degree of subtlety that was once only available on extremely expensive computer workstations. Through class exercises and examples, students will learn to explore and discover the technical aspects of this program and incorporate these aspects into their own animated designs and motion graphic projects. Prerequisite: SMD-3257, Adobe After Effects Techniques. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3258-A.

SMD-3267-B

Creating 3D Graphics for Broadcast Design

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: E. Reinfeld

The ability to integrate 3D graphics in broadcast design and interactive media is now an essential design skill. This course will examine how to extrude type into 3D and to model simple 3D elements, as well as how to control CG lighting, rendering, masking and motion tracking. The integration of live-action footage with computer graphics will be covered as a foundation for dynamic visual effects for both still and moving images. Prerequisite: SMD-3257, Adobe After Effects Techniques. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3267-A.

SMD-3341

Digital Matte Painting

Thursday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: D. Mattingly

Digital matte painting (DMP) is a field that has been around since the early days of still and moving images. Initially created as paintings on large pieces of glass, the digital revolution has extended the form to levels previously unimagined. In the current climate of heavy visual-effects productions in film, broadcast, the Web and video games, the skills necessary to perform quickly and with emotion have become all the more crucial. The beauty of working in digital matte painting is that it employs traditional art skills blended with cutting-edge technology. This course will introduce students to the history of the medium, the philosophy of "style" (photorealistic, non-photorealistic) and the practical applications used to execute a shot. Prerequisites: SMD-3228, 3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I, and SMD-3258, Advanced Adobe After Effects, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3341-A and SMD-3341-C.

Introduction to Macromedia Flash Animation

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: O. Haddock

Macromedia Flash is the standard for creating interactive vector graphics and animation on the Web. Students will explore the foundation assets and techniques used within Flash and build several small projects as a basis to create a large portfolio of vector-based interactive animations. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3449-A.

SMD-3452-BAdvanced Macromedia Flash Animation

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: O. Haddock

Flash continues to add more advanced levels of interactivity and controls for animation. Students will explore these functions using different methods with if/else statements, for loops, arrays and functions. The content created will help students produce dynamic reusable code to build a foundation of skills they can continue to develop upon in future projects. Prerequisite: SMD-3449, Introduction to Macromedia Flash Animation, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3452-A.

SMD-3558Dynamic Abstraction—Writing Art-Making Machines with Macromedia Flash

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: J. Davis

Fundamentally, art and design have been taught as the very static process of executing style and method and arriving at an end result. In this course, students will learn to write programs that generate compositions and animations. With this method, the end result is never static. Students will learn how to use Macromedia Flash and ActionScript to build these art-making programs that can be used multiple times for various projects. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3558-A and SMD-3558-C.

ESL/Studio Program

In the fall and spring semesters, students in the ESL/Studio Program must register for a weekly minimum of 12 hours of study in English as a Second Language per semester. Students must register for ESD-0050 and ESD-0055, English as a Second Language: Reading Strategies I and II; ESD-0060 and ESD-0065, English as a Second Language: Writing Strategies I and II; and ESD-0070, The Language of Art I. In addition, students must register for one ESL elective course in the fall semester and two ESL elective courses in the spring semester.

Students must also register for studio and art history requirements in their major field of study. Please refer to your major studio department in the pages that follow for information on these required courses. Students must register for at least 12 credits per semester and may register for up to 15 credits per semester at no additional tuition charge.

Three semesters of English as a Second Language must be completed, beginning with the ESL/Studio Summer Workshop. Please refer to the eight-week ESL/Studio Summer Workshop in the Summer 2007 section of this book.

English as a Second Language General Course Listing

ESD-0050

ESL/Studio Program Advertising Requirements

Advertising majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

ADI-1010 Principles of Visual Language I

One semester: 3 credits
This studio course will explore the fundamental principles of two-dimensional design and how these principles relate to visual communication. Through direct, hands-on participation in assignments and independent projects, students will work toward developing their own unique "visual language." Experiment with composition, visual hierarchy, typographic design, color interaction and visual narrative will be stressed. Students will explore a wide range of visual concepts, including abstraction, symmetry and asymmetry, contrast, figure/ground relationships, rhythm and harmony. Class time is used for the creation and execution of design work, along with critiques and discussions. Assignments are paper-based: supplies include construction paper, drafting and cutting tools, and gouache paint. The primary medium will collage.

ADI-1015 (previously ADI-1010, second semester) Principles of Visual Language II

One semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ADI-1010 for course description.

ADI-1020 Foundations in 3D Graphic Design

One semester: 3 credits
A study of visual perception through the use of three-dimensional media is the focus of this course. A conceptual approach toward problem solving, technical skills and utilization of various media will be emphasized.

AHI-1010 Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits
As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures, this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHI-1015 Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHI-1010 for course description.

FDI-1030 Drawing

One semester: 3 credits
Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDI-1035 (previously FDI-1030, second semester) Drawing

One semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDI-1030 for course description.

SMI-1020 Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits
This course is an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists. Students will learn the basic computer skills to operate and maintain a computer and the creative techniques used to create collages and layered images as well as the tools required to display their work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

ESL/Studio Program

Fine Arts, Graphic Design, Illustration and Cartooning Requirements

Fine arts, graphic design, illustration and cartooning majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

We have arranged seven different general course programs (numbered 1-7), all composed of the required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures, this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHI-1015 Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHI-1010 for course description.

FDI-1030 Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDI-1035 (previously FDI-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDI-1030 for course description.

FPI-1020

Painting I

One semester: 3 credits

Foundation-year painting will explore various means of representation through the application of pigments to canvas, panels and paper. Color and its organizational principles will be investigated—both as a practical and theoretical endeavor. An exploration of form and content will be undertaken with an emphasis on technical skills. Class critiques and museum visits will be employed as vehicles to develop critical terms concerning painting.

FPI-1025 (previously FPI-1020, second semester)

Painting II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPI-1020 for course description.

FSI-1050

Sculpture

One semester: 3 credits

As an introduction to the material world, this course explores diverse media and their potentialities to create volume, line and mass. Ranging from the ethereal to the fabricated, materials such as clay, plaster, cardboard, wood, resin and wire will be investigated by exercises in casting, mold-making, installation and site-specific work. Discussion will include concepts of space, gravity and light, among others, as they pertain to three-dimensional form.

SMI-1020

Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits

This course is an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists. Students will learn the basic computer skills to operate and maintain a computer and the creative techniques used to create collages and layered images as well as the tools required to display their work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

ESL/Studio Program

Computer Art Requirements

Computer art majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

We have arranged three different computer art course programs (numbered 1-3), all composed of required courses. Please look over these schedules and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

AHI-1010

Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures, this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHI-1015

Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHI-1010 for course description.

ANI-1030

Introduction to Animation

One semester: 3 credits

This course will cover basic concepts such as storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes and timing. Students will also learn in-betweening, squash-and-stretch, weight, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns. Most importantly, the course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character model sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in class.

FDI-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDI-1035 (previously FDI-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDI-1030 for course description.

SDI-1050

Narrative Workshop

One semester: 3 credits

This course will examine the history of storytelling and its fundamental elements, including story and character development, timing and narrative structure. Students will tell and write their own stories, polish them in class and discuss how they might bring their stories to life through illustrated storyboards.

SMI-1200

Introduction to Imaging Tools and Techniques

One semester: 3 credits

Two-dimensional image capture and creation is the focus of this introductory course. From simple image manipulation to creating complex collages of layered images, students will use raster, vector and page-layout programs to create and present their original images. Students will explore the use of digital cameras, flatbed and film scanners and learn to prepare their images for a variety of output options. We will also cover basic visual computing skills, including file-naming conventions, color management and color modes.

SMI-1250

Introduction to Digital Video Tools and Techniques

One semester: 3 credits

Students will be introduced to the essentials of video and digital video technologies, with a concentration on the basics of video production, nonlinear editing and digital postproduction. Projects will take students from still images to composited animations to final edited productions with sound.

We have arranged three different film course programs (numbered 1-3), all composed of the required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

AHI-1050

Introduction to Film History I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

Serving as an introduction to the theatrical motion picture, this course will examine its nascence along with the silent era and early sound. While American narrative film will be emphasized, examples of world cinema will also be screened. Political, cultural and aesthetic history will form a background for viewing selected films—both important works and more transitory ones—to gain an understanding of how the medium developed and its cultural impact.

AHI-1055

Introduction to Film History II

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

A continuation of AHI-1050, Introduction to Film History I, we will examine the history of motion pictures from the ascendancy of the studio system, through effects of World War II on the film industry to the subsequent collapse and re-emergence of prominent studios. The era of independent filmmaking will also be addressed. While American narrative film will be emphasized, examples of world cinema will also be screened, as well as examples from various film genres, including documentary, animation and experimental work.

CFI-1020

Introduction to Production I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Designed as an introduction to the art of filmmaking, this course will emphasize the essential differences between film and other visual art forms through screenings of various film genres to illustrate style and process. Working with 16mm Bolex, 16mm ARRI-S and DV cameras, as well as written material from storytelling courses, students will break down projects and work on storyboards. We will discuss and practice directing and cinematography techniques and explore the director/actor relationship. Students will present a series of selected scenes—preproduction through postproduction—for critique.

CFI-1025 (previously CFI-1020, second semester)

Introduction to Production II

Spring semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see CFI-1020 for course description.

CFI-1040

Storytelling

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

An introduction to visual thinking and writing for film, this course will explore the use of images, words, and sense-of-place in the creation of characters and events that give life to a script. When reading and discussing their story assignments in class, students will discover the variety of styles and tones—using humor, action, fantasy and reality—available in communicating to an audience. Upon completion of a final draft, stories can be developed in production courses.

CFI-1070

Acting for Film

Spring semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

This course is designed as an introduction to the world of actors and their techniques. Built on the basis of moment-to-moment reality, sense memory, improvisation and intuitive use of the self, students will learn how to create believable characters for the screen. The vocabulary necessary for communicating with actors will be taught, as well as the art of constructive criticism essential to direction.

CFI-1090

Introduction to Editing I

Fall semester: 3 credits

The grammar and aesthetics of editing in the visual storytelling process is the focus of this course. The first semester will examine the theory and process of editing through lectures, applications and screenings. Students will work on the Apple Final Cut Pro digital editing platform to edit assignments and exercises. Areas of exploration will include editorial and narrative structure, rhythm and pace. The second semester underscores scene study and how to maximize the actor's performance.

CFI-1095 (previously CFI-1090, second semester)

Introduction to Editing II

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see CFI-1090 for course description.

ESL/Studio Program Animation Requirements

Animation majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

We have arranged two different animation programs composed of all required courses. Please look over the schedules and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, we cannot guarantee your first preference.

AHI-1080 History of Animation I: Traditional to Digital

Fall semester: 3 credits
This course explores milestones in animation, from pioneers like Walt Disney, Norman McLaren and Lotte Reiniger, to present-day digital innovators. Along the way we'll consider a range of techniques, including line-and-cel, glass painting, stop motion, clay animation, morphs and 3D characters. We'll also see how—and why—animation deserves to be seen as perhaps the most complex art form.

AHI-1085 History of Animation II: Traditional to Digital

Spring semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHI-1080 for course description.

ANI-1020 Introduction to Animation I

Fall semester: 3 credits
The basic concepts of storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes, timing, in-betweening, weight, squash-and-stretch, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns will be covered in this course. Most importantly, this course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character mode sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in every session. Students will be required to complete a 30-second pencil test from storyboard through shooting.

ANI-1025 (previously ANI-1020, second semester) Introduction to Animation II

Fall semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ANI-1020 for course description.

ANI-1040 Storytelling

One semester: 3 credits
Each section limited to 16 students
This course is an introduction to the basic concepts of storytelling. Oral traditions will be examined as will written narrative forms, including myth, drama, short stories, novels and poetry. Papers, outside readings and storyboarding of ideas will be required.

ANI-1070 Acting for Animators

One semester: 3 credits
Each section limited to 16 students
The technique of acting can only be understood by practicing it. As an animator, one must understand what it is the actor needs from the director in order to establish proper perspective and emotions for animated characters. Students will learn the basic techniques all actors use in preparing for a scene and, as an "actor with a pencil," further develop communication skills.

FDI-1030 Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits
Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDI-1035 (previously FDI-1030, second semester) Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDI-1030 for course description.

ESL/Studio Program

Interior Design Requirements

Interior design majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

IDI-1010

Basic Building Systems

One semester: 3 credits

This course will introduce the foundation and materials and methods of interior drafting and basic building systems. The purpose of this course is to enable students to understand and complete a variety of drawing types used in the design of interior space. Topics will include: tools and materials used in drafting, surveying a space, converting survey information into a plan, plans, elevations, axonometric drawings, detail drawings. Guided by the lecture material and studio/classroom projects, students will prepare a series of drawings that will enhance their understanding of how drawings are prepared and used in the development of an interior space design.

IDI-1020

Perspective Drawing

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on architectural sketching and graphic skills necessary to complete quick interior sketching and to present, communicate and develop interior ideas and concepts quickly and graphically. A journal will be required. Course work will support drawings for IDI-1060, Designing Interiors, where possible.

IDI-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

The majority of the class sessions will be spent at various New York City locations, learning to draw the particular details of an environment. Composition will be stressed along with line drawing and the use of tone to capture the sometimes subtle changes and differences of the environment. Capturing the mood of the building and its locale are one of the major course goals. Students will be encouraged to develop selectivity in order to stress a focal point or area of interest.

IDI-1050

Design Concepts

One semester: 3 credits

This course is designed to help students develop a personal vision within the context of the design process. Basic design principles for interiors and principles of visual thinking and communication will be introduced through two- and three-dimensional projects. Line, mass, texture, volume, form, shape, configuration, symmetry, vista, light, color, proportion and scale will be covered.

IDI-1060

Designing Interiors

One semester: 3 credits

As the first step in designing interiors, this course will organize the creative design process into a number of distinct steps, including: a study of client and user needs, writing the design "program," understanding the building that will house the interior design, diagramming activity areas, drawing the interior, analyzing and selecting materials and furniture, presenting the design and follow-up. Small interior design projects will serve as the focus of the semester, requiring the application of basic skills and visual design studies from all other courses.

IDI-1140

Drawing II: Drawing and Color

One semester: 3 credits

This course will begin as a continuation of IDI-1030, Drawing I. The first five sessions will focus on the rendering of interior and architectural details and ornament with the emphasis on surface characteristics and proportions. The next 10 sessions will incorporate color theory for interior design, and will focus on the history, language, technology and psychology of color as well as how to use color in design sketching and plans.

IDI-1160

Computer-Aided Drafting and Design

One semester: 3 credits

This course is an introduction to computer-aided design and drafting (CAD). The overall concepts and ideas explored are the same as those in a manual drafting class, even though they will be taught through AutoCAD, the industry standard software program. The concepts covered will enable students to use most CAD programs. The concepts of layout, line weights, dimensions and annotation will be explored. We will approach drawing as a visual communication tool that is both artistic and informative. The course will revolve around a semester-long project that will result in a drawing that contains the various types of plans, elevations and sections of an interior space. Three hours per week of scheduled lab time is required. A teaching assistant will be available during lab time to help students with problems they may encounter in completing assignments.

IDI-1170

Basic Computer Design

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on the basic operational skills of the computer and the development of creative techniques in 2D and 3D using Adobe Photoshop, Illustrator and InDesign. Students will start learning about the computer's operating system, how to scan images at the proper resolution and develop an archive of work. The course will cover basic graphic design principles of layout and design through hands-on exercises to create business cards, letterheads, logos, typefaces, layout grids and press types.

IDI-2130

Current Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals I

Fall semester: no credit

Two required lectures on current issues in interior design will be held by visiting professionals. Scheduling of the lectures will be announced during the semester.

IDI-2135

Current Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals II

Spring semester: no credit

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see IDI-2130 for course description.

ESL/Studio Program

Photography Requirements

Photography majors must take all of the courses listed below, as well as all ESL course requirements. These courses must be successfully completed by the end of the program, unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any of these courses and do not have to take the entire curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

We have arranged four individual course programs (numbered 1-4), all composed of the required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

AHI-1060

History of Photography I

One semester: 3 credits

An introduction to the history of photography, this course will begin with a discussion of the invention of photography and continue through the work of the present day. Major photographers and trends in photography will be covered in detail.

AHI-1065

History of Photography II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHI-1060 for course description.

PHI-1030

Photography Workshop I

One semester: 3 credits

A black-and-white-photography course with an emphasis on individual growth through extensive darkroom work and group critique. Printing, negative development, bleaching, spotting and mounting are covered. Assignments will be given, and students are required to submit a portfolio at the end of the semester.

Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHI-1035 (previously PHI-1030, second semester)

Photography Workshop II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHI-1030 for course description.

PHI-1040

Introduction to the Principles of Photography

Fall semester: 3 credits

This series of lectures and demonstrations will supplement the student's practical experience in PHI-1030, Photography Workshop I. Sessions will investigate the principles of photographic materials and techniques and discuss how to apply them effectively to achieve improved picture quality. Topics include: exposure and exposure meters, development, light and filters, printing materials and techniques, contrast control, cameras and lenses, practical testing, sources of information.

PHI-1080

Introduction to Digital Imaging

Spring semester: 3 credits

Emphasis will be placed on gaining a fundamental understanding of the Adobe Photoshop application. Among the topics covered will be file management, image size and resolution, flatbed and film scanning, color modes, file formats, painting and editing tools, image adjustments, working with layers and layer masks, and output options. By the end of the semester, students should have a basic understanding of how to work with photographs in a digital environment.

PHI-1090

Foundation Symposium

Fall semester: 3 credits

Foundation Symposium is designed to introduce the student to a variety of photographic practices and ideas. The symposium is composed of six (6) five-week courses that will explore the following topics.

Career

The practical information and career opportunities available to photographers will be discussed in depth. Topics will include: procedures for introducing work to fine art and commercial industries; résumés, statements and other supportive materials; effective strategies for promotion and marketing; basic business practices.

Commerce

This course will give an overview of how photography, both vintage and contemporary, is valued and priced in the fine art market. Recent trends in contemporary photography are discussed, and field trips to New York galleries are required. The use of photography in magazines will also be discussed and students will research the possibilities available in editorial, fashion and travel assignments.

Language

The many ways that photography and language interact to create meanings is the focus of this course. We will examine a broad range of work—advertising, fine art, documentary, photojournalism, fashion—to see how text can shape the way we understand images, and vice versa. Class time will be devoted to in-class assignments, discussions, slide presentations and critiques.

There is a large body of photographic art that utilizes the physical presentation of the imagery as an integral part of the artwork. We will explore photo-based works, such as Dada collage, constructed pieces and installation work. Students will be encouraged to expand their appreciation of the ways in which photographs are presented, and will explore alternative approaches to presentations, encouraging a reevaluation of how a photographic image can be utilized.

Take Photos, Add Techniques, Stir

This class combines photography with a range of art techniques to create expressive, innovative pictures. The use of paint, collage and alternative photography will be applied to photographs based on a study of principles of visual perception.

Video

The goal of this production/discussion course is to expose photography students to contemporary video art and to encourage a dialogue between photography and video, both technically and conceptually, as part of a larger art practice. Genres will include mock documentary, music video, reality television and advertising. Each student will produce two video pieces (one to three minutes in duration).

Department of Film, Video and Animation

Film and Video First-Year Requirements

Freshman film and video majors must take all the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are nine film and video foundation course programs, each composed of foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

Animation majors should refer to the animation curriculum.

AHD-1050 Introduction to Film History I

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

Serving as an introduction to the theatrical motion picture, this course will examine its nascence along with the silent era and early sound. While American narrative film will be emphasized, examples of world cinema will also be screened.

Political, cultural and aesthetic history will form a background for viewing selected films—both important works and more transitory ones—to gain an understanding of how the medium developed and its cultural impact.

AHD-1055 Introduction to Film History II

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Stavis

A continuation of AHD-1050, Introduction to Film History I, we will examine the history of motion pictures from the ascendancy of the studio system, through effects of World War II on the film industry to the subsequent collapse and re-emergence of prominent studios. The era of independent filmmaking will also be addressed. While American narrative film will be emphasized examples of world cinema will also be screened, as well as examples from various film genres, including documentary, animation and experimental work.

CFD-1020 Introduction to Production I

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Designed as an introduction to the art of filmmaking, this course will emphasize the essential differences between film and other visual art forms through screenings of various film genres to illustrate style and process. Working with 16mm Bolex, 16mm ARRI-S and DV cameras, as well as written material from storytelling courses, students will break down projects and work on storyboards.

We will discuss and practice directing and cinematography techniques and explore the director/actor relationship. Students will present a series of selected scenes—preproduction through postproduction—for critique.

CFD-1025 (previously CFD-1020, second semester)

Introduction to Production II

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see CFD-1020 for course description.

CFD-1040 Storytelling

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

An introduction to visual thinking and writing for film, this course will explore the use of images, words, and sense-of-place in the creation of characters and events that give life to a script. When reading and discussing their story assignments in class, students will discover the variety of styles and tones—using humor, action, fantasy and reality—available in communicating to an audience. Upon completion of a final draft, stories can be developed in production courses.

CFD-1070 Acting for Film

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

This course is designed as an introduction to the world of actors and their techniques. Built on the basis of moment-to-moment reality, sense memory, improvisation and intuitive use of the self, students will learn how to create believable characters for the screen. The vocabulary necessary for communicating with actors will be taught as well as the art of constructive criticism essential to direction.

CFD-1090 Introduction to Editing I

One semester: 3 credits

The grammar and aesthetics of editing in the visual storytelling process is the focus of this course. The first semester will examine the theory and process of editing through lectures, applications and screenings. Students will work on the Apple Final Cut Pro digital editing platform to edit assignments and exercises. Areas of exploration will include editorial and narrative structure, rhythm and pace. Scene study and how to maximize the actor's performance will also be emphasized.

CFD-1095 (previously CFD-1090, second semester) Introduction to Editing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see CFD-1090 for course description.

HCD-1010 Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020
Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits
This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

Production Workshop I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Using 16mm and digital cameras, students will build on the techniques introduced in the foundation year to explore more complex projects. Through technical demonstration, lectures and assignments, participants will work in production teams, each student taking responsibility for a particular task. Special lenses, stocks, filters, lights, as well as support equipment will be introduced; projects will be assigned and produced. In the second semester, students will complete a sync-sound film and work on individual projects.

CFD-2060-AEditing for Cinematographers

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

During the visualization of a script and the production process, the director and the director of photography create, select and render the material that will be transformed into a cinematic narrative in the postproduction process. With each camera position, dolly move, tilt and pan, the cinematographer is supplying the editor with narrative information, structural elements and source. An in-depth knowledge of editing grammar, theory and practices is essential for the cinematographer to create the images that will later be organized into a fluid, well-paced story. Through lectures, discussions, screenings and the study of important cinematographers and editors, we will explore the ideas and principles that govern the editorial process.

AHD-2068-AThe Language of Film

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Sinha

Structured as an introduction to the basic terms and concepts of cinematic language, this course will explore the vocabulary, grammar, sign and syntax of film through screenings, lectures and discussion. Feature-length narratives as well as animated, experimental and documentary shorts will be addressed, with an emphasis on examining the function of the film as a formal construct—the basic principles of film form. We will also pay particular attention to the techniques of the film medium along with the questions of types and genres of films. The course is analytical but with a thoroughly pragmatic bent: to map the extraordinary diversity of contemporary cinematic practice in relation to editing, sound, cinematography, framing, genre, auteur and narration. Note: This course is cross-listed with AHD-2068-B.

AHD-2070International Cinema

One semester: 3 credits

Designed to facilitate an understanding of classic and contemporary international cinema, this course is dedicated to the study of films that have adopted a different aesthetic framework from Hollywood. We will discuss themes, ideologies, forms, the impact of history—both political and social—and the background stories of the filmmakers. Screenings will be drawn from the cinema of Mira Nair (India), Jean-Luc Godard (France), Andrei Tarkovsky (Russia), Federico Fellini (Italy) Carl Dreyer (Denmark), Luis Buñuel (Spain/Mexico) and Peter Weir (Australia), among others. Note: The course sections below are cross-listed with AHD-2070-C and AHD-2070-D.

Lighting and Cinematography I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Instructor: TBA

The technical and aesthetic aspect of lighting for film and digital video will be explored in this course. We will begin with an examination of basic lighting instruments and their characteristics and use in the art of lighting: composition, color, light-and-shadow, three-point lighting, cameras and lenses. The course will then focus on creating and controlling the cinematic style, and studying the differences between film and digital video. Exposure, latitude, interior, exterior, shooting, high-key and low-key styles, narrative and commercial production will all be covered. The spring semester will concentrate on lens, film stock, and digital video compression. Assignments will vary from 30-second commercials to tabletop and blue-screen productions to recreating scenes from feature films. The close relationship of production and postproduction in a computerized world will be examined.

Production Design

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. LoBrutto

The purpose of this course is to investigate and understand the role of production design in the filmmaking process. We will begin by tracing the history of art direction in the Hollywood studio system through the work of leading art directors. Particular attention will be given to the work of William Cameron Menzies and how his contributions led to the advent of the production designer. The craft and job of the production designer will be explored in detail. The process and working methods will be defined and explained with particular focus on how directors collaborate with designers to capture their vision on film.

CFD-2088-A

Film and Television Makeup

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Mason

Makeup has been an integral part of filmmaking and television since their debuts—directors and actors alike rely on the talent of the makeup artist to give credibility to their characters. In this course, students will be given an overview of the field of makeup design and application (painting, construction methods, prosthesis) and then experiment with what they have learned. As an objective, students will design and create their own complete “character” makeup. The skills learned will be of benefit for personal projects and for a career in makeup artistry. Note: This course is cross-listed with CFD-2088-B.

CFD-2120

Writers Workshop for the Short Film I

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Designed as a workshop, this course will encourage students to think and write visually in screenplay form to create stories in short-film format. Script ideas detailing characters, dramatic events, sense-of-place, tone and style will be read in class allowing for an adventurous, open and constructive discussion. Each student will complete a 10-minute screenplay.

Screenwriting Technique, Theory and Practice

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Tierno

From Aristotle's Poetics to Robert McKee's Story and The Writers Journey, Hollywood has employed many powerful writing systems and theoretical approaches to guide writers toward writing better stories. It behooves writers and directors to discover these systems early in their careers. In this survey-style course, students will work through exercises designed to teach the basics of each system, with the goal of discovering which ones suit their own creative temperaments. Classic film scripts and films will be analyzed to see how different techniques are manifest in great works. Emphasis will be placed on screenplay formatting and using Final Draft. The Hollywood screenplay coverage system will be examined and students will read new scripts and learn to write studio-style coverage. These coverage “drills” can help to get you the skills for finding work in the business and, more importantly, they will help you to understand how your own work will be evaluated. This discipline is invaluable to help writers develop. “Pitching” will be covered and practiced; guests from the industry will be invited to coach these exercises. Numerous short films will be screened and their corresponding scripts will be read in order to give students an immersion into great short screenplays and inspire them to write their own breakthrough shorts.

CFD-2140

Screenwriting I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

This course is designed to give a comprehensive introduction to the art of telling a story cinematically. Students will explore stories that interest them using newspaper articles, short stories or personal observations/original ideas as a basis for their scripts. Characters will be created and imagined in dramatic events through dialogue and images describing conflicts and sense-of-place. In-class readings will support an environment in which students can share their initial ideas and participate in discussion of each other's work. Story ideas, structure and character analysis can be applied to any style: fantasy, humor, adventure or American Realism. Each student will complete a full-length screenplay.

CFD-2150Character and Plot

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Instructor: E. Fabri

Character is the essence of a drama—the seed from which the plot and its dramatic actions are grown. By using the theories of Stanislavsky, viewing films and writing short, imaginative exercises, students will work on character development and plot derived exclusively from character and dramatic action, which is the visual and active language of the plot. Over the course of the semester, students will complete full profiles on their characters and an outline or treatment of the script. Creating Unforgettable Characters and An Actor Prepares will be reference materials for this course.

CFD-2159-AFilm Criticism

Tuesday 7:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Mooij

Designed to offer a structure for critical film analysis, this course will examine a variety of approaches to film criticism, and will provide a means for students to analyze their own creative output as well as that of well-known filmmakers. Students will gain insights into how to formulate objective assessments of a particular film or body of work from the perspective that there is not a single “right” way to review a film—whatever the genre. Does the work have an overriding theme? How do style, form and tone relate? Are there any cultural differences that need to be considered? We will screen and assess films in class; writing assignments will be given.

CFD-2160Creating Character

Spring semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

The root of all drama is character. From Aristotle to Tony Kushner, from Chaplin to Spike Jonze, it is the characters that make us care. This workshop will explore a fusion of acting and writing techniques, which nurture a faster and deeper creation of character. Characters and plots will be developed through active exercises, improvisations and dialogue. This unique learning experience is for writers, actors, directors and others looking to take storytelling to another level.

CFD-2202-AActing II

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 16 students

This course is for students who want to increase their thespian skills by working on scenes and monologues. Advanced techniques will be taught as well as communication skills for the actor to collaborate with the director, while staying within the actor/director relationship.

CFD-2230Advanced Final Cut Pro

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Students will explore advanced features of Apple Final Cut Pro such as: effect editing, signal measurement and color correction. The integration of Final Cut Pro with other postproduction applications such as Adobe After Effects, Photoshop, DVD Studio Pro, Peak DV and Cinema Tools will also be addressed. How to manage media workflow while simultaneously exploring scene construction will be the focus of the course. Students must bring in their own work. Prerequisite: CFD-2020, Editing, or equivalent.

HLD-2950-AModern Drama I

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Carey

This course will introduce students to the foundation of present-day theater. While attention will be paid to directors, actors and stage artists, the emphasis is on the playwright. The concentration will be on the realistic movement and will cover such dramatists as Ibsen, Strindberg, Chekhov and O'Neill.

CVD-3010Advanced Film/Digital Production I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Through exercises and demonstrations, this course will emphasize the craft, aesthetics and content of filmmaking as practiced in emerging and traditional formats. The premise is to develop expanded and sophisticated languages for the moving image in the 21st century. Each student will complete an assignment and an individual project in the first semester; a major project or series of projects is required in the second semester. Film or digital format can be used and edited accordingly. It is strongly recommended that students meet with the instructor of choice before registering for the course.

Advanced Lighting and Cinematography I

Wednesday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Sunara

Limited to 15 students

Three interrelated areas of cinematography that are essential to the realization of the dramatic demands of the script—visualization of the script, communicating with actors, lighting and postproduction processes—are the focus of this course. Through demonstrations, discussions, screenings, critiques and hands-on projects, students will explore sophisticated lighting techniques for film and digital cinematography. How to translate ideas into images, experiment with varied lighting styles and create specific moods for interiors and exteriors will be examined, as well as the collaboration between the director and director of photography in planning action scenes, structure, coverage and the interpretation of the script. We will discuss emulsions, tonality, contrast, the “quality” of light, exposure, angles, composition, movement, continuity, lenses, depth of field, filters, special effects, lab liaisons (timing lights, printing, digital mastering and transfers) and managing camera and lighting crews. Arriflex 16-SR camera, advanced digital cameras, super speed lenses, dolly, Jib-arm, Gear head, Steady-cam, Tungsten, HMI and Kino-Flo lights will be used in class. Note: Open to cinematography specialists only.

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Newman

Limited to 16 students

This course is conducted as a series of workshops in practical applications of microphone techniques, boom operation, production mixing and sound design. In addition, students will begin postproduction mixing and preparation of post-production sound tracks. Discussion of the sound space with technicians, producers and directors will be included. Prerequisite: CFD-2050, Sound Production I.

Masters of Light

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Light is more than an aesthetic choice. It is also the electric bulb, x-rays, the beginning of the world (Genesis), photography, the big bang, cinema, Einstein’s Theory of Relativity, photonics; it is the most important tool we currently use in medicine, communications, engineering and art. This course begins with the history of the physics and science of light and shadow. What exactly is light and when did we define it? What are the differences between artificial and natural light and how did the invention of artificial light change the nature of art and culture? In the second part of the course, each student will give a presentation on a master of light—painter, photographer, filmmaker or light artist.

CTD-3130Film and Literature I

Fall semester: 3 humanities and sciences credits

From their inception, film and television have engaged with literature in a complex relationship, which includes structure of narrative developed in novels, drama, epic poetry, folk tales and myth. At the same time, the development of film and television has changed the course of literature in the 20th century. This course will focus on various aspects of the relationship among these mediums. Topics will include: issues of adaptation, specifically in terms of the three-act structure of the classic Hollywood narrative; the relationship of point of view in film versus personal perspective in literature; 19th-century serialized novels in relation to television series formats; the relationship of fiction and nonfiction in early newspapers to daily broadcasting. Although we will primarily read 20th-century literature, the course will include 19th-century classics. Films by Kubrick, Godard, Hitchcock and Welles, among others, will be discussed.

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Weinert

Limited to 12 students

One might think that having the story already complete would make the process of adapting it for the screen a simple task. Adaptations are one of the most difficult processes a screenwriter can experience. One only has to read a book then see the film to understand that what works in the novel may not translate to the screen. Students will choose a literary piece—novel, play or short story—to adapt into a screenplay. Films from literature will be discussed and analyzed. Art of Editing

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Pepperman

This intensive survey into the creative processes of postproduction will explore strategies to assist in recognizing problems in story, scene, sequence and structure, and then uncover the paths to constructive solutions. The course of study will encompass all film forms, including narrative, documentary, commercial spots, industrials and music videos. This course will determine what is constant in all good work, and how visual and aural elements can be rhythmically integrated to produce inspired editing.

Recording Foley and Effects

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Borgia

Limited to 12 students

While production and location recordists strive to come away with the best dialogue from a film shoot, editing can result in the loss of sound that gives a scene its character. Using a variety of props, shoes, surfaces and fabrics, foley artists re-create these "lost sounds" for film, video and, increasingly, video games in a controlled studio environment. This intensive workshop will focus on the techniques and practices of foley artistry. Microphone placement; recording; and the craft of convincingly mimicking footsteps, clothing movements, and scene-specific sounds will be covered. Students will re-create the audio from actual film and television scenes, as well as record and design effects for video games. Prerequisite: CFD-3130, Pro Tools I.

Career Strategies

Monday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Balaban

Having fulfilled the requirements of a four-year film education, many students find that they are still apprehensive about entry into the professional film industry. There is so much ahead that remains vague: How do you raise capital for a first production? What is the best way to make industry contacts? In this course, we will discuss the many avenues to success in the film industry, as well as the pitfalls. Lectures on self-promotion and exploring the career paths of established directors, editors and cinematographers will be integral elements. Guest speakers from such fields as public relations, cable TV, DVD distribution, marketing, film finance and foreign sales will discuss their areas of expertise. Note: Open to seniors only.

CFD-4080-AFilm Thesis I

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: R. Lehmann

Cinematography specialists: Students must shoot two thesis films.

Directing specialists: Students must direct a film (12 to 20 minutes in length) that demonstrates an advanced level of craft and technique. Projects of longer duration must be approved by the Thesis Committee.

Editing specialists: Students must edit two thesis films.

All candidates for thesis will meet with the Thesis Committee for a general meeting at the end of their junior year and given information concerning the selection of an advisor, thesis proposal and submission guidelines, and important seminars. Students must begin their thesis projects in the fall semester of their senior year. Completed thesis projects are due at the end of the year. Students are required to submit a copy of their completed thesis project to the department chair. The College may reproduce work in matters pertaining to accreditation and promotion.

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

Animation

First-Year Requirements

Freshman animation majors must take all the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are four animation foundation course programs, each composed of the foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled.

AHD-1080

History of Animation I: Traditional to Digital

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course explores milestones in animation, from pioneers like Walt Disney, Norman McLaren and Lotte Reiniger, to present-day digital innovators. Along the way we'll consider a range of techniques, including line-and-cel, glass painting, stop motion, clay animation, morphs and 3D characters. We'll also see how—and why—animation deserves to be seen as perhaps the most complex art form.

AND-1020

Introduction to Animation I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 20 students

The basic concepts of storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes, timing, in-betweening, weight, squash-and-stretch, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns will be covered in this course. Most importantly, this course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character mode sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in every class. Each semester, students will be required to complete a 60-second pencil test from storyboard through shooting.

AND-1025

Spring semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 20 students

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AND-1020 for course description.

AND-1040

Storytelling

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 18 students

This course is an introduction to the basic concepts of storytelling. Oral traditions will be examined as will written narrative forms, including myth, drama, short stories, novels and poetry. Papers, outside readings and storyboarding of ideas will be required.

AND-1070

Acting for Animators

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 18 students

Offering a unique perspective to sketch comedy and drama, this course engages students in creating characters based upon human behavior through the discovery process and acting sessions. Students will discover how to bring empathy to comedy through techniques used in pantomime, by clowns and by dancers. Sketching performances will be routine.

FDD-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020

Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

AND-2010

Animation Workshop I

Fall semester: 2 credits
Each section limited to 18 students

This is an intensive course in the art of animation, the animated film and its importance and use in live-action films (animated sequences, special effects, titles, etc.). Instruction will be given on the use of the animation stand, construction of characters and preparation of the work for animation photography. There will be screenings and discussions of selected short animated films.

Introduction to Stop Motion I

Wednesday 12:00-4:50
Fall semester: 2 credits
Instructor: Voltaire

A wide range of stop-motion animation techniques, with a strong emphasis on character design, will be examined in this course. Subjects include: simple armature constructions, clay and puppet animation, replacements, beginning casting, backgrounds, rigging, and a variety of sculpture techniques and materials. In the first semester, students will participate in hands-on model building and animation exercises to familiarize themselves with the possibilities and challenges of the field. During the second semester, students will design and execute a short animated project. Guest lectures, field trips and screening of both commercial and independent work will be held throughout the year.

AND-2025-A

Introduction to Stop Motion II (previously AND-2020, second semester)

Wednesday 12:00-4:50
Spring semester: 2 credits
Instructor: Voltaire

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AND-2020 for course description.

FDD-2020-A

Anatomy I

Monday 9:00-11:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: S. Smulka

In this course, anatomy will be studied in enough detail to enable students to draw the muscular and skeletal systems from memory. The anatomical studies will explain how the underlying bone and muscles create the forms and surface landmarks of the living figure. A significant part of the course will be spent on drawing from the model. The fall semester will focus on the skeletal system and hands; the spring semester will focus on the muscular system and the head.

FDD-2020-B, C, D

Anatomy I

Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Gerndt

Anatomy can offer a concrete structure for drawing and painting the human figure. This course relates the study of the skeleton and the muscles to the live model. It will concentrate on the skeletal system in the fall semester and the muscles in the spring semester. Students will complete three life-size drawings of the human skeletal system, which will include views of the skull, torso and extremities, establishing the core of the human figure. Two triptychs, each consisting of a nude, muscular and skeletal drawing of a male and a female body, will be completed. We will learn the landmarks of the skeletal system, their relationship to the muscular system and how they work together to define the human form. An anatomy text such as Albinus on Anatomy by Hale and Coyle or Anatomy for the Artist by Jenő Barcsay is required.

AND-2070

Storyboarding for Animation

One semester: 2 credits

The story is one of the most important aspects of a film. This is a course about creating storyboards for animated films. Students will learn continuity, basic story structure and character delineation. In storyboard form, plots, situations and conflicts are developed. The entire process, from rough sketches to a finished presentation, will be covered. Also included are storyboards for television spots and cartoon shorts.

Perspective Drawing

One semester: 2 credits
Limited to 18 students

Everything that you need to know about perspective will be covered in this course. From the essential basics of one-, two- and three-point perspective to shadows, reflections, refraction and figure placement (including form and foreshortening); as well as the relationship of color and value to create the sense of light, atmosphere, space and form. Assignments are designed to prove the practical applications of the basic principles of perspective. Class sessions with models, props and lighting will assist in the exploration.

AND-2140-A

Character Construction

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: C. Paolino

Celebrity Deathmatch, Chicken Run, Nightmare Before Christmas and James and the Giant Peach are some of the films that have relied on stop-motion figure construction for their success. This course is an ideal prerequisite for anyone who wants to make stop-motion animation films. Students will design their own stop-motion figure—sculpt the parts, build a wire structure, learn various jointing methods and detailed sculpting with polymer clays. The figure will be assembled, painted and dressed.

AND-2160-A

Miniature Sets and Action Props

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 2 credits

Instructor: C. Paolino

Feature films like Titanic, Pearl Harbor, Monkeybone, Chicken Run, Star Wars Episode I, Moulin Rouge and James and the Giant Peach all contain miniature sets and props. In some cases, the sets were used strictly as backgrounds to be integrated with computer technology and have actors added, while others were used as sets for stop-motion animated characters. We will explore how to design sets where the doors, windows, cars and lampposts need to work on cue, as well as the techniques of miniature set and prop construction. The challenges of working with unique materials and constructing them to scale will also be examined.

AND-2217

Macromedia Flash Animation

One semester: 3 credits

Macromedia Flash is used for creating vector graphics and animation for the Web. Students will learn the process of drawing and painting in Flash. The course will also cover how to incorporate graphics and combine Adobe After Effects into their projects to create special effects.

AND-3010

Advanced Animation Workshop I

Fall semester: 3 credits

What every animator needs to know to succeed, this course is all about drawing, design and movement in a two-dimensional world as well as a three-dimensional environment. Use of field guides, exposure sheets, lip sync, in-betweens and layouts are covered. Runs, walks, takes, pans, trucks and preparation for camera, all done through the proper construction of a scene are demonstrated. Learn about the techniques of animation for the screen, whether in cel, cutouts, clay or any other technique commonly used in animation. How to tell a story and the science of movement are included to round out this essential course.

Advanced Stop-Action Animation I

Thursday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Kim

Limited to 16 students

This course gives students a rare opportunity to learn a highly specialized art form. Students will write a short script, design and build a character, record the voice track and shoot a film, either individually or in teams. The history of 3D puppet and clay animation will be discussed, and films will be screened and analyzed for technique.

Layout and Design

One semester: 3 credits

Layout is the first and essential step to good animation. This course will stress proper perspective and character construction. Students will learn and understand three-point perspective, good framing and composition for their background layouts, and correct construction and staging for their animation poses. Students will work from character and prop model sheets, and a film storyboard that will cover most of the basic type layouts. Everyone will do finished layout packages, similar to working on a production in a professional studio.

Sound Design for Animation

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 12 students

This course introduces students to the professional realities of sound track preparation for their animations. We will focus on both the technical and creative options available for creating dialogue tracks with actors as the initial stage of an animation project. In addition, students will explore the psychological, technical and creative stages of sound design, including foley, additional dialogue replacement, music, sound effects and the mix.

Creating Unforgettable Animation Characters

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Solomon

Limited to 18 students

This course will delve into the process of creating animated characters. Methods of researching, creating a back story and understanding character psychology will be discussed and analyzed. Classic characters such as Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Wile E. Coyote, and Beavis and Butt-Head will be screened and studied. Students will design and produce a profile on a character of their own creation.

Developing the Animated Series

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Goldman

The goal of this course is to provide the fundamentals for developing an animated series, including the premise, outline, character development and story arcs. We will begin with an overview of the history of the animated series in the United States, and how these series' have been influenced by popular culture, as well as political and social events. While the focus of the course will concentrate on the creative process, we will also discuss such areas as domestic and international markets, financing, production, merchandise, and marketing and distribution.

AND-3251

Advanced Scriptwriting for Animation

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Margolina

Limited to 12 students

Finding a unique style and approach to writing for animation is the focus of this course. We will screen great animations from around the world and examine how different artists found their unique voice. This course will provide the skills necessary to communicate the choice of image, emotion and mood in thesis work. Students will complete a short script and read the work in class in order to fine-tune presentation techniques.

Career Strategies for Animation

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Levy

This course will familiarize students with the animation industry in New York, as well as nationally and internationally. Students will learn how to market their skills and their films by creating personalized portfolios, reels, résumés and mailers. Guest lecturers from the industry will discuss the exciting opportunities in the field of animation. Note: Open to seniors only.

AND-4020-A

Animation and Entertainment Law

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Arnoff

This course will focus on the fundamentals of entertainment law by exploring the business and legal relationships within the broadcasting and film industries, in particular as they relate to animation. Learn to anticipate and avoid legal problems prior to production. Key issues in the areas of copyright law, sources of financing, distribution agreements, insurance and union consideration will be discussed. There will be guest speakers from the field. Note: Open to seniors only.

AND-4080-AAnimation Thesis I

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: R. Lehmann

Students are required to complete an animated project that demonstrates an advanced level of craft and technique. The work should not exceed five minutes in length.

All candidates for thesis will meet with the Thesis Committee for a general meeting at the end of their junior year. At that meeting, students will be given information and detailed instructions concerning: selection of an advisor, thesis guidelines, proposal deadlines, specific requirements for specialists and important seminars. Students must begin their thesis projects in the fall semester of their senior year. Completed thesis projects are due at the end of the year. Students are required to submit a copy of their completed thesis project to the department chair. The College may reproduce work in matters pertaining to accreditation and promotion.

AND-4085-A (previously AND-4080, second semester)Animation Thesis II

Spring semester: 6 credits

Instructor: R. Lehmann

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AND-4080 for course description.

AND-4999-AAnimation Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

Film, Video and Animation Electives Open to All Departments

CFD-1074-AActing for Film

Fall semester: 3 credits

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Instructor: A. Rapoport

Limited to 16 students

This course is designed as an introduction to the world of actors and their techniques. Built on the basis of moment-to-moment reality, sense memory, improvisation and intuitive use of the self, students will learn how to create believable characters for the screen. The vocabulary necessary for communicating with actors will be taught as well as the art of constructive criticism essential to direction.

AND-1103-AIntroduction to Animation

Monday 2:00-6:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Ramos

The basic concepts of storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes, timing, in-betweening, weight, squash-and-stretch, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns will be covered in this course. Most importantly, this course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character mode sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in every class. Students will complete a 30-second pencil test from storyboard through shooting.

CFD-2080-AProduction Design

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. LoBrutto

The purpose of this course is to investigate and understand the role of production design in the filmmaking process. We will begin by tracing the history of art direction in the Hollywood studio system through the work of leading art directors. Particular attention will be given to the work of William Cameron Menzies and how his contributions led to the advent of the production designer. The craft and job of the production designer will be explored in detail. The process and working methods will be defined and explained with particular focus on how directors collaborate with designers to capture their vision on film.

CFD-2088-BFilm and Television Makeup

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Fee: $75

Instructor: P. Mason

Makeup has been an integral part of filmmaking and television since their debuts—directors and actors alike rely on the talent of the makeup artist to give credibility to their characters. In this course, students will be given an overview of the field of makeup design and application (painting, construction methods, prosthesis) and then experiment with what they have learned. As an objective, students will design and create their own complete “character” makeup. The skills learned will be of benefit for personal projects and for a career in makeup artistry. Note: This course is cross-listed with CFD-2088-A.

CFD-2159-A

Film Criticism

Tuesday 7:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Mooij

Designed to offer a structure for critical film analysis, this course will examine a variety of approaches to film criticism, and will provide a means for students to analyze their own creative output as well as that of well-known filmmakers. Students will gain insights into how to formulate objective assessments of a particular film or body of work from the perspective that there is not a single “right” way to review a film—whatever the genre. Does the work have an overriding theme? How do style, form and tone relate? Are there any cultural differences that need to be considered? We will screen and assess films in class; writing assignments will be given.

CFD-2202-A

Acting II

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 16 students

This course is for students who want to increase their thespian skills by working on scenes and monologues. Advanced techniques will be taught as well as communication skills for the actor to collaborate with the director, while staying within the actor/director relationship.

CFD-2412-A

Genre by Genre

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Frumkes

Every production brings with it physical and financial hurdles. The documentary film, for example, poses a host of unique problems for the filmmakers when compared with the horror film or the romantic comedy. These challenges apply to pre-marketing, breakdown and budgeting, funding, production and distribution. In this course, student teams will be assigned different features film scripts/projects to research in regards to all the potential difficulties listed above, participate in class discussions and interact with guests from the various genres.

AND-3172-A

Developing the Animated Series

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Goldman

The goal of this course is to provide the fundamentals for developing an animated series, including the premise, outline, character development and story arcs. We will begin with an overview of the history of the animated series in the United States, and how these series have been influenced by popular culture, as well as political and social events. While the focus of the course will concentrate on the creative process, we will also discuss such areas as domestic and international markets, financing, production, merchandise, and marketing and distribution.

AND-3137

Creating Unforgettable Animation Characters

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Solomon

Limited to 18 students

This course will delve into the process of creating animated characters. Methods of researching, creating a back story and understanding character psychology will be discussed and analyzed. Classic characters such as Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Wile E. Coyote, and Beavis and Butt-Head will be screened and studied. Students will design and produce a profile on a character of their own creation.

Advanced Scriptwriting for Animation

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 12 students

Finding a unique style and approach to writing for animation is the focus of this course. We will screen great animations from around the world and examine how different artists found their unique voice. This course will provide the skills necessary to communicate the choice of image, emotion and mood in thesis work. Students will complete a short script and read the work in class in order to fine-tune presentation techniques.

Department of Fine Arts

Degree Requirements

Successful completion of 120 credits and all course requirements, including:

72 credits in studio courses (69 carrying an "F" prefix)

30 credits in humanities and sciences

18 credits in art history

Students must submit their work for review at the end of each semester. Students will not be permitted to begin classes the following semester until the work has been evaluated.

First-Year Requirements

Freshman fine arts majors must take all the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. If you have received credits in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are 14 general foundation course programs, each composed of the foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled. Note: General Foundation 14 will not be made available until all other foundation schedules have reached capacity.

Freshmen who will begin their studies in the spring 2008 semester should refer to general foundation blocks 15 and 16.

AHD-1010

Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHD-1015

Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1010 for course description.

FDD-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

FPD-1020

Painting I

One semester: 3 credits

Foundation-year painting will explore various means of representation through the application of pigments to canvas, panels and paper. Color and its organizational principles will be investigated—both as a practical and theoretical endeavor. An exploration of form and content will be undertaken with an emphasis on technical skills. Class critiques and museum visits will be employed as vehicles to develop critical terms concerning painting.

FPD-1025 (previously FPD-1020, second semester)

Painting II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-1020 for course description.

FSD-1050

Sculpture

One semester: 3 credits

As an introduction to the material world, this course explores diverse media and their potentialities to create volume, line and mass. Ranging from the ethereal to the fabricated, materials such as clay, plaster, cardboard, wood, resin and wire will be investigated by exercises in casting, mold-making, installation and site-specific work. Discussion will include concepts of space, gravity and light, among others, as they pertain to three-dimensional form.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020

Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

SMD-1020

Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits

Serving as an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists, this course will cover basic skills for operating and maintaining a computer, as well as the techniques to create collages and layered images and the tools required to display work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

General Foundation Courses for Freshmen Beginning Spring 2008

Freshmen who will begin their studies in the spring semester must register for spring 2008 and summer 2008 General Foundation 15 or spring 2008 and summer 2008 General Foundation 16. Please look over both schedules and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, we cannot guarantee that you will be registered for your first choice.

Fine Arts Second-Year Requirements

Second-year fine arts majors must take 9 studio credits per semester of electives. This includes a minimum of 3 credits per semester of fine arts drawing (Anatomy, Drawing the Figure or Drawing Workshop). When registering for workshops (drawing, painting, sculpture), second-year fine arts majors should choose from courses in the "2000" category. Requests for courses in the "3000" category will be granted at the chair's discretion.

Second-year fine arts majors must choose one course (3 credits) per semester from the following:

- Basic Photography
- Digital Narrative
- Introduction to Video Art
- Sculpture
- Printmaking

Second-year fine arts majors must choose one section of: AHD-2020, Modern Art Through Pop I, and AHD-2025, Modern Art Through Pop II (see Art History Department General Course Listing for specifics) and HHD-2990, Western Civilization I, and HHD-2995, Western Civilization II (see Fine Arts Department General Course Listing for specifics) unless they have completed these courses at SVA or another institution.

Fine Arts Third-Year Requirements

Third-year fine arts majors must choose 9 credits per semester of studio electives. Students should choose courses that they feel will benefit them in defining their studio practice. When registering for courses (drawing, painting, sculpture, printmaking, video art, digital art), third-year fine arts majors should choose from courses in the "3000" category unless there are special circumstances. Requests for courses in the "2000" category will be granted at the chair's discretion.

Third-year fine arts majors must take one semester of HDD-3200, Ideas in Art: 1960 to the Present (see Art History Department General Course Listing for specifics), unless they have already completed this course at SVA or another institution. Students are required to register for FID-3010, Visiting Artists/Critics Lecture Series I, and FID-3015, Visiting Artists/Critics Lecture Series II.

Fine Arts Fourth-Year Requirements

Students should see their advisor early to determine remaining credit needs and requirements. You must be able to complete all 120 credits of the BFA degree, including all course and credit requirements, to be eligible to graduate.

All fourth-year fine arts majors are required to register for one of the following Senior Workshops: FPD-4010 and FPD-4015 or FSD-4010 and FSD-4015. Students are required to choose one section of FID-4030 and FID-4040 in the fall semester, one section of FID-4050 and FID-4060 in the spring semester.

Students are required to register for one semester of FID-4110, Visiting Artists/Critics Lecture Series I, FID-4115, Visiting Artists/Critics Lecture Series II, and AHD-4140, Senior Seminar.

A senior project must be completed to be eligible for degree conferral of a BFA in Fine Arts.

Fine Arts General Course Listing Electives Open To All Departments

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

SECOND-YEAR FINE ARTS COURSES

Note: For all workshops scheduled from 9:00am to 5:50pm, the instructor will be present from 9:00am to 2:50pm.

Digital Art Lab Workshops

Instructor: J. Tekippe

Limited enrollment

Beginning and advanced workshops in digital imaging, video and other programs will be conducted in the BFA Fine Arts Department's new state-of-the-art digital lab. Please contact the BFA Fine Arts Department Office for dates, times and sign-up information. Note: Open to BFA Fine Arts Department majors only.

FDD-2020-A

Anatomy I

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Smulka

In this course, anatomy will be studied in enough detail to enable students to draw the muscular and skeletal systems from memory. The anatomical studies will explain how the underlying bone and muscles create the forms and surface landmarks of the living figure. A significant part of the course will be spent on drawing from the model. The fall semester will focus on the skeletal system and hands; the spring semester will focus on the muscular system and the head.

FDD-2020-B, C, D

Anatomy I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Gerndt

Anatomy can offer a concrete structure for drawing and painting the human figure. This course relates the study of the skeleton and the muscles to the live model. It will concentrate on the skeletal system in the fall semester and the muscles in the spring semester. Students will complete three life-size drawings of the human skeletal system, which will include views of the skull, torso and extremities, establishing the core of the human figure. Two triptychs, each consisting of a nude, muscular and skeletal drawing of a male and a female body, will be completed. We will learn the landmarks of the skeletal system, their relationship to the muscular system and how they work together to define the human form. An anatomy text such as Albinus on Anatomy by Hale and Coyle or Anatomy for the Artist by Jenő Barcsay is required.

Drawing Workshop I: Figure Drawing

Monday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. van Dalen

Drawing the figure—from its classical origins to the modern age—has enlightened art and our understanding of humanity. This course will explore traditional realism to contemporary eclectic representation. In order to master the complexities of figure drawing, students will be introduced to systems of observation, constructing and layering of anatomy, composition, and human characterization. How to use the eye, hand, mind, and emotions to merge a complex world of line, color and form into engaging art will be considered. Student participation during class discussions will be stressed. Speaking about art often leads to understanding, sharing of ideas, and an art community. All drawing mediums and materials are welcome. We will test a broad range of materials, including charcoal, graphite, ink, watercolor, and various papers, in order to expand upon their natural use. Home projects will complement course issues, but also encourage development of individual and personal concerns that make art human and compelling.

FDD-2066-B

Drawing Workshop I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. DePalma

The premise of this course is that drawing constitutes the fundamental basis of all visual language. As such, drawing will be explored through the development of both technical skills and concepts. Dialogues will revolve around contemporary visual issues. Work will involve the use of all media. Experimentation and invention will be stressed. Drawing will be viewed as a primary vehicle through which an artist grows in the struggle for freedom of expression.

FDD-2066-C

Drawing Workshop I: Figure Drawing

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: E. Sisto (fall), M. Goldberg (spring)

The fall semester of this course will focus on the model. We will concentrate on the figure in space, how to structure a picture, the use of the picture plane as an organizing tool, and plastic form. We'll use charcoal and then diversify media and scale. In the spring semester, students will approach the figure very directly, and then be encouraged to use the figure as a catalyst to explore other themes. Through direct observation, students will be encouraged to work with diverse materials as a means with which to approach the act of drawing.

FDD-2066-D

Drawing Workshop I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Wells

Using a model, diverse approaches are encouraged with emphasis on drawing as a combined process of thought and emotional response.

FDD-2066-EDrawing Workshop I

Thursday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Larsen

Definition of drawing: act of a person or thing that draws anything. In this course, students push ideas to their visual limits. Each student will learn to take an idea, document it, and explore unique and individualistic ways to use it in a visual format; then, through conventional drawing techniques, consider other ways to experiment with the same idea. Students will be encouraged to render the idea and variations of it in different materials and media and participate actively in group critiques.

FDD-2066-F (previously FDD-3054)Drawing Workshop I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Richer

Designed in response to the needs of artists who want to create finished paintings, sculpture and prints, this course will focus on the relationship between finished projects and drawing preparation. Too often, artists start to create a piece or body of work only to find that they have not fully prepared their projects beforehand. By using drawing as an analytical tool, a great deal of the frustration in the finished media can be avoided. Students will connect future projects to past accomplishments by using drawing as a bridge to a portfolio of ideas. Both traditional and innovative media will be employed to clarify artistic direction.

FDD-2066-GDrawing Workshop I

Friday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. DeFrank

What does it mean to draw? How is drawing relevant in today's art world? This course is about the experience of drawing and looking at drawings and about the possibilities of extending our traditional ideas concerning the limits of drawings. We will attempt to answer these questions through a series of discussions and exercises in and out of class. All types of materials are encouraged. Figurative and abstract imagery will be examined.

FDD-2067 (previously FDD-2054 or FDD-2066, second semester)Drawing Workshop II

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see the corresponding section of FDD-2066 for course description.

FDD-2078-AThe Expanded Field of Drawing

Thursday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Zalopany

As a survey of drawing materials and paper supports, this course will investigate charcoal, pastel, conté crayon, pencil, collage and watercolor. Working in black-and-white as well as color formats, students will be introduced to techniques such as feathering, scumbling, blending and optical mixing. Critiques, demonstrations and an anatomy text will be incorporated in our study. Students are encouraged to push beyond their "comfort zone" with one medium and to discover the limits and benefits of others. While the primary emphasis is on drawing what you see—through the traditional genres of still life and figures—other modes of representation will be explored. We will also work from memory, imagination and photography.

FDD-2086Cut and Paste

Monday 9:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Twitchell

This course focuses on cut-and-paste techniques as they are employed in image-making. Ranging from collage and paper cut-outs, existing visual elements are reconfigured to fabricate novel types of pictures. Stencils, resists and layering are investigated as techniques for constructing complex images. Critiques and demonstrations will aid to focus each student's technical mastery; the theoretical underpinnings of collage will also be examined.

FPD-2098-A (previously FPD-2099, first semester)Painting Workshop I

Tuesday, Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Ausby

This painting course is designed to further the development of the student who is beginning a personalized approach to painting. The student will be encouraged and assisted in the development of that approach. Through discussion and criticism, special emphasis will be placed on what is unique to the student's work.

FPD-2098-B (previously FPD-2099, first semester)Painting Workshop I: Painting and Mixed Media

Wednesday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Hristoff

Each session of this course will begin with focused work from observation, concentrating on the premise that drawing can be a key to painting. Students will draw the model quickly and energetically to loosen up, followed by a 20-minute "warm-up" painting. Students will then work on specific projects. For those who wish to work from the figure, a model will be available. Experimentation with various materials and techniques will be encouraged, as well as development of content through focusing on issues of identity, taste, politics and philosophy. Weekly home assignments are included and students are required to keep a journal/sketchbook and to write exhibition reviews. This is a rigorous course, as is the process of art-making and the discipline of being an artist. Note: Midyear entry with instructor's permission.

FPD-2098-C (previously FPD-2099, first semester)Painting Workshop I

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Sheehan

This course will be structured to allow the fullest opportunity in exploring the range of possibilities in figurative and abstract art. Concepts concerning the principles of color, form and pictorial space and their relationship to materials and techniques will be basic to all class projects, including those initiated by the student. Work will be done with and without models, and will receive individual attention and guidance while in progress, including the benefit of periodic group critiques.

FPD-2098-D (previously FPD-2099, first semester)

Painting Workshop I: The Narrative Image

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Linhares

This painting course will engage students in their development of the narrative image. Using traditional and experimental approaches to oil paint, acrylic and gouache, students will explore composition, color and process in relation to the narrative possibilities of the picture. Students will work from models, memory, and imagination and will explore the uses of the narrative image and its possibility to express ideas. The uses of narrative in contemporary art and storytelling in art history will be discussed. Students will develop their ideas as well as their technical skills.

FPD-2098-E (previously FPD-2099, first semester)

Painting Workshop I

Friday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Komoski

With a concentration on individual development from students' self-generated directions, this course will focus on intent, execution and presentation. All approaches are respectfully attended to when accompanied by commitment. Students will develop a vocabulary of words and ideas, and learn to think about their work as color, drawing and content. Note: Midyear entry is allowed with instructor's permission.

FPD-2098-F

Painting Workshop I: In the Realm of the Senses

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Joelson

What do we do when we look? What are the social and psychological implications of visual perception? How does familiarity change the way we see? What triggers memory? We will consider the context for these concerns in the past century from Cezanne to psychedelic art to current exhibitions. While the primary engagement of this course is in the studio, there will be also readings. Students are welcome to work from observation, the imagination or printed sources. The emphasis is on our changing relation to the subject as it informs and is revealed in the construction of the painting.

Painting and Photographic Sources I

Monday 12:00-5:50

Instructor: S. Smulka

Fall semester: 3 credits

Even though photographs are often employed as source material today, cameras have been used by artists since the 17th century. This course will examine how painters from Picasso to the photorealists and beyond have used photographs as a starting point. Emphasis will be placed on the methods and techniques required to paint a realistic image. How to paint realistically will no longer be a mystery. The use of imagery in contemporary art and the personal vision of each student will also be explored.

FPD-2107-A

Painting and Photographic Sources II

Monday 12:00-5:50

Instructor: S. Smulka

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-2106 for course description.

FPD-2122-A

The Abstract Image I

Tuesday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Belag

In this course, students will develop a painting practice that employs imagery and pictorial means from both abstract and representational realms. This painting tradition includes the work of Henri Matisse, Philip Guston, Elizabeth Murray and Gerhard Richter, to name a few. Students will be encouraged to create images that incorporate the formal languages of modes of abstraction. The development of a mature studio practice will be stressed.

FPD-2123-A

The Abstract Image II

Tuesday 12:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Belag

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-2122 for course description.

FPD-2131-A

Color Theory

Monday 12:00 -2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Giacalone

Knowledge of color theory is only as good as its application to personal means of expression for the students. This course will accompany creative projects with basic color theory, using painting rather than the Josef Albers' approach of cut Color-aid paper collages. By improving techniques of painting, such as scumbling and applying glazes and mediums, students can learn complex means of creating color relationships in their paintings. The theories that produced the modern movement in painting are included: Albers' interaction of color; color as light seen in impressionist and postimpressionist paintings; optical color mixtures; light and space; color in contemporary paintings. A term project will include an analysis of colors from a favorite painting in a gallery or museum.

FPD-2133-A

Watercolor

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Meyer

This course covers basic watercolor painting materials and techniques. Form, composition and color will be discussed and students will explore the expressive and stylistic possibilities of the medium. Visual examples from art history and contemporary art will be part of the class critiques.

FSD-2231-A

Ceramic Sculpture

Monday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: S. Keister

Limited to 15 students

A wide range of ceramic techniques will be covered in this course, including hand-building, mold-making, press-molding, slip-casting, wheel, glazing and firing techniques. The advantages of clay as a material for sculptural experimentation, beyond its common utilitarian and crafts associations, will be emphasized.

FSD-2244-ACeramics/Sculpture Workshop

Monday 9:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: C. Freeman

Limited to 15 students

In this course, students will learn to build sculpture using the techniques and materials of ceramics. The techniques taught will be modeling, wheel throwing, and slab-and-coil construction and casting. The materials will be low-temperature fine-grogged talc clay and a coarse terra-cotta clay. The sculpture will be colored with basic lead and soda oxidation glazes as well as with oil and plastic paints.

FSD-2253-A (previously FSD-2254, first semester)Sculpture Workshop I

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: J. Perlman

Sculpture without limits. Every kind of sculpture can be investigated. Every type of material can be used. Welding, building, carving, modeling, site-specific and mixed-media assemblage will be taught. Hands-on instruction and strong technical skills enable each sculptor to realize his or her own thoughts. Weekly critiques will discuss work done in class. The idea comes first and then the sculpture. Where it came from, what it means, how it got there. Visits to museums, galleries and studios will be assigned. Slide lectures will augment discussion.

FSD-2253-B (previously FSD-2254, first semester)Sculpture Workshop I

Saturday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: S. DeFrank

This course is designed as a series of projects to encourage students to solve problems and discover working processes. Each project will begin with a discussion of contemporary artists, as well as current museum and gallery exhibitions. Various materials will be explored, from woodworking to mold-making, welding to video. We will meet for group critiques.

FSD-2254Sculpture Workshop II

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

FSD-2267-AMethods of Contemporary Sculpture I

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: J. Cohen

Designed to broaden both technical and critical skills with an emphasis on object-making, this course also embraces the wide-reaching methods of contemporary sculpture. This includes the potential use of performance and video, considerations of context and sculpture in the public sphere. Fall semester projects include: "Beastly Bodies," "The Specimen," "Safe Transport" and "Physical Comedy," among others. In the spring, projects include "Peripheries of Perception," "Making Manifestos," "Myth and Ritual," and an open final project.

FSD-2268-AMethods of Contemporary Sculpture II

FID-2366-ADigital Narrative I

Tuesday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: A. Rosenberg

In this course, students will develop narrative projects using a variety of digital programs. Beginning with a text (or another suitable narrative structure), students will discover ways to translate ideas into images. The final pieces may take a range of forms, including print, book, film, animation and installation, or any combination that suits the narrative. The fall semester concentrates on short-term assignments and trying different approaches to linear and nonlinear storytelling. An overview of the history of narrative in visual culture will be given. The spring semester implements the narrative skills developed in the fall semester and focuses on longer independent and collaborative projects. Technical help will be available in the studio. Note: All fine arts digital workshops will be conducted in the department's new, state-of-the-art facility. Student will have individual editing stations equipped with Macintosh computers and flat-panel monitors.

FID-2367-ADigital Narrative II

Instructor: A. Rosenberg

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FID-2366 for course description.

FID-2953-A (previously FID-2954, first semester)Introduction to Video Art I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: A. Morgana

In this course, students will be introduced to the technical and aesthetic aspects of video as an art form and will create short video projects. We will examine equipment and techniques, including concept development, storyboarding, composition, camerawork, staging, lighting, editing, sound tracks and digital effects. The creative and aesthetic issues involved in working in an expressive time-based medium will be emphasized in individual and group critiques, and discussion of videos and films. Some of the debates regarding video art and other issues in contemporary media culture will also be addressed. In the spring semester, students will continue to develop their work and may create one or more "portfolio pieces" suitable for exhibition. Works may be longer form and may include additional elements of script, performance, digital effects, etc. We will discuss how to best present video art works and how to access opportunities. Students will develop a brief written artist's statement about their projects. Critical readings and helpful resources about showing video art will be supplied. Note: All fine arts digital workshops will be conducted in the department's new, state-of-the-art facility. Student will have individual editing stations equipped with Macintosh computers and flat-panel monitors.

FID-2953-BIntroduction to Video Art I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: N. London

This course will introduce students to the medium of video, within the context of contemporary art practice. It will present a range of conceptual, aesthetic and technical options through in-class exercises and applicable home assignments. There will be an emphasis on dialogue generated by work produced in class, screenings of historical and contemporary video art, and current exhibitions. The spring semester will expand on basic skills through more self-directed, long-term assignments. Class critiques and group discussions will be stressed. Students will be encouraged to consider their work in terms of the particular parameters of the medium, as well as in relation to other forms and the broader cultural field. Each student will have the opportunity to present their work as single channel and in installation, and will take a video project through the postproduction process to complete the course with several finished projects. Note: All fine arts digital workshops will be conducted in the department's new, state-of-the-art facility. Student will have individual editing stations equipped with Macintosh computers and flat-panel monitors.

HHD-2990Western Civilization I

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course provides an historical overview of Western thought from the Renaissance to the early 20th century. Students will explore the ways in which history and culture have interacted to shape the development of societies and individuals in the modern age. We will focus on major historical transformations such as the Renaissance and the Reformation (first semester), the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution (second semester), in order to understand how such pivotal events both condition and reflect movements in science, philosophy and the arts. The course will also provide an introduction to the assumptions, strategies and methods that inform the disciplines of history, philosophy and the social sciences. Readings include selections from: A History of Modern Europe, vols. I and II; Plato; Hobbes; Descartes; Locke; Voltaire; Kant; Mill; Marx; Nietzsche; Freud; Heisenberg; Einstein. Note: Priority registration will be given to sophomore fine arts, illustration and cartooning majors.

SECOND-YEAR PRINTMAKING COURSES

The following courses are open to all students. Additional printmaking courses are listed in the book after the third-year fine arts course listing. Third-year printmaking courses are open to all students.

Note: Printshop facilities are available outside of class hours.

FGD-2376 (previously FGD-2377, first semester)

Printmaking: An Introduction to Etching and Woodcut

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

This course offers a thorough introduction to different image-making possibilities available in two major areas of printmaking. Etching will be explored through the introduction of line etching, soft ground, aquatint and photoetching. The second half of the semester will focus on monoprint, linoleum and woodcut. Starting from a direct application of color in monoprint, students will then explore the use of color separations and overlays to create color linoleum and woodcut prints.

FGD-2377 (previously FGD-2377, second semester)

Printmaking: An Introduction to Lithography and Silkscreen

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

This course offers a thorough introduction to different image-making possibilities available in two major areas of printmaking. The use of traditional drawing techniques as well as photographic processes will be introduced. Silkscreen will be used to create editions, multiples and textile prints starting from hand-drawn separations, digital and photocopied images. The second half of the semester will concentrate on lithography, a medium able to capture the tonalities of charcoal and watercolor as well as the detail of photography. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

FGD-2404

Printmaking: Etching

Tuesday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150 each semester

Instructor: C. Koppelman

Drawing and photography will be used to explore the creative range of image-making possibilities available in etching. The techniques covered include line etching, photoetching, aquatint, drypoint, embossing, collagraphy and monoprint. Students will use traditional and experimental techniques, in black-and-white and color. A constant relation will be made between feeling and craft, concept and medium. This course is based on the aesthetic realism principle of Eli Siegel: making one of opposites is at the heart of all art.

FGD-2433

Printmaking: Silkscreen

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Silkscreen, one of the most versatile and widely used methods of printmaking, will be explored through demonstrations and self-initiated projects. Painters as well as photographers will find a new way of expressing their ideas through screen printing. Images can be made using hand-drawn separations, photographic film, digital separations and photocopied images. Printing on canvas, T-shirts, wood, metal and glass, as well as large-scale works, are all possible with silkscreen. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop. Water-based silkscreen ink is used in class allowing for soap-and-water cleanup.

FGD-2446-A

Monoprint, Woodcut, Linoleum

Tuesday 2:00-6:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Rapone

This course will introduce the printmaking processes of woodcut, linocut, monoprint and collagraph to create various types of prints. All processes will be demonstrated and applied in self-directed projects. The relief print is the oldest method of printmaking; its directness and ease of color application makes it particularly appealing to artists of all fields. In woodcut, the non-image areas of the print are carved away and color is applied to the high surfaces of the block using rollers or brushes. Color can also be rubbed in below the surface to create depths and color mixing. Paper is then pressed against the inked surface of the block or plate to transfer the color image from the block. The monoprint is unique within printmaking because every print is different. Images are painted or drawn directly onto blank plates and then transferred to paper with a printing press, resulting in large, direct, painterly prints. The use of multiple printing, chine collé and color overlays will also be explored.

FDD-3054-A/C

Drawing Workshop

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Sisto

For the first few weeks of the semester, we will work from direct observation to investigate modernist space and the tools used to construct it. As the semester progresses, each student will be encouraged to move in his or her own direction. Drawing from the model will remain an option, but not a requirement. Students will work in charcoal, pencil, pen, painted paper collage and other media.

Figure Drawing Workshop

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. van Dalen

This workshop is dedicated to drawing the human figure from an individual point of view. Diverse interpretation will be encouraged, in tribute to the art form's eclectic contribution to the history of art. Issues of discussion will include: approaches to the act of drawing, systems of observation, knowledge of materials, choices of technique, and the referencing of art history. Critical thinking both in speaking and writing will be an ongoing feature of the class. Individual needs will be met with development projects. Group discussion will stimulate sharing of information and foster work relationships among students. Experimentation towards a wide range of approaches to drawing is welcome, including ink and watercolor. The class will be alerted to museum and gallery exhibits that demonstrate the timeless relevance of the human being as subject matter, and how it enlightens our art and self-understanding.

FDD-3054-F/G

Drawing Workshop: Art Practice

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Allain

This workshop will explore drawing as a process of visual thinking and as a practice that reflects an ongoing body of work or ideas. Students will be encouraged to develop a personal drawing language to examine what they are pursuing in painting, sculpture or other media. We will experiment with alternative and subversive ways to use traditional drawing media. Always in focus will be the search for a definition of drawing through a critical look at its history, its formal parameters, its conventional and personal languages, its aesthetics and its current practices.

FDD-3054-H

Drawing Workshop

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Donegan

We begin with a series of three "problems" (typically involving issues of form, process, history) to which students are asked to respond in order to jump-start their work after a season of neglect. The final quarter of the semester, students are free to pursue individual interests. Regular group discussions will emanate from free-form assignments given to students to collect information on artists, exhibitions, films, and events for class presentation.

FDD-3054-J

Drawing Workshop

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Donegan

The course starts with each student performing an introspective analysis of their goals and interests for the coming semester. This culminates in the form of a self-designed project that will serve as a template for the semester's work. One on one discussion with the instructor and mini group critiques will help nudge the students along their chosen path. At the end of the semester, the evaluation will focus on comparison between the intentions and results, discoveries made in the process, and ambitions unrealized or exceeded.

FDD-3054-K

Drawing Workshop

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Chow

Limited to 20 students

This course studies the application of pigments to the surface of paper and equivalent materials. This implies the history and practice of drawing, as seen from different points of view. The course stresses looking as a process of perception and invention of inner and outer images and the observation of the work in its making.

FDD-3054-L

Drawing Workshop

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Goldberg

This course is based on the concept that you, as students, are galley slaves and I keep time on a drum. Sessions are three hours of intensive work. Lateness or excuses are not acceptable. We will use a live model as a point of reference and any approach from the most figurative to the most abstract is encouraged, as is the broadest choice of materials.

FDD-3054-MDrawing Workshop: Separating the How from the What, and the What from the Why

Wednesday 12:00-3:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Figure drawing has nothing to do with nakedness and everything to do with the technical and social conventions of the 19th century. From a working review of the techniques of classical drawing, we will move to an understanding of the nude as an historical 19th-century idea, to a more contemporary concept of the body as the subject of 20th-century drawing. Working projects will introduce students to contemporary work from the position of the implicated practitioner, and not from the position of scholarship or connoisseurship. The course includes some reading and writing, museum and gallery visits and, most importantly, an enthusiasm for drawing.

FDD-3054-NDrawing Workshop: What's My Line? Reading and Writing the Drawing Code

Wednesday 12:00-3:50

Spring semesters: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Marsh

Taking George Steiner's observation that the "history of composition is the history of ideas," we expand the range of drawing from the limitations of a description of an object in space into the creation of the space of the subject. The agenda of every technique or material is meaning, but without taking the more obvious (and perhaps more limited) tack of a narrative interpretation of the subject, we take apart and reassemble the interpretive pieces of material, techniques, compositional device, scale, reference, etc., and go from reading to speaking the language of drawing. Using Thomas McEvilley's essay "On the Manner of Addressing Clouds," and other texts, we will develop a working vocabulary to make critiques more significant and constructive than with an individualistic and interpretive focus. The last four weeks will be devoted to developing an independent project.

FDD-3067-AAdvanced Drawing Workshop I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Hristoff

Model fee: $150

This is a course of virtually nonstop figure drawing. The purpose is not only to loosen up, but also—and more importantly—to approach drawing fearlessly. We will work with multiple models and props, as well as combine images from "imagination" into the drawings. Each week will have a different "theme," adding to the theatrical quality of the course. We will work quickly, and almost always with wet mediums (ink, tempera, acrylics, etc.), blurring the distinction between painting and drawing. Restating and reworking of drawings will be encouraged to create more complex works. Students are required to review current exhibitions and to keep a sketchbook/journal.

FDD-3068-AAdvanced Drawing Workshop II

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Hristoff

Model fee: $150

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-3067 for course description.

FPD-3111-APainting Workshop I

Monday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Roth

This course is for serious painters only. Candidates are students who have refined basic painting skills and techniques during their first two years of study, who understand and comprehend what paint can do, and who are willing to make a thorough analytical investigation of intellectual, emotional and illusionist ideas. Students must be ready to take an objective inventory of their own work, learn to describe and anticipate their work in the present, fully participating in individual and class critiques. The course is devoted to risk-taking. It is not for those who prefer to re-interpret acceptable styles of painting. Student who choose this course want to get on track in the development of an authentic vision and are committed to daily work habits of concentration and focus in their work.

FPD-3111-BPainting Workshop I

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Koether

This course explores everything that happens between painting and thinking and seeing the world around us. Students will be encouraged to define, un-define and refine their artistic practice. How do you paint and why? How do you make art and why? Painting here is considered an extended field. Answers will be found in all our contributions to weekly sessions (that consist of practical work, discussion and group critiques), as well as a final in-class mounted exhibition.

FPD-3111-CPainting Workshop I

Wednesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Whitten

The course is open to different disciplines, with emphasis placed on experimentation. Students are expected to investigate their personal sensibilities in order to establish a structured plasticity. Instruction is conducted primarily on an individual basis, with some class critique.

FPD-3111-DPainting Workshop I: Issues and Ideas in Painting

Wednesday, Thursday 6:00-8:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Irons

This studio course is designed to strengthen your ideas through your materials, subject matter, content, context, technique and application. On an individual basis, we will discuss your sensibilities and how these may be encouraged toward developing a clear and unique voice. Contemporary and historical issues relevant to your practice will be included. Experimentation is encouraged, as is failure. All disciplines are welcome. Models are available on request. Group critiques will be held every five weeks. The spring semester will focus on achieving a personal artistic vision—autobiographical, political, figurative or abstract. This will be accomplished through individual and group critiques involving increased awareness of art historical precedents, contemporary issues and developments, and the exploration of formal and technical possibilities.

FPD-3111-EPainting Workshop I

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kardon

The best artists are the ones that are adept at asking themselves the right questions. This workshop focuses on developing an understanding of the underlying psychological, intellectual and emotional forces that fuel artistic impulses. We will concentrate on how this is connected to the painting process. Investigations into consciousness, with an emphasis on learning how to interrogate one's process in painting and evaluating images in general is the focus of this course. All painting approaches are welcome and students are expected to paint as much outside of class as during, as well as to attend and discuss current museum and gallery exhibitions. Intense one-on-one dialogues with the instructor will often develop into small group or class discussions. Models will be provided.

FPD-3111-FPainting Workshop I: Constructed Painting

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Allain

This workshop is for painters who want to work with materials, processes and techniques other than, or in addition to, traditional techniques of brush and paint on canvas. Students can explore collage, assemblage, relief, wall sculpture, fresco, in situ wall paintings, new media and other approaches to extending the dimensionality of painting's surface. The common denominator is that the work is on the wall. We will critically examine differences between painting and sculpture, in the context of picture plane, opticality, illusion, realness, objectness and the way these terms have been defined in art history. We will look at how artists today engage these traditions. Note: Sculpture Center access is available for fabrication, if needed.

FPD-3111-GPainting Workshop I: Studio Practices

Thursday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Brickhouse

Students will employ any media of their choice to further inform and advance their creative efforts. The emphasis will be on developing a dialogue and methodology that refines and explores new artistic territory. "Studio-time" is stressed to discover how best to further identify and realize intentions, how to organize efforts, and how to work both intellectually and physically in the studio. Research and archival practices will be taught. Instruction is given on a one-on-one basis. Students are encouraged to exchange ideas and techniques with their peers, as well as visit New York's vast cultural resources on a regular basis. The understanding of visual culture, the evolution of a creative working process and the ability to communicate visual ideas are the goals of this course. There will be individual and group critiques. The second semester will examine the ways in which an artist conducts research, including the writing of an artist's statement. Internet sites will be employed to expand both technical and intellectual information and resources. More advanced techniques such as painting on wooden panels, the use of adhesives in picture-making, and encaustic and cold wax techniques round out this course.

FPD-3111-HPainting Workshop I: Refining Visual Language

Friday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Kahn

Together, we will examine our assumptions about traditional painting in relation to a more contemporary experience of art-making. All approaches are welcome. Focus will be on discovering the problems of interest to each student and finding the material/metaphor most appropriate to each person's objectives. Dialogue will center on developing the strengths of personal ideas in relation to the vast and rich community of painting's vital past and intriguing present. A project-based course for students interested in developing their own ideas through a range of work in various media, emphasizing painting, but also encouraging works in other media. Students will be required to visit and review various exhibitions on a regular basis. There will be group critiques throughout the semester.

FPD-3111-JPainting Workshop I: The Ecology of Art

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester only: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Pozzi

Students are encouraged to see both the details and overall strategies that are significant in understanding how their practice absorbs personal layers of sensibility and how these are relating to the physical and social environment they are placed in. The instructor responds to whatever idea and techniques students have chosen to submit, with special emphasis given to observation. The course develops through one-on-one conversations in which looking and doing are assumed to be drawn from thought and will be considered to be keys to visual creativity, in paint or any other media.

FPD-3111-KPainting Workshop I

Thursday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Goldberg

Students will set their own problems. No limits on the materials or the direction a student chooses to take. Students must be able to work steadily. The instructor will give individual problems if needed. The workshop's main characteristic is the lengthy individual critiques.

FPD-3112 (previously FPD-3111, second semester)Painting Workshop II

FPD-3132-AThe Tactile and the Digital I: Painting in the New Century

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Buvoli

Using varied media and subjects—from traditional to nontraditional—students will develop analytic and expressive dimensions in their practice, drawing from their personal interests and from many disciplines. We will meet as a group and on a one-to-one basis to receive and exchange points of view. By expanding visual and critical vocabularies, we will explore the role of painting in the digital age. The remainder of the time is designated for studio work. Through images of works by modern and contemporary artists, visits to galleries and museums, readings of related articles and essays, information will be presented that relates to the current art scene. The clarification of formal, conceptual and technical problems in painting is the content of this course. Projects will address light and space, color relationships, means and meanings of representation, and explore the limitations and potentialities in replicating the physical nature of painting through other media. We will also explore the cultural facets of gender, as well as social and political issues in relation to painting. During the spring semester, projects will address structure and freedom, visibility and invisibility, painting as object, text and texture.

FPD-3166-A (previously FPD-3188)

Representational Painting

Thursday 12:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kardon

Why has representational painting become such an important practice in the contemporary art world? What is modern representation and what is being represented? What roles can photography and digital manipulation play in the making of a representational painting? This course will explore how your work interacts with the ideas and techniques used by different artists from the Renaissance to the present. Learn to create convincing imagery that seems emotionally believable, whether painted from photographs, the model, or imagination and memory. Although students are encouraged to develop their own practices, there are always one or two models available to stimulate creative responses. Homework assignments are tailored to help understand different conceptual possibilities. Any valid approach to image-making can be investigated and explored. There will be frequent consultations during class on ideas and methods so that students are able to paint confidently and independently.

FPD-3187-A

Photo-Based Painting

Thursday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester only: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Behnke

Image-based work is the predominate form of painting today. It can range from simple figuration to highly resolved illusionistic painting, with many divergent alternatives in between. Much of the current work is photographically derived. This course will explore the full range of modes of representation, with an emphasis on the photograph as a source. The use of photographic information, from media-based imagery through digital alteration will be considered. We will cover the ways that photography is both similar to and different from direct observation. Particular emphasis will be placed on helping students to match their technique to their sources and to defining the underlying content. A variety of imagery, media and content will be thoughtfully considered. Contemporary use of historical techniques will be demonstrated.

FPD-3196-A

Advanced Painting with Photography as Source I: The Materials

Friday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Richer

Photography was a precipitous event in the advent of "modernism." Its invention continues to catalyze methods and concerns of painting. In the fall semester, this course will investigate the ways in which photographic processes—ranging from the camera obscura, the invention of chemical photography and Kodachrome, to x-ray, photocopy and digital images—have distinctly affected representations and methods in painting. To best link image to medium, we will examine a variety of paint mediums such as tempera, oil and acrylic, and study their inherent characteristics. In the spring semester, we will extend our investigation of these linked contemporary mediums. We will examine the historic artists in photography and the relationship to the painting of the same period. Students will work on a group of paintings that extend the stylistic approach discovered in the investigation of photographic and painting mediums. Students will also create a photographic project that extends their painting project.

FPD-3197-A

Advanced Painting with Photography as Source II: The Historic Practitioners

Friday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-3196 for course description.

FSD-3303-A

Sculpture Now!

Monday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: P. Dudek

This workshop takes a worldview of the sculpture-making process and will show how different cultures and art forms have impacted today's sculpture. Students will not only draw on their own personal/cultural pasts to develop ideas and make sculpture, but also to challenge or ally those ideas with different information and influences. A wide range of materials and fabrication methods are available in this course. Through critiques and slide discussions, issues of form, content and context will be examined and interpreted. The use of language as applied to sculpture is of particular interest. A partial listing of the current vernacular that we will be cataloging and assessing for our use includes: architectonic, socially concerned, outsider art, site-specific, randomness and objectness. We'll attend exhibitions, films, lectures or performances that relate to our activities. There will also be required reading.

FSD-3303-B

Interrelating the Arts: Sculpture Workshop

Friday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: S. Etkin

The environment in which visual artists work has always been more expansive than their studios. Robert Rauschenberg collaborated with choreographer Merce Cunningham. Pablo Picasso designed sets for Russian ballet impresario Sergey Diaghilev. The focus of this course will be to explore the interrelationships between art forms and how they influence and inspire each other. The mechanics and tools of one form can be imposed as a working method on another. Looking at performance, for example, can open up new ways of making sculpture; exploring music can enhance how we understand rhythm in art. Students will participate in readings, slide lectures, and video and film screenings. You will be encouraged to explore and research different media in your work: poetry, performance, theater, music combined with sculpture materials—wood, rubber, glass, metal and plastic. This studio course will focus on individual projects with weekly critiques.

FSD-3303-C

Multimedia Workshop

Monday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: A. Ginzel

This course is built on the principle that the idea is the vital core of all art. Thus, the form an idea takes should be chosen according to what medium best fulfills the function of the expression of thought. We are working in a time when no material is considered inappropriate to use. The focus of the course is an exploration of the possibilities in combining disparate materials into a stronger and potentially more profound whole. We will begin by defining multimedia as interpreted by today's art world. Emphasis will shift to historical examples in ancient art, move to early cubist assemblage and early conceptual work. Historical references will be augmented by slides. Students will be encouraged to use conventional art materials and a repertoire of unconventional media such as electricity, photomontage, sunlight, lenses, highway asphalt, video projection, roofing copper, flame treating, water, mechanical parts, etc. Site-specific vs. non-site-specific work will be discussed. Resources will be discussed and extensive technical help will be provided. There will be critiques of the resulting work. Instruction will be on an individual basis.

FSD-3303-D

Interdisciplinary Workshop

Friday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: G. Sherman

Artists are scavengers—we borrow ideas and resources we need from any source available. This workshop is for students who want to explore interdisciplinary practices common in the arts today. Projects on "standardization and the module," "camouflage and dematerialization," "fuzzy science" and "the monument and souvenir" will guide an investigation of processes, materials and conventions that convey meaning, as well as the mechanisms of presentation that intensify or subvert meaning. Resources include art, architecture, industry, design, craft, horticulture, cooking, fashion, theater, performance, film, video, television, music, language and science, among others. At the beginning of each session, we will discuss exhibitions, films, reading, lectures and other activities that relate to our projects. The remainder of the session will be devoted to intensive work. Critiques and brainstorming will be used to test ideas.

FSD-3351-A (previously FSD-3304, first semester)

Sculpture/Video Art Workshop I: From Space to Time

Wednesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: L. Buvoli

Steel, wood, wire, rubber, video, film, light, sound, music, body movement, language, liquid and dust are just a few of the traditional and nontraditional materials used in this course. We will meet as a group and on a one-to-one basis, to receive and exchange information on student projects and current art. The rest of the time is designated for studio work. Through slides of works by modern and contemporary international artists, screenings of experimental films and videos, visits to exhibitions, readings of related articles and essays, information will be presented to help clarify directions and provide alternatives in which to work. During individual meetings, I will suggest many artists who share an affinity with your ideas and sensitivity, as well as materials and possible formal and conceptual directions that may benefit your work; you are encouraged to bring in personal interests—music, science, popular culture, philosophy, humor—and incorporate them in the few projects that will be presented for group critiques. Projects will relate to ideas and forms that include visibility and invisibility; sound and silence; time and motion; ephemerality and permanence; discipline and freedom; gender, social and political issues in relation to sculpture. Indoor and outdoor site-specific or performance-oriented work is included.

FSD-3352-A (previously FSD-3304, second semester)

Sculpture/Video Art Workshop II: From Space to Time

Wednesday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: L. Buvoli

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FSD-3351 for course description.

FID-3353-A (previously FID-3354, first semester)

Advanced Video Art I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: P. Bard

This course is for serious and self-motivated students who would like to work on the further development of their own video projects. There will be ongoing individual and group critiques of these projects, and an in-depth examination of the issues involved in contemporary video art. The course will also include relevant field trips and guest artists. Assigned readings and a brief paper on a video artist or exhibition, as well as short expositions of concerns that students are addressing in their own work, are required. Prerequisite: FID-2954, Introduction to Video Art II, or equivalent.

FID-3354-A

Advanced Video Art II

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FID-3353 for course description.

FID-3401-A

Electronics for Artists I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

This is a beginning course for fine artists to learn how to use electronics in their work. Simple basic principles of electricity will be taught, providing students with a wide variety of skills. These skills will range from how to light a show without blowing fuses, to how to incorporate electronic technologies in their work and make it dynamically interactive. Various basic components will be explored such as LEDs, resistors, capacitors, transistors, relays, and more. Students will learn how to read and translate a circuit diagram into a circuit, and design a circuit and solder it together. Many sensors will be utilized such as laser, infrared, ultrasonic and microwave motion detectors. Safely handling and designing high-voltage electronics will be discussed and demonstrated as well.

FID-3402-A

Electronics for Artists II

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

This course is a continuation of FID-3401, Electronics for Artists I. Building on the high- and low-voltage electronic components and sensors previously explored, microcontrollers (very small stand-alone computers) will be integrated into student projects. The Basic Stamp 2 microcontroller will be used. It is able to control many devices, including any serial-controlled unit such as LCD readouts, DVD players, even cell phones, not to mention more modest devices such as light bulbs and motors. Students will utilize microcontrollers and learn how to program them to successfully create stand-alone artworks such as interactive sculpture, electronic installations and other computer artworks. Explorations of the pioneers in the field of art and technology will supplement class discussions. No previous programming experience is necessary.

THIRD-YEAR PRINTMAKING COURSES

The following courses are open to all students. Additional printmaking courses are listed in the book after the second-year fine arts course listing. Second-year printmaking courses are open to all students.

Note: Printshop facilities are available outside of class hours.

FGD-3404-A

Printmaking: Color Etching Workshop

Friday 2:00-6:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: E. Breiger

This course covers the many different ways of working with color in the etching process. Drawing, painting and photography can all be used to create plates for printing. Color will be applied through intaglio inking, stencils, surface rolls and viscosity—a method of applying multiple colors to a single plate—as well as multiple plate color printing. Traditional etching techniques, including dry point, hard ground, soft ground, lift ground, white ground and aquatint will be used to capture the qualities of pen and ink, pencil, crayon and brush. These can be combined on a single plate or with multiple plates to create layered effects of color, line and texture. Chine collé, collagraphs, Xerox transfers, offsetting and various mixed-media techniques will be demonstrated, along with photoetching techniques in which hand-drawn, painted and photographic images can be transferred to the plate. Print on paper, canvas, silk and other fabrics. Make one-of-a-kind color prints, editions, artists' books, print portfolios from this inventive medium. Think it, ink it, print it. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

FGD-3422

Printmaking: Lithography Projects

Thursday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: C. Yoder

Lithography is one of the most direct and subtle methods of image-making available in printmaking. The spontaneity of charcoal drawing, the rich tone and intricacy of pencil rendering, the transparent washes of watercolor and the detail of photographic images are all possible in this medium. This course will offer an overview of the image-making possibilities available in lithography. Prints will be made using traditional hand-drawn techniques on aluminum plates and stone as well as photographic platemaking. Color separation techniques will be explored through the use of multiple-plate printing. Students will concentrate on self-initiated projects in the form of editions, portfolios, book projects or experimental printing. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

This course will concentrate on the use of silkscreen to realize personal projects, print editions, multiples, posters and portfolio pieces. Emphasis will be placed on idea concept, material choices and craft. The use of hand-drawn, photographic, photocopied and digital color separation techniques will be introduced in class. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop. Water-based silkscreen ink will be used, allowing for soap-and-water cleanup.

FGD-3681Printmaking: Silkscreen and Painting/Combined Media

Tuesday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: P. Hristoff

From its first use in combination with painting by artists in the 1950s, silkscreen remains one of the only ways to bring photographic, drawn and now digital images directly into painting. This course will investigate the printed image and the painted surface, and the possibilities of their combination, through assignments as well as individualized instruction tailored to each student's work and aesthetics. Creative and informal approaches to the printing process will be encouraged. Work will be critiqued on an ongoing basis and students will be required to keep a journal as well as review current exhibitions. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop. Prerequisite: One silkscreen course or instructor's permission.

FGD-3687Printmaking: Letterpress Workshop

Monday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Faust

This workshop will give a thorough introduction to letterpress printing. We will begin with hand-set, movable wood and metal type in combination with etched plates and linocuts, and then explore making and using photopolymer plates from digital files. This medium is versatile and adaptable, mixing easily with other printmaking processes; the quality of image can range from hard edge to painterly. Letterpress printing also impresses a third dimension of depth and texture to the image and text on paper. Simple, accurate color registration is easy on the letterpress. The experience of hand typesetting using vintage metal and wood typefaces will enhance students' knowledge and understanding of typography. Printing blocks and plates range from completely manual, hand-cut and collaged to digital photopolymer plates. Letterpress die cutting allows students to actually shape their projects. Operation and maintenance of several letterpresses will be included. Each session will begin with a demonstration followed by studio time to work on individual projects, from type-based graphic designs to fine art limited editions.

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Sandlin

Using silkscreen, students will explore various ways to present print as sequential images—artists' books, themed portfolios and comics, even fanzines. The course will cover the process from concept to finished and bound multiples. Students will learn methods of making color separations for multicolor prints using traditional hand-drawn and modern photographic techniques. Bookbinding techniques will be demonstrated, including Japanese bookbinding, accordion folding and signature binding. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

FGD-3707-APrintmaking: Etching and the Photographic Image

Monday 2:00-6:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: E. Breiger

Use your photographs, drawings, paintings and collages to explore the wide range of image-making possibilities by combining photography and etching. Students will make digital negatives that will be exposed to presensitized etching plates for printing. Different ways of creating color separations will be covered, including two-plate duotones for shades of different colors and four-plate process color printing for images of infinite colors. The various methods of inking and printing these photo plates will be demonstrated. The traditional etching techniques for line work, textures, tones and embossing will also be introduced and combined with photographic images to create multilayered prints. Experimenting with these processes can generate new imagery and new ideas for use in individual projects. Make one-of-a-kind prints or editions, artist's books or print portfolios; large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

FGD-3727Silkscreen in Series

Thursday 2:00-6:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: C. Yoder

This advanced silkscreen course offers students the opportunity to design and complete a fully realized series of prints based on a central topic of their choice. Students will be encouraged to experiment with the many variations inherent in the silkscreen process. Monoprints, color variations, collage, assemblage and printing on various materials are some of the techniques that will be covered in class. Water-based silkscreen ink is used, allowing for soap-and-water clean up.

This advanced course will combine silkscreen printing with sculptural concerns to create large scale or three-dimensional mixed-media works. Concepts, fabrication, and sculptural edition problems will be tested and solved. We will explore tools, materials and methods, along with curating and documentation, and printing on a variety of different substrates such as plastic, metal, textiles and ceramics. Find out about decals, heat forming, embossing, pochoir and 3D printing. Get studio tips and logic. Learn about jigs for cutting and drilling. FOURTH-YEAR FINE ARTS COURSES

The following courses are restricted to fourth-year fine arts majors.

FPD-4010-ASenior Workshop I: Painting, Drawing, Multimedia

Monday 4:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: S. Anker, A. Aycock, L. Buvoli, F. Gillette, J. Whitten, J. Winsor
Senior Workshop: (aka The Monday Night Team) is a mentorship program in which an individual student's art and working process is the subject of discussion. The goal of the course is to aid students in developing a working methodology that produces a final body of work. One-on-one critiques, group critiques and outside evaluators (artists/critics) format the course. In addition, reading materials, group discussions and presentations complete the sessions.

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FID-4110 for course description.

AHD-4140-ASenior Seminar

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Avgikos

Unlike the historical avant-garde that situated itself outside of mass culture, today's emerging avant-garde art seems to anticipate ways of working from within and in relation to mass culture. Art is steadily moving out from the "white cube" to participate in a global continuum that's hosted by satellite TV and cable, the Internet, all forms of wireless communication and international biennials. The fractious history of art and mass culture has grown exponentially within the past two decades in direct proportion to the invention of new imaging technologies and the development of global economies. This course proposes to examine the scant, but rich, history of relations between art and mass culture, and to chart the rise of media-related art. We will immerse ourselves in screenings of contemporary video/multimedia work of the past two decades and seek out as many pertinent exhibitions as we can throughout the semester. We will also read interviews with artists and curators, as well as texts on media theory, globalism and the like.

AHD-4140-BSenior Seminar

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Kuspit

The seminar will examine theoretical issues in art through a critical discussion of various current exhibitions. Different texts will be used to provide a sensitizing framework for discussion. Students will be expected to make a class presentation about a particular artist or movement.

AHD-4140-CSenior Seminar

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Kotik

In the 1960s, installation art became a prominent tool for many artists to convey their ideas about the changing structure of society, the art market and, above all, art itself. The temporal and site-specific aspects of installation work corresponded well to the flux of artists' ideas. The practice of creating installations or environments has roots in history that can be traced back as far as the Counter-Reformation. This course will review the history of this medium, concentrating above all on the renewed interest in installations in the 1980s and emphasizing current work of both well- and lesser-known installation artists. Lectures, museum trips and gallery visits will be included.

AHD-4140-DSenior Seminar

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

The art world today is marked by a renewed appreciation of the content of art—what it "says" as much as the way it says it. The insistence on content rebuffs the progressive formal purification of the modernist narrative that insisted on the supremacy of "art" itself. Subsequent developments revealed this narrative to be part of the utopian dream which postmodernism rejected out of the force of world events. The seminar discussions will consider the "content" of art—relative to its form—in the context of political, social, philosophical and spiritual pressures from the world in which it is made and circulates. Students will view exhibitions, critique them in class and write brief reviews on the basis of these concerns.

See AHD-4140-B for course description.

FID-4999-AFine Arts Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

Department of Humanities and Sciences

- Successful completion of 30 humanities and sciences credits, including all required humanities and sciences courses. In addition to College-wide requirements (as listed on page 5), please refer to the specific humanities and sciences departmental requirements for your degree major.
- Register for a minimum of 3 humanities and sciences credits each semester. It is expected that students will have successfully completed at least 21 humanities and sciences credits by the end of their junior year. Students entering the senior year will be allowed to register only if they can complete all of the humanities and sciences credits and requirements within one academic year and be eligible to graduate.
- HDR Requirements Students are required to successfully complete one 3-credit course in each of the following four areas, unless credit has been awarded in transfer for these distribution requirements:
 - Literature – HLD prefix
 - History – HHD prefix
 - Science – HSD prefix
 - Social Sciences – HPD prefix
 Distribution requirements may only be fulfilled by courses from the specified core curriculum, listed with an affix of “R” in the course code.

Note: Humanities and sciences courses are first listed according to academic discipline in numerical order. Course descriptions are also listed first by discipline and then by course number. Elective humanities and sciences courses are listed with course numbers ranging from the 2000s up to the 4000s. The number designation is not an indication of course level and these elective courses are open to all students, assuming any prerequisite has been fulfilled.

- Proficiency Examination All students must take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. A degree requirement for the bachelor of fine arts, the PE tests reading comprehension and writing ability and may be used to place students in writing courses. The exam may be taken as many times as necessary; however, students who do not pass the PE in their first semester will be required to take HCD0161 and/or HCD0162, Fundamentals of Writing I and II, and will not be allowed to take Humanities and Sciences elective courses.

Exceptions

Students who receive a B- or better in HCD1010, Literature and Writing I, and who have not passed the PE will be allowed to take HCD1020, Literature and Writing II. In this instance, students must pass the PE in their second semester in order to continue with any other humanities and sciences courses.

or

Transfer students who have been exempted from all humanities and sciences requirements and courses do not need to take the Proficiency Examination.

The Proficiency Examination is given approximately six times a year. Students will read a short article and to respond with a 500-word essay that demonstrates an understanding of the topic and the mechanics of attribution, sentence and paragraph logic, as well as good grammar and spelling. For dates and sample tests, visit the SVA Web site at: www.writingresourcecenter.com. Questions should be directed to the student's academic advisor or to Neil Friedland, coordinator of writing services, at the Writing Resource Center, 212.592.2575.

ESG-0169

Questioning Contemporary Art

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: G. Savannah

Developing the skills to communicate ideas about art is the focus of this course. We will begin with analyzing a central issue from the comments of a contemporary artist or art critic. Students will then write a short essay that explains how the issue is addressed in their own work, incorporating vocabulary from the artist/critic. In-class discussions to practice verbal skills will be included. Art topics will be based on the interests of class members. Optional journal work in response to exhibitions, lectures, books and films will help develop the expression of a personal aesthetic. Artists to be discussed will include: Jessica Stockholder, Shirin Neshat, Nalini Malini, Robert Irwin, Olafur Eliasson, Pedro Cabrita Reis, Stephen Hende, Jonathan Pylpchuk and Kim Sooja. Note: Registration by placement or by permission.

ESG-0223-A

Film for Artists

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: G. Savannah

Through written and verbal responses to film clips, students develop cogent initial thesis passages. While practicing current idiomatic English, vocabulary and clear pronunciations, students will articulate their aesthetic in relation to cultural insight, cinematography and novel visual approaches. Directors to be discussed include: Mira Nair, Tran Ahn Hung, Won Kar Wai, Tsai Ming Liang, Curtis Hanson, Richard Linklater, Amy Heckerling, Hiroshi Teshigahara. Note: Registration by placement or by permission.

ESG-0233-A

Thesis Writing

Wednesday 2:30-5:20

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: G. Savannah

Through reading short stories and essays, students will examine how to use vivid and fresh detail in their writing. We will concentrate on how to be rigorous in choosing language to achieve written clarity for thesis topics. The result will be writing in a personal style that communicates original thinking and engages the audience. The first four sessions of this course are mandatory group meetings. For the remainder of the course, individual meetings with the instructor will be scheduled. Note: Registration by placement or by permission.

FOUNDATION REQUIREMENT

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

Instructor: R. Weinreich

What is "modernism"? Where does this period of aesthetics begin and end: between antiquity and the postmodern? This course seeks to define "modernism" through readings of key literary texts in order to explore the modernist sensibility as it is represented in the genres, structures and techniques of literature, as well as to examine how language delineates its parameters. Readings will be selected from the works of Wordsworth, Coleridge, Emerson, Whitman, Stein, Kafka, Woolf, Schulz, Camus, Beckett, T.S. Eliot and Pound, among others. Note: This course is open only to students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HLD-1828-HPThe Language of Modernism II

Thursday 10:00-11:30

Spring semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see HLD-1827 for course description. Note: This course is open only to students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HONORS PROGRAM SECOND-YEAR HUMANITIES AND SCIENCES REQUIREMENTS

At the completion of the second-year Honors Program, students will receive nine (9) humanities and sciences credits, and will have fulfilled the Humanities Distribution Requirements (HDRs) in history and social science.

HHD-2050-HPHistory of the Premodern World

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Redhour

The course will examine how distinctive systems of belief provided emerging cultures with a framework for their social and political ideals and how these developed over time. We will see how geography influenced early Middle Eastern civilizations; how Confucius and the Tao directed China's path; how Hinduism provided India with cultural coherence; how the ideals and legacies of Greece and Rome set the tone for late Western thought; and how religion shaped medieval and early modern Europe. Finally, we will discuss how, in the early modern period, these systems came into closer contact, thereby creating the European Renaissance, and how these systems came into conflict and synthesis, ushering in the birth of globalization. Note: This course is open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HPD-2060-HPFrom Ancient Myth to the Birth of Modern Science

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Stafford

In this course we will begin by discussing the earliest forms of human thinking—animism and magic—and see how from these seeds, the human mind has created polytheistic religions, philosophy and ideas of law. We will conclude the semester by examining how philosophical and religious thought, from Aristotle to Galileo, has led to the development of scientific theory. Note: This course is open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HLD-2123-HPHuman and Divine

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Hendricks

Beginning with the Sumerian Gilgamesh and ending with William Shakespeare's The Tempest, this course will examine the themes that concerned ancient and premodern storytellers: the genesis of humanity; the origins of evil; free will and morality; what it means to be human, neither divine nor animal. (Who are we? Where did we come from? Where are we going? Why?) By examining the characters, themes, motifs and structures of classic genres—drama, the epic and the lyric—that shaped and validated the story's content, this course will look at some of the answers that humans have proposed. Note: This course is open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HONORS PROGRAM THIRD-YEAR HUMANITIES AND SCIENCES REQUIREMENTS

HSD-3507Visual Science Workshop

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

Limited to 15 students

This course will explore the science of the tools that visual artists use. While bringing to light the methods scientists use to see their theories come to life, we will study such topics as: the photoelectric effect, microscopy, chemistry of color, biology of vision and the growing dependence of visual techniques on computer science. Activities will include performing experiments in the classroom and with the staff at the American Museum of Natural History. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take one semester of the course. All other students may register with permission of the instructor.

ELECTIVE WRITING

HCD-2077-A

Writing Workshop

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

A workshop in fiction, poetry, drama and creative nonfiction. Assignments will include work that is spontaneous, crafted and revised. Writings will be read aloud and critiqued in class. Students will keep a journal. Readings will be selected from contemporary publications such as The New Yorker, The New York Times, Harper's and Vanity Fair.

HCD-2466-A

Experimental Writing I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

A workshop in fiction and poetry with a twist. Using the standard notions of story, play and poem as points of departure, we will focus on linguistic experimentation. Topics include the interrelationship of writing with other art forms, such as film, painting and music. "Free prose," "cutups" and "spontaneous bop prosody" techniques will be used to help students to find their own forms of expression. Readings will be selected from Ernest Hemingway, Gertrude Stein, Tom Wolfe, James Baldwin, Jack Kerouac, Hunter S. Thompson and Paul Bowles, among others.

HCD-2467-A

Experimental Writing II

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

This course is a continuation of HCD-2466, Experimental Writing I. In addition to writing and reading assignments, students will submit examples of their own imaginative visual art (a brief film or graphic novel, for example) to illustrate final written texts. Assigned readings will be selected from Kathy Acker, Jane Bowles, Diane DiPrima, Gregory Corso, Allen Ginsberg, William S. Burroughs, Brian Gysin and Art Spiegelman, among others. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HCD-2501-A

Workshop in Creative Writing I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. MacKenzie

A writing workshop in poetry, short fiction and creative nonfiction. We will analyze content and craft in order to develop editing and revision skills. Included will be handouts and discussions of contemporary poets and writers such as Donald Justice, Ray Carver, Mary Karr and John Updike. A well-known guest writer will read from his/her work. Students will complete weekly assignments and read their work in class as well as submit work to the SVA magazine Words.

HCD-2502-A

Workshop in Creative Writing II

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. MacKenzie

This course is a continuation of HCD-2501, Workshop in Creative Writing I. Writing assignments will be in poetry, short stories and one-act plays. Primarily, we will read and discuss student work in class. Handouts of work by contemporary authors such as Tobias Wolff, Elizabeth Bishop and Bill Knott will be used to analyze writing style and voice. A well-known guest writer will read from his/her work. Students will submit work to the SVA magazine Words. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HCD-2522-A

Playwriting

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Auletta

In this course, students will be introduced to the fundamentals of playwriting: character, conflict, action and dialogue. The techniques explored not only provide the beginning writer with the basics needed to write for the stage, but are also applicable to other entertainment arenas, such as film and television writing, comedy and animated films. The plays written will be performed in class, in the form of staged readings, giving students a chance to function in the interrelated roles of writer, director, actor and audience member. Our emphasis will be on the writing of short plays, approximately three to four pages in length. Weekly readings of noteworthy one-act plays will also be assigned.

HCD-2633-A

Workshop in Comedy Writing I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Zuckerman

Funny and interesting writing emerges from a personal vision; therefore, this workshop encourages students to express their own ideas and feelings. The writing forms include sketches, monologues, verse, short stories, essays and plays. The course will focus on the writing, subsequent discussion and development of material created by students.

HCD-2634-A

Workshop in Comedy Writing II

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Zuckerman

Funny and interesting writing emerges from a personal vision. This workshop encourages students to express their own ideas and feelings. The course will focus on the development of first-draft sketches into fully rounded plays, stories, essays and poems. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HCD-2698-A

Journal I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Rower

Whatever your reason for wanting to keep a journal (diary, log), there are ways to do it better, through techniques that develop the four natural modes of expression: emotions, senses, intuition and intellect. They include learning to write from lists, portraits, guided imagery, altered point of view, unsent letters, imagined dialogues, long- and short-term memory writing, dreams, fantasies, maps of consciousness. In addition, sketches and drawings, collages, photos and clippings can be integrated. The course is a workshop for writing and reading aloud as well as talking about the issues involved in journal writing. The goal is to use a journal for daily writing—about events, people, situations, feelings, reflections or free association, as well as some of the more structured assigned exercises.

HCD-2699-A

Journal II

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Rower

This course is a continuation of HCD-2698, Journal I. The primary objectives are to promote habits of writing and to find ways to dig more deeply into the worlds of experience and literary expression through impromptu in-class writing and classroom critiques of student work. The goal is for each student to find and project his or her own personal voice. To this end, each student will study the "voices" expressed in selected published personal journals, choosing one to focus on, write about, and present to the class by the end of the semester. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HCD-3654-A

Photography: Images and Criticism

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Leslie

Photography has had a profound impact on the way we perceive the world. In order to understand that impact we will try to answer some basic questions in this course: How do we know that an artistic photograph is art? What is the difference between art photography and other kinds of photography? What does a documentary image document? Who determines which newspaper photographs make the news? How do advertising images sell? A selection of essays covering all critical approaches to photography from the formalist to the Marxist will be read. Students will write short reviews during the semester.

MUSIC

HDD-2188-A

Music in Western Civilization I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Lieber

Discussion of masterpieces of Western music in their historical context, with an exploration into their structural elements, compositional techniques, and correlations in painting, sculpture, literature, poetry and other art forms will be the focus of this course. Music will be selected from medieval, baroque, classical and Romantic periods, including works by Palestrina, Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin, Schumann, Tchaikovsky and Brahms. Recordings, videos, DVDs, live performances, field trips, and slides of painting, sculpture and architecture will be coordinated with the class sessions. Note: No technical music background is required.

HDD-2233-A

20th-Century Music I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Lieber

An exploration of classical music with an emphasis on the first half of the 20th century will be the focus of this course. Compositional techniques and stylistic elements will be discussed in their historical context, and in relation to concurrent developments in painting, literature, photography, film and other art forms. Music selections will include works by Stravinsky, Ives, Prokofieff, Rachmaninoff, Berg, Schoenberg, Webern and Varèse, among others. Recordings, videos, DVDs, live performances, field trips, and slides of painting, sculpture and photography will be coordinated with the class sessions. Note: No technical music background is required.

HDD-2334-A

Music in Culture

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Altman

This course will explore the cultural history of modern popular music, with particular emphasis on rural origins (hillbilly and blues) and the impact of urban life (everything from rhythm and blues and rock & roll to disco, punk and rap). Close inspections of such seminal artists as Robert Johnson, Muddy Waters, Bob Dylan, Hank Williams, Elvis Presley, Chuck Berry, the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, the Ramones, and others will be included.

HDD-2339-A

Songs of Conscience: Music and Social Change

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Altman

Throughout history, music has shown itself to be a powerful force for social and political change. This course will examine the role of music in expressing the hopes, fears, attitudes and dreams of the common man and woman, and of the struggle to help the unempowered and underprivileged of society. We will listen to, read about and discuss the works of socially and politically committed artists from all walks of music, including folk (Woody Guthrie, Bob Dylan), rock (John Lennon, Bruce Springsteen), soul (Aretha Franklin, Marvin Gaye), rap (Public Enemy, Tupac Shakur), reggae (Bob Marley, Peter Tosh) and country (The Carter Family, Willie Nelson).

HDD-2348

History of Jazz

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Altman

This course will begin with an examination of the African roots of jazz and early African-American forms such as spirituals, work songs, and ragtime. We will see the beginnings of jazz as a blending of European and African elements in brass bands at the turn of the 20th century. We will then study each subsequent phase of this music through the works of representative artists such as Duke Ellington,

Louis Armstrong, Charlie Parker and Miles Davis, and attempt to place these developments in cultural perspective. Recordings and films will be used in class. Musical examples will be presented in a way that can be readily understood by nonmusicians.

HDD-2352-A

American Popular Music

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Altman

This course is an introduction to the diverse aspects of American popular music. We will see how such standard contemporary styles as rock, rap and R&B developed out of older forms like jazz, blues and country music. We will also study how these musical styles have often created, not just reflected, prevailing social and cultural trends.

HDD-2513-A

Heroines of the Musical Stage

Friday, 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Stern-Wolfe

This course will examine the representation and contributions of women to the pivotal musical dramas of our age. Among the works to be considered are Bizet's Carmen, Puccini's Tosca, Verdi's La Traviata, Strauss' Salome, Donizetti's Lucia, Beethoven's Fidelio and Rossini's Barber of Seville. We will also take a look at some of the favorite female vocal characters of the American musical theater. Videos and recordings of the famed Maria Callas, Cecilia Bartoli and Teresa Stratas will be screened and aired, and the class will attend a live performance at the Metropolitan Opera or the New York City Opera. Required text: Opera: A Listener's Guide, by Jack Sacher.

HDD-2514-A

Opera and the Human Condition

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Stern-Wolfe

Through the musical exploration of traditional operatic literature, we will examine music's ability to probe human emotions and attempt to discover why inner demons torment so many heroes who have won the admiration of audiences throughout the world. We will hear arias and recitatives of the famous characters of Mozart's Don Giovanni, Verdi's, Rigoletto, Leoncavallo's, Pagliacci, Brecht and Weill's Mahagonny, Berg's and Buechner's Wozzeck, Gershwin's Porgy and Bess. Original sets will be designed by students in a class presentation of an opera of their choice. Required text: Opera: A Listener's Guide, by Jack Sacher.

HISTORY

HHD-2001-R

History of Ancient Civilizations

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Eads

From the beginnings of civilization (and history) around 3500 BCE until 500 CE, many peoples made a mark on human history. This course will consider selected topics from the Near East (Sumer, Akkad, Egypt, Assyria, Israel, Persia), Greece, Rome, China and India. Topics will vary each semester. The primary text will be Ancient Near Eastern History and Culture, by William H. Stiebing, Jr.

HHD-2011-R

Medieval and Renaissance Perspectives

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Franz

This course will track the history of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. We will examine medieval institutions and beliefs; chart the changes that brought about the Renaissance; and look at the underlying connections between culture, power and ideas. Topics will include the medieval church in religion and politics; the nature and role of chivalry; and the Black Death, along with other catastrophes. Students are welcome to suggest related topics of interest. We will read selections from influential authors of the period, including: Augustine, Gregory of Tours, Christine de Pizan, Machiavelli, Martin Luther and Sir Francis Bacon.

HHD-2011-R1

Medieval and Renaissance Perspectives

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Eads

People who lived during the thousand years between the end of the Roman Empire in the West and the discovery of the "New World" did not, of course, describe themselves as "medieval." They thought they lived in "modern times." We will study a selection of the political, institutional, cultural, religious, military and social topics that were once "current events." Highlights will include: The empire of Charlemagne, Anglo-Saxon England, monasticism, the Vikings, the Crusades, Arabic learning, the Eastern Roman Empire, the Black Death, the university, the Communes, chivalry and war. Throughout the course, emphasis will be on the work and words of medieval men and women. Texts include: Cruz and Gerberding, Medieval Worlds; Wiesner, Wheeler and Curtis, Discovering the Medieval Past; Internet Medieval Sourcebook.

HHD-2051-R

The 21st Century: Globalization and the Restructuring of the World

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Bastian

This course addresses the major trends that are shaping the new century: the global economy and the multinational corporation, the North/South division of wealth and labor, environmental crisis and the United States as a reigning superpower. We will look at current events to understand the multiple directions history is moving in and the choices that confront ordinary citizens of the world in shaping future outcomes.

HHD-2052-R

The 21st Century: Globalization and People Power

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Bastian

This course reviews issues of economic globalization and America's superpower role to focus on two major trends: the shifting fate of nations and the rise of people power in defining the new world order. We will look at the U.S. relative to the European Union, the new Asian powers, and the causes of world conflict and disorder. We will also look at the growing role of people power and democracy movements, creating globalization from "below" around the environment, women's emancipation and human rights, fair trade, the free press and more. Note: This course has no prerequisite; however, it is a continuation of the fall semester.

HHD-2111-R

World History I: Classical to Renaissance

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Eads

A whirlwind tour of the first 5,000 years of human history, this course will explore the major social, religious, cultural, economic and political events that have shaped several of the world's great cultures. In particular, we will examine the interactions between cultures as well as the differences that distinguish them. Emphasis will be on reading and reviewing the record people left of themselves. A few of the possible course topics are: the origins of Hinduism, Buddhism, Christianity and Islam; the thought of Confucius and Socrates; theories of monarchy and representative government; the contribution of women in religious, social and economic history; war and conflict resolution. Texts: Bentley and Ziegler, Traditions and Encounters, vol. 1; Sherman et al. World Civilizations, vol. 1.

HHD-2112-R

World History II: Renaissance to the 21st Century

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Skutsch

This course is a survey of the major landmarks in world history from the 15th century to the present. It will focus on significant political, economic, social and cultural developments from a global perspective. Topics will include: the Renaissance and the scientific revolution; the rise of Russia in Eastern Europe and Asia; modern revolutions in Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas; global significance of the world wars; legacy of 19th-century thought for the present; unification of Europe and the prospects for peace. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HHD-2144-R

Modern Revolutions

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Skutsch

A comparative examination of revolutionary movements, focusing on the large-scale political, social, economic and cultural transformations in modern history will be explored. The course will begin with the American and French revolutions of the 18th century, continue with the Russian Revolution of 1917 and conclude with a discussion of the most important landmarks of the political and economic transformations in Eastern Europe today. Works by Locke, Voltaire, Rousseau, Marx, Lenin, Sakharov and Havel will be discussed.

HHD-2777-R

U.S. History I: 1600-1865

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Druks

An examination of the forces behind the social, political and economic developments of American civilization and their interrelationships will be the focus of this course. Special attention will be placed on the role of individuals like Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Robert E. Lee, and the variety of interpretations of American history. Readings will be from primary sources of the men and women who made this history. The text will be Daniel Boorstin's The Americans.

HHD-2778-R

U.S. History II: 1865-Present

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Druks

An examination of the forces behind the social, political and economic developments of American civilization and their interrelationships will be the focus of this course. Special attention will be placed on the role of individuals such as Theodore Roosevelt; Harry S. Truman; John F. Kennedy; Richard Nixon; Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Bill Clinton; and the variety of interpretations of American history. Readings will be from primary sources of the men and women who made this history. The text will be Daniel Boorstin's The Americans. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HHD-2784-RA Social History of Early Modern Europe

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

This course will deal with a wide variety of topics covering the social life of European peoples from the 14th century to the 18th century, a period of tremendous ferment and change. How did people work and what attitudes did they have toward it? How did religion function in their lives? What did they believe concerning God and their place in the universe? What was the role of the family and how were children raised? How were they educated and what did they learn? How did the different social classes view one another? How were these activities and views expressed in the art and documents of this period? These topics will provide useful criteria for a comparative examination of the different classes—the “high and low” within European society. Readings will include selections from contemporary sources as well as recent historical studies.

HHD-2785-RA Social History of Modern Western Culture

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

This course will examine the social life of the West from the aftermath of the French Revolution to the present. Special attention will be given to the long-term effects and consequences of the Industrial Revolution on the lifestyles, beliefs and culture of all levels of society. We will consider relationships produced by class and gender differences as well as the impact of economic development. We will also survey topics such as family structure, attitudes toward work, methods of entertainment, the role of religion and popular attitudes toward new scientific theories. Lastly, we will explore institutional responses to changing social needs and examine their historical effects on people's lives. Our sources will include diaries, works of art and other contemporary artifacts as well as recent historical studies.

HHD-2811-RConstitutional Law

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Curley

Is the Constitution under attack? Warrantless wiretaps, citizens detained without due process—are these unconstitutional attacks on our rights or the legitimate exercise of presidential power? Everyone talks about the Constitution, yet many people know little about it. What rights does it protect? What powers does it give to the Congress as opposed to the President? This course will examine what the Constitution has meant throughout the country's history and how it may (or may not) work in the 21st century.

HHD-2990-R through HHD-2990-R9Western Civilization I

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course provides an historical overview of Western thought from the Renaissance to the early 20th century. Students will explore the ways in which history and culture have interacted to shape the development of societies and individuals in the modern age. We will focus on major historical transformations such as the Renaissance and the Reformation (first semester), the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution (second semester), in order to understand how such pivotal events both condition and reflect movements in science, philosophy and the arts. The course will also provide an introduction to the assumptions, strategies and methods that inform the disciplines of history, philosophy and the social sciences. Readings include selections from: A History of Modern Europe, vols. I and II; Plato; Hobbes; Descartes; Locke; Voltaire; Kant; Mill; Marx; Nietzsche; Freud; Heisenberg; Einstein. Note: Priority registration will be given to sophomore fine arts, illustration and cartooning majors.

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

This course will focus on some of the pivotal events—from the Enlightenment to the space race and beyond—that have shaped the modern world. The historical contributions of such thinkers as of Locke, Voltaire, Darwin, Nietzsche, Einstein and Ellis will be examined.

HHD-3144-RCrisis and Conflict in Early Modern Europe

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

New political theories, social unrest, economic upheaval and intellectual discontent often rocked early modern Europe, resulting in a series of crises. Crisis was often accompanied by open conflict as challenges to various forms of authority were posed by changing geopolitics, inventive minds and a growing middle class that was no longer satisfied with its place within the social hierarchy. From the wars of religion and the rise of absolutism, to the onset of the Industrial Revolution and the French Revolution, we will explore the political, social and intellectual developments of the early modern European nation-states.

HHD-3226-RThe Cultural History of Science

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

Modern science emerged out of a world caught in the social and religious crises of the Reformation and the economic and political changes associated with the emergence of the modern world. Science did not appear out of a vacuum; instead, it borrowed from and built upon the cultural heritage that Western society received from classical antiquity and the Christian religious tradition. In addition, such diverse factors as ancient and medieval philosophy, Renaissance humanism, religious claims to authority, technological innovation, and the search for wealth and power have all contributed to the shape of modern science from its very foundation. This course will explore the history of science within this cultural and social context. The approach will take a broad overview, from the Middle Ages to the modern day, but it will focus on pivotal developments such as the scientific revolution, the Enlightenment and the cold war. Readings on key contemporary sources as well as recent historical studies will be included.

HHD-3288-RHistorical Introduction to Philosophy

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

The great thinkers of the Western world will be examined in their historical context in an attempt to explain how their thought is a reflection and transformation of their culture. Plato, Aristotle, Augustine, Descartes, Hume, Kant, Marx, Rousseau, Mill, Nietzsche, Freud, Sartre, among others, will be studied and related to areas as diverse as the scientific revolution, the Industrial Revolution and modernism in art.

HHD-3334-RPostcolonial Africa

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

Africa is said to be the cradle of human civilization. Today, it is a continent of reemerging independent nations with a complex history and a changing pattern of indigenous ways of life. This course will explore the culture and history of the African continent from the 1870s to the present, focusing on East, West and Southern Africa. Readings will include works of both European and African writers and activists. Selected videos will be screened.

HHD-3356-RThe Making of the American Mind: America In Search of Democracy I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Druks

In the changing society of America, an ever-present component has been the American democratic revolution. Through a multitude of political, scientific and artistic expressions, Americans developed a democratic, open and free society. We will examine people who have contributed to this phenomenon as well as those who preferred its destruction. Six of the following individuals will be studied: Thomas Jefferson, Thomas Paine, Ben Franklin, Charles Wilson Peale, Mark Twain, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Henry David Thoreau, Emma Lazarus, John Muir.

HHD-3357-RThe Making of the American Mind: America In Search of Democracy II

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Druks

In the changing society of America, an ever-present component has been the American democratic revolution. Through a multitude of political, scientific and artistic expressions the Americans developed a democratic, open and free society. We will examine people who have contributed to this phenomenon, as well as those who preferred its destruction. Six of the following individuals will be studied: Mark Twain, Theodore Roosevelt, Frederick Jackson Turner, Upton Sinclair, Peter Cooper, Emma Lazarus, John Dewey, Michael Harrington, John Steinbeck, Jonas Salk, James Baldwin, Joseph R. McCarthy, Robert Kennedy.

HHD-3611-RHistory of Religion

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Eads

A survey of the major religions of the world, beginning with Hinduism, Zoroastrianism and Judaism, and ending with Christianity and Islam. The spiritual crisis of the sixth century BCE that gave rise to Buddhism, Confucianism and Taoism in the East will be compared to the epochs that gave rise to Christianity and Islam. While examining the similarities as well as the differences in the ultimate concepts of major Eastern and Western religions, such as moksha, nirvana, Tao and the kingdom of heaven, this course will explore the historical conditions in which the world religions evolved.

HHD-3651-REcopolitics: Who Rules America?

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Barkan

What are the real connections between politics and the economy? We will trace the development of the free enterprise system, with special emphasis on the inherent contradictions between American capitalism and democracy. Discussion will focus on such issues as the rise and fall of traditional economic systems, ranging from feudalism to socialism; the evolution of the United States from a 17th-century agrarian society to a complex 21st-century postindustrial giant; the ideal of social equality as envisioned in the First and 14th Amendments of the American Constitution and the threats to that ideal; the debate over whether or not poverty can be eliminated in a free enterprise system; industrialism's legacy of environmental abuse and the survival of the planet; economic planning vs. the free market: which strategy will work best within the emerging international economy? Selected readings from Carson, Economic Issues Today: Alternative Approaches; Cochran and Lawrence, American Public Policy; Barke and Stone, Governing The American Republic: Economics, Law and Policies. Readings will be supplemented by pertinent videos and guest speakers.

HHD-3766-RPolitics and Power in America: From Roosevelt to the Present

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Keeran

The Cold War, the civil rights movement, the 1960s, Watergate, Reagan's "revolution" and Iran-Contra: What did each of these reveal about politics and power in American society? We'll read and screen videos about these topics along with the Great Depression, McCarthyism, Vietnam and the future of American politics. Issues of social justice and democracy will be major themes. The course will be conducted in a lecture-discussion format.

HHD-3788-RChina: Past and Present

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

After a generation of isolation, the world is now in full communication with the globe's most populous nation. The course aims to provide a broad background in China's history and culture. We will examine the impact of Confucianism and Buddhism on China's political and social development and China's role in politics, industry and global relations in view of the new, major changes in Chinese communism. The scope ranges from the classic ancient dynasties of Shang, Han, Tang, Sung and Ming to contemporary times. A selection of films will supplement the lectures and study projects.

HHD-4011-R

Oil and Water: Eco-History in the 21st Century

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Bastian

Starting with the history of the oil economy in the last century, this course will explore two interrelated ecological topics that are central to how we will live in the 21st century—oil-based economies and the world water supply. Geopolitical conflicts, resource wars and the advent of global warming will be discussed, including the emerging “water wars” between nations, corporations and people.

HHD-4022-R

Armed Force, Society and Democracy

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

Like other institutions, the military and the power it projects both arise within larger cultures and historical contexts. This course will examine links between society and the military, particularly those points of intersection where each realm has changed and limited the development of the other. We will begin with the history of military force in the West, then go on to examine its impact on a global scale. Lastly, we will consider recent historical developments such as the end of the Cold War and the novel use of pre-emptive force in today's world. Several main topics will frame our course—the political economy of the military, civil society and its relation to force, the causes and consequences of military actions and the relationship of modern military force to modern democratic movements.

HHD-4121-R

The Genesis of Radical Islam

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Mohit

What cultural, political and social conditions have given rise to the emergence of Islamic radicalism and terrorism? What is the constituency of radical Islam and how different is it from Islamic terrorism? In the wake of the recent crisis, what future possibilities lie ahead for the political Islamic movements? What are the diversity of movements grouped under the umbrella of Islam? This course is designed to explore these questions by studying the birth of Islam and the pattern of its expansion and development throughout history. We will also examine the recent history of interaction and confrontation between the Middle East and the Western world. While particular attention will be paid to the “Palestinian question” and the achievements and failures of non-Islamic discourses in the formation of Islamic radicalism, the genesis of Islamic terrorism will be studied in light of the new wave of globalization and the emergence of the new world order.

HHD-4122-R

History of Classical Greece and Rome

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

The legacy of the Greek and Roman civilizations extends into our modern world. In this survey we will examine the rise of the Greek city-states and their political and artistic development, ending with the growth of Hellenistic culture. We will then turn our attention to the growth of Rome, from its mythic roots through the Republican era, the rise of the Caesars and the political, religious and artistic achievements of the empire. The course will conclude with an investigation of the factors that contributed to the eventual decline and fall of the Roman Empire.

HHD-4288-R

Society and Nature: An Historical Perspective

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

This course explores the varied and evolving relationships between human societies and the natural environment since the Renaissance. Topics of study will include: the “meaning” of nature and our place within it; conceptions of nature in Judeo-Christian, pagan, Taoist and other belief systems; the impact of the scientific and industrial revolutions on nature and society; theories and practices of conservation and ecology in the 19th and 20th centuries; and current conceptions of environmental crisis. Related issues such as capitalism and socialism will also be considered.

HHD-4333-R

African-American History I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Jeffries

This course will trace the histories and experiences of African-Americans in the United States from 1619 to 1865, covering the Colonial period, antebellum period and the Civil War. It will focus on the social, historical and political development of the African-American family and community. Texts will include: Jacqueline Jones, Labors of Love, Labors of Sorrow; John Hope Franklin, From Slavery to Freedom; Joanne Grant, Black Protest.

HHD-4334-R

African-American History II

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Jeffries

This course will begin with an examination of Reconstruction and the backlash against it. We will then explore the lives, philosophical views and major contributions of Booker T. Washington; W.E.B. DuBois; Marcus Garvey; Martin Luther King, Jr.; Malcolm X; Adam Clayton Powell Jr.; Paul Robeson and Thurgood Marshall. The social and historical ramifications of World War I, World War II, the Depression, the Harlem Renaissance, the NAACP, CORE, SNCC, SCLS and the Black Panther Party will also be considered. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HHD-4348-R

The Wealth and Poverty of Nations

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

Although world peace and stability in the 21st century will depend heavily on achieving a more equitable distribution of global wealth, the disparity between the world's rich and poor nations has never been so great, and, in fact, continues to increase even as the need to resolve this inequality grows ever more pressing. How have we arrived at this dilemma? Have first-world nations created their own wealth, or have they stolen it from others? Have some nations always been poor, or have they been impoverished? Do wealth and poverty result from decisions freely made by each nation's political and business leaders, or are they the result of larger social, economic and cultural dynamics? Is there a way out of the deepening crisis? This course will address these and related questions in light of the historical processes that have led to the development of a world of rich and poor nations. We shall also attempt to evaluate the relative merits of various solutions that have been proposed to resolve this dilemma.

HHD-4356-R

Religious Conflict and Its Impact: The Reformation

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

The Reformation of the 16th century was one of the most pivotal events in Western civilization, resulting in the formation of Protestantism and the reform of Catholicism. The breakup of Western Christianity into separate churches had immediate significance for the life of European peoples. The unity of the medieval world view was shattered, and competing views of spirituality and forms of religious worship challenged social and political unity as well. Regional differences were intensified, individual conscience became more pronounced, the style and content of art changed profoundly, and new philosophical and scientific ideas resulted. Fundamental questions arose as to the nature of social life, political organization, knowledge and truth. Ultimately, the Reformation had a tremendous impact on the subsequent history of Western societies, and served as an introduction to the religious strife that affects the modern world. Understanding these events and issues is crucial for comprehending the origins of the modern age and the diversity of beliefs that now exist. Readings will include selections by 16th-century authors and recent historical studies.

LITERATURE

HLD-2002-A

The Art of Detective Fiction

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Smith

This course begins with a comparison of Poe (then) and Borges (now), and then traces the development of the genre from its English infancy (Doyle and Christie) through its hard-boiled golden age (Hammett, Chandler and Ross McDonald). Finally, we will examine the contemporary scene, where detective fiction becomes international (Fleming and Le Carre) and anti-detective (Eco and Marquez).

HLD-2042-A

20th-Century Literature and Culture I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course will focus on the literary, philosophical and intellectual background of the 20th century. Topics for the fall semester will include Victorian culture, existentialism, social Darwinism, the Freudian tradition and the jazz age. We will discuss the works of Dostoyevsky, T. S. Eliot, Ernest Hemingway, Gertrude Stein, and John Steinbeck, among others.

HLD-2043-A

20th-Century Literature and Culture II

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course is a continuation of HLD-2042, 20th-Century Literature and Culture I. Cultural themes and movements will include the beat generation, feminism, black nationalism, the peace movement, the global village concept and the convergence of Eastern and Western cultures. Writers will include: James Baldwin, Albert Camus, Angela Davis, Bob Dylan, Jean-Paul Sartre, John Updike, Malcolm X. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-2058-A

Fantasy

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Hendricks

Shaped by our desires and fears, fantasy literature offers radical departures from consensus reality into worlds of magic, peril and delight. This course will explore the imagery, characters themes and narrative structures of several types of fantasy fiction. We will begin by briefly examining parent genres (myth and fairy-tale) before reading examples of modern fantasy types, including heroic, weird, surrealist, magic realism, science fiction and feminist. In addition to the fiction, we will read some critical theory to help define and locate the subgenres of this large category of fiction.

HLD-2088-R

American Literature: 19th Century

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. DiPalma

This course explores the intellectual, cultural and literary roots and directions of American literature, from its Puritan, Gothic and Romantic origins through realist, transcendental and premodern tendencies late in the 19th century. We'll read selected works by Nathaniel Hawthorne, Edgar Allan Poe, Herman Melville, Frederick Douglass, Walt Whitman, Emily Dickinson, Henry James and the utopian feminist Charlotte Perkins Gilman. We'll investigate questions of style, genre, tradition and critical interpretation in relation to the blooming of American society and culture.

HLD-2089-R

American Literature: 20th Century

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. DiPalma

This course will plot the legacies and outgrowths of modernism, from its inception with imagism, surrealism and societal critique, through the Harlem Renaissance to the wartime epic novel, reactive 1960s beat confessional, to contemporary poetry and prose, especially rich in ethnic and literary diversity. We'll read Jack London, Robert Frost, Djuna Barnes, William Faulkner, Langston Hughes, Ernest Hemingway, Sylvia Plath, William Carlos Williams and Toni Morrison, carving out a sense of what America has been, is, or may come to be, from the perspective of its great writers. Research papers, oral reports and abstracts will focus on each student's particular interests within this survey of distinct traditions, perspectives and possibilities.

HLD-2113-R

Writers in Exile

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Smith

This course will examine the effects of exile—chosen or imposed—on the works of such varied writers as Dante, Joyce, Marquez, Mann, Kundera, Brodsky and Nabokov, among others.

HLD-2154-R

Myths and the Cosmos

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

A study of some of the world's ancient religious myths of creation, the cosmos, and man's role within it, as contrasted with the universe of modern science. Among the mythologies to be considered are those of the Egyptians, Hebrews, Indians, Chinese and Greeks. Texts will include: Homer's Odyssey (E.V. Rieu translation, Penguin paperback); Plato's Symposium (B. Jowett translation, many editions); John Updike's The Centaur; and The Epic of Gilgamesh.

HLD-2161-A

The Beat Generation

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

This course will explore the beat counterculture as a post-World War II American phenomenon, a literary correlative to abstract expressionist painting and to bebop music, auguring the "era" of sex, drugs and rock & roll to follow.

HLD-2201-R

Drama and Society

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

This course traces the history of drama and the interaction of drama with the society in which it is created. The course will emphasize modern and contemporary works, but will trace the rise of drama from ancient Greece to the present day. Students will view plays, either on tape or in live performance. Among the playwrights whose works will be read are: Euripides, Plautus, Molière, Ibsen, Shakespeare, Shaw, O'Neill, Ionesco, Beckett, Kopit and Mamet.

HLD-2211-R

Introduction to Poetry

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

We do not like that which we do not understand. As Marianne Moore wrote: "I too, dislike it: there are things that are important beyond all this fiddle. Reading it, however, with a perfect contempt for it, one discovers in it after all, a place for the genuine." This course will concentrate on the close reading of a wide variety of poems—ballads, nursery rhymes, sonnets and contemporary lyrics—and will attempt to focus on the genuine aspects of the poet's craft and vision. Students will be encouraged to attend poetry readings, and guest poets will be invited to the class. Texts include: Perrine, Sound and Sense; O. Williams ed., Modern Verse; T. S. Eliot, The Waste Land and Other Poems.

HLD-2223-A

Short Fiction I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Auletta

In many respects, the short story is more like a play than a novel. Its brevity, immediacy, concentration on character and compression of plot enable it, in the hands of a master, to profoundly affect the reader. Some of the best literary work of the last century has been in the form of short stories. Writers we will study include: Leo Tolstoy, Herman Melville, Anton Chekhov, James Joyce, Franz Kafka and Ernest Hemingway.

HLD-2224-A

Short Fiction II

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Auletta

Some of the finest literary work of the last 100 years has been in the form of short fiction. In this course, we will study the short stories and novellas of such writers as Raymond Carver, J.D. Salinger, Jorge Luis Borges, John Updike, Joyce Carol Oates and Tillie Olsen. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-2313-A

Erotic Literature

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course will focus on selections from the great erotic literature from ancient Greece to modern times. Topics will include social attitudes about sex; the distinction between pornography and erotica; feminist issues, including exploitation and political relationships between men and women; erotica and censorship. We will read and discuss the works of Anaïs Nin, Henry Miller, D. H. Lawrence, Marquis de Sade, Chaucer, Boccaccio and Aristophanes.

HLD-2442-R

Apollonian and Dionysian Literature

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Friedland

Nietzsche proclaimed that great works of literature were born from the dynamic struggle between orderly Apollonian forces and their disorderly Dionysian counterparts. This course will examine Nietzsche's definition of these two forces and study their interplay in specific works of literature, music and art. In addition, the course will discuss rebellion against traditional artistic norms as well as decadence and artistic sterility.

HLD-2565-R

American Theater

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Carey

This course will introduce students to key playwrights and stage artists of the American theater from the 1930s to the present. Assigned readings will include plays by Eugene O'Neill, Clifford Odets, Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller, Edward Albee, David Mamet, August Wilson, Sam Shepard and Tony Kushner. Video screenings of important productions by these authors will be included.

HLD-2677-A

Fiction of the 19th Century I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

We will read short stories and one or two short novels by selected writers such as Wilde, Gogol, Mérimée, Tolstoy and Hoffmann, exploring such psychological and emotional themes as love, sin, madness and death. Attention will be paid to the interrelations of the literature and art of the period—Romanticism, realism and symbolism. Videos will supplement course material.

HLD-2678-A

Fiction of the 19th Century II

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course is a further exploration of some of the themes and movements of fiction of the 19th century offered in HLD-2677, Fiction of the 19th Century I. Readings will include selections from the novels and short stories of, among others, Dostoyevsky, Anderson, Poe, Shelley, Hugo and Hawthorne. Videos will supplement course material. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-2701-R

Arthurian Literature

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Milgrom

The Arthurian legend has had an enduring appeal for writers from the early Middle Ages to the present time. It has embodied the ideals of romantic love, chivalry and Christian heroism as well as serving as a vehicle for satirizing these ideals. Readings will include: History of the Kings of Britain, Geoffrey of Monmouth; Morte d'Arthur, Malory; A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, Mark Twain; The Once and Future King, T.H. White; The Crystal Cave, Mary Stewart; The Alliterative Morte Arthure; Sir Gawain and the Green Knight; The Death of Arthur; The Mabinogian.

HLD-2922-R

Medieval English Literature

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Milgrom

The medieval age was a period of extraordinary literary flowering in Europe. Themes like heroism, religion, courtly love and chivalry became popular as the institutions that supported them rose and fell. The result was a literature full of contradictions, at once spiritual and bawdy, romantic and cynical. Readings will include Beowulf; selected Anglo-Saxon heroic verse; Dante's Inferno; selections from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales; Sir Gawain and the Green Knight; John Gardner's Grendel; and Hesse's Narcissus and Goldmund.

HLD-2950-A

Modern Drama I

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Carey

This course will introduce students to the foundation of present-day theater. While attention will be paid to directors, actors and stage artists, the emphasis is on the playwright. The concentration will be on the realistic movement and will cover such dramatists as Ibsen, Strindberg, Chekhov and O'Neill.

HLD-2977-R

Shakespeare I

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Carey

This course will provide the student with a selective, chronological overview of Shakespeare, the dramatist. Plays assigned will include a selection of his comedies, histories and early tragedies.

HLD-2978-R

Shakespeare II

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Carey

This course will provide the student with a selective, chronological overview of Shakespeare, the dramatist. Plays assigned will include the four major tragedies and one of the final romances. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-3007-AThe One-Act Play

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Auletta

Most plays are either read as literature or used as vehicles for actors to perform. This course offers both. We will first study plays from a literary point of view by analyzing and discussing plot, character, language, cultural and philosophical implications. Next, we will approach the text as actors using various techniques, including improvisation. We will explore selected scenes from plays studied and, through the power of performance, seek to uncover a deeper understanding of both their human and dramatic significance. The playwrights studied will include: Strindberg, O'Neill, Williams, Miller, Beckett, Pinter, Ionesco, Shepherd and Mamet. This course is for anyone interested in exploring the special environment where word and action become one.

HLD-3011-AThe Anatomy of Hell

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

From mankind's very beginnings, human beings have pondered the nature of the afterlife. Although the concept of heaven inspires us, it is the notion of hell that truly fires our imaginations. This course, drawing on readings ranging from the Egyptian Book of the Dead all the way to episodes from Rod Serling's Twilight Zone, will explore numerous conjectures concerning hell, the devil and the afterlife. Readings include Dante's Inferno, selections from Milton's Paradise Lost, Marlowe's Dr. Faustus, Sartre's No Exit and David Mamet's Oh Hell!

HLD-3026-RComparative Literature: Great Books

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Friedland

This course explores some of the more influential European and American literary and poetic works written between the turn of the 20th century and World War II. The modern period was rich for writers, stimulating participation in both political struggles of the age and its anxiety-ridden debates about progress. Class discussions will focus on how these works respond, both formally and thematically, to pervasive social transformation. We will read works by Baudelaire, Wilde, Kafka, Stein, Crane, Camus, Beckett, Levi, Baroka and Lorca.

HLD-3033-RArt and Revolution I: The Working-Class Hero

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

The multicultural revolution has deepened and broadened our understanding of gender, race, sexual preference and international culture. Unfortunately, we have tended to ignore one crucial factor that cuts across all areas of human experience: socioeconomic class. This course will focus on the art, literature and struggles of working-class people during the past two centuries. Readings will be selected from fictional works such as Zola's Germinal, Gorky's My Childhood, Sillitoe's The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner, Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath, Wright's Black Boy, Tillie Olsen's Tell Me a Riddle. In conjunction with the readings we will view and discuss the paintings of artists such as Courbet, Millet, Daumier, Kollwitz, the Russian social realists and the American Ashcan School. Selected videos will be screened and discussed.

HLD-3034-RArt and Revolution II: The Rebel

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

The landscape of history has periodically been illuminated by apocalyptic struggles to change society, reinvent the world and re-create human nature. In this course, we will explore the literature of social revolt and political revolution. Readings will be selected from authors such as Maxim Gorky, André Malraux, Arthur Rimbaud, Marge Piercy, Bertolt Brecht, Albert Camus, Mariano Azuela and Malcolm X. In conjunction with the readings, we will view and discuss selected works of such artists as Diego Rivera, Siquieros, Eisenstein, Orozco and Frida Kahlo. Selected videos will be screened and discussed. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-3051-ALiterature of Self-Knowledge

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Phillips

Beginning with the book On the Taboo Against Knowing Who You Are, by Alan Watts, this course will draw upon fiction, nonfiction, film, art and photography to explore various responses to the question "Who am I?" Among the authors and artists considered will be Lao-tzu, Plato, Rembrandt, Thoreau, Frederick Douglass, Fellini, Capote and Anne Sexton.

HLD-3088-RRussian Prose from Pushkin to Solzhenitsyn

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Smith

Using examples from 19th- and 20th-century short fiction of Gogol, Dostoevsky, Tolstoy, Chekhov, Turgenev and Nabokov, among others, this course will examine the initial European influence on Russian literature and its subsequent influence on the rest of the world.

HLD-3089-RRussia's Valiant Poets

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Smith

This course will focus on the heights reached by the masters of Russian poetry, in the face of constant czarist and communist censorship, persecution and exile. We will read selections from Pushkin, Lemontov, Blok, Mayakowsky, Akhmatova, Mandelstam, Pasternak and Brodsky.

HLD-3243-RLatin American Fiction I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Huntington

The so-called "boom" of the early 1960s first introduced contemporary Latin American fiction to a global audience. Since that introduction, the literature continues to redefine the postmodern novel as a creative art form. With roots in surrealism, myth and dream, works from Latin American countries/cultures challenge our fundamental assumptions about the nature of reality and human consciousness. Core issues for class discussion include politics and exile, cultural identity, religious syncretism and popular genre transformations of fable/fairy tale, science fiction and the detective story. Readings will be selected from master authors such as Borges, Cortázar, Donoso, Fuentes, Marquez and Rulfo.

HLD-3244-RLatin American Fiction II

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Huntington

This course focuses on recent novels by established Latin American authors and contributions from new narrative voices. Works by Allende, Marquez and Puig will be compared with novels by their "post-boom" heirs—Alvarez, Esquivel and Hijuelos. Topics will include: public/private voicings, regional/global identity, gender/ethnic representations and cross-cultural boundary issues. We will also consider contemporary European and American writers such as Baricco, Byatt, Calvino and Kingsolver who have been influenced by the postmodern technical and stylistic experiments of their Latin American counterparts. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-3333-RStudies in Contemporary Literature

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Huntington

This course will examine how contemporary novelists explore our relationships with the past. We represent the past, filtered through multiple layers of time and memory. How accurate are our perceptions? Are we living the life we imagine? Does nostalgia for the past affect our creative energies? These questions have been asked, and in some cases answered, by such diverse writers as Alessandro Baricco, Laura Esquivel, Maxine Hong Kingston, Carson McCullers and Peter Staffer, among others. Class discussions will focus on novels of childhood experiences and those expressing nostalgia for some long lost past. Students will also develop personal memory reconstructions using a journal format to create an end of term presentation.

HLD-3341-R20th-Century Italian Literature

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

The Italian literary tradition didn't end abruptly with the Renaissance. Many of the greatest novels of the last century were written by Italian authors, writers who fought for or against Fascism, participated in the desperate struggles between labor and capital, took their stand on the issues of anti-Semitism, racism and sexism. Their names may sound obscure to readers of modern fiction—Berto, Morante, D'Annunzio, Pirandello, Levi, Silone—yet we neglect them to our own detriment—politically, morally and aesthetically. This course will explore their work, together with major films of the Italian neorealist cinema.

HLD-3477-AChildren's Literature for Illustrators

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Palmeri

Illustrators will gain an appreciation of the writer's craft and of the various possible relations between pictures and words in a children's book. We will read as literature works by Aesop, E.B. White, Maurice Sendak, Lewis Carroll, Roald Dahl, Lois Lowery, Mildren Taylor, and others. Narrative voice, the visual element in language and other topics will be discussed throughout a survey of the best children's books, past and present.

HLD-3501-RTragedy

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Friedland

What are the common and unique features of tragic works? Is there a universal definition of tragedy? Is tragedy a realistic appraisal of the human condition? These and other questions will be explored as we come to grips with works that confront the underlying possibilities and limitations of the human condition. Readings will include: The Bacchae, Euripides; Timon of Athens and King Lear, Shakespeare; Peer Gynt, Ibsen; Lord Jim, Conrad; The Iceman Cometh, Eugene O'Neill; A View from the Bridge, Arthur Miller.

HLD-3521-R and HLD-3521-R1From Aristophanes to Woody Allen:*An Introduction to the Arts and Forms of Comedy

One semester: 3 credits

It is well known that dying is easy, but comedy is hard. And nothing can be more difficult than trying to explain what makes us laugh. Still we laugh, and our laughter proves us human. This course traces the history of comedy, starting in Greece with the plays of Aristophanes and concluding with a look at the contemporary scene in film, television and print. Along the way, we will read Plautus, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Shaw, Thurber, Ionesco and Beckett. Screenings will include films by Chaplin, Keaton and Woody Allen. We will read such essays as The Mythos of Spring: Comedy, Northrup Frye; The Comic Rhythm, Susanne Lange; and Comedy, Christopher Fry. We will consider comedic forms such as satire, parody, burlesque, theater of the absurd, romantic comedy, sitcoms and tragicomedy.

HLD-3553-RImages of Artists: Definitions of Culture from the 19th Century to the Present

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Palmeri

What is culture and how do we know when we are experiencing it? What are the effects of not having access to culture? This course will look at how different depictions of the artist help shape our conceptions of what culture is and of the codes by which we identify what is "valuable" and "meaningful" in our world. We will trace various characterizations of the artist. From the conscience of society to voices of dissension and avant-gardism, artists are, variously, misunderstood or championed. Paying particular attention to biographies and novels about artists' lives, we will examine how ideas of culture and the artist are constructed and debated through literature, film and video. Texts will include: Mary Gordon, Spending: A Utopian Divertimento; Gertrude Stein, The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas; Emile Zola, The Masterpiece; Oscar Wilde, The Picture of Dorian Gray; short stories by Edgar Allan Poe; selections from the diaries of Frida Kahlo, Anne Truitt and Virginia Woolf; and Vincent van Gogh's letters. Screening of films like Martin Scorsese's Life Lessons, Ed Harris's Pollock, Vincent Minnelli's Lust for Life, and Robert Altman's Vincent and Theo will be included.

HLD-3566-RCivilization and Its Discontents I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

This course explores the themes of civilization and the discontents of individuals within modern society. It focuses on the particular role which the artist and art plays within this relationship. Theoretical writings, literature, film and art will be examined historically as well as critically and aesthetically. Freud's Civilization and Its Discontents is the primary textbook for this semester. Among additional theoretical sources are essays by Susan Sontag, Sigmund Freud and Donald Kuspit. Among the literary texts and films are: The Remains of the Day, Ishiguro; The Lover, Duras; Swept Away, Wertmuller, and American Beauty, Sam Mendes. Note: Open to juniors and seniors, or with instructor's permission.

HLD-3951-RLiterature and Psychoanalysis

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Immerman

This course is devoted to an exploration of how an author's unconscious memories, wishes, fears and fantasies shape his/her fictional and philosophical world. Various psychoanalytical approaches will be evaluated and applied, and readings will be illustrated by clinical case material. The readings will include Freud, R.D. Laing, Alice Miller, Dostoyevsky, Kafka, Hesse, Camus, Baudelaire and Euripides.

HLD-3998-RJames Joyce

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Immerman

The development of this modernist master, as he discovers his subject and evolves his style and voice, is the focus of this course. We will read the early fiction, Dubliners and A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man, and chapters from Ulysses. How Joyce develops his writing style in response to the literary renaissance in Ireland as well as the movements of modern art and literature in Europe will be explored. We will then observe how Joyce decenters his narrative voices and develops stream of consciousness narrative to explore the inner reality of his characters as his vision matures. Supplementary readings will help to shed light on his character and era. Against this backdrop, we'll explore how Joyce crafts his work and creates his artistic self.

HLD-4022-R

Poetry and Art

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

Since Baudelaire, innovative poets have often exercised important influence on avant-garde visual artists, primarily through radical innovations of form and content in their poetry, but also as friends and, in some cases, major art critics as well. The course concentrates on the work of Baudelaire, Rimbaud, Mallarmé, Apollinaire and William Carlos Williams. Home assignments include readings to locate the poems against their literary and cultural background. There are also selected readings from the poets' essays and art criticism. Primary emphasis is on the poetry, and the course also attempts to answer the questions: What accounts for the mutual interplay of influence between poetry and visual art? How does it work?

HLD-4044-A

Surrealist Literature

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

Surrealism, a 20th-century movement begun by poets, attempted to unite the dream and waking worlds through art. The poets were later joined by visual artists whose works they influenced, both as critics and as friends. The course studies the manifestos and poetry of such seminal precursors as F. T. Marinetti, the founder of futurism, and Tristan Tzara, the Dada animateur. André Breton, the "pope" of surrealism, is covered in detail, with close readings of his manifestos, poetry and fiction. We also read such poets as Jean Arp, Paul Eluard, Louis Aragon and Aimé Césaire. Class sessions feature surrealist plays and films, and discussions of visual artists associated with the movement. Translations by the instructor are included.

HLD-4122-R

18th-Century Fiction I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course will explore the age of eroticism, the birth of Romanticism and the development of the great satiric tradition in Western literature. We will read short works by great 18th-century authors such as Swift, Voltaire, Goethe, and the Marquis de Sade—the man who wrote the definitive manual of sexual depravity. Video screenings will supplement readings and discussions.

HLD-4123-R

18th-Century Fiction II

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Litvack

This course will explore the themes of passion, horror, revolution and fantasy through 18th-century fiction. Readings will include a trip to the moon with Baron Munchausen (early science fiction and fantasy), and the great 18th-century erotic novels Fanny Hill and Dangerous Liaisons. Videos will supplement readings and discussions. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-4152-R

20th-Century Irish Literature

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Immerman

This course will explore how, through literature, 20th-century Ireland has dealt with its losses and forged its identity. The course will cover the Irish Literary Renaissance, the founding of the Abbey Theater, Joyce's efforts to give Ireland a voice and situate it within the mainstream aesthetic movements of Europe, Yeats' delving into folklore and spirituality, as well as more recent writers' explorations into such questions as cultural identity. We will read the work of fiction writers, playwrights, and poets such as: W. B. Yeats, James Joyce, J. M. Synge, Sean O'Casey, Flann O'Brien, Samuel Beckett, Patrick Kavanagh, Seamus Heaney, Eavan Boland, Mary Lavin and Tom Murphy.

HLD-4177-R and HLD-4177-R1

French Existentialism

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Moore

The influence of French existentialism is global, but not everyone has read the novels, plays and philosophic essays that challenged the recurring myth (that we are mere victims of fate, environment or history). Existentialists maintain that we make our own lives through fundamental choices, trying to avoid self-deception and living with the anxiety (angst) of having nothing determining what we do. The stark simplicity of this philosophy, when translated into literature by Sartre, Malraux, Camus, de Beauvoir and Beckett, unites original philosophy with artistic freedom. While the Germans Husserl and Heidegger offer the first existentialist philosophic inquiry, the French gave our urban alienation a human face, enticing us back to the barricades, engaged with social justice, leading us to face the uncanniness of our struggle as individuals, despite the absurdity of our existence to create a meaning for our lives on earth.

Concepts of Love in Literature

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Robinson-Appels

Love and sexuality from various cultures and times is the focus of this course. Of particular interest will be love poetry, beginning with Petrarch, Dante and Shakespeare and continuing with 20th-century poets such as Akhmatova, Desnos and Ashbery. We will also consider the recent interest in non-Western religious ideas of love (for example The Tibetan Book of the Dead), and the continuing interpretation of Western philosophical discourse on love, from Plato to Wittgenstein. Throughout the semester, love in literary works will be compared with the ways that love is portrayed in other artistic media such as sculpture, painting, design, illustration, filmmaking, photography and performance.

HLD-4199-R

Antiheroes and Villains in Literature

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Van Booy

What are villains and why do we love them so much? This course will examine the literary device of "the villain" and the emergence of the antihero in literature. We will read representative texts by such authors as: Sophocles, Shakespeare, Dante, Dostoyevsky, Beckett and Hammett.

HLD-4201-ABehind the Scenes with Master Writers

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Huntington

This course examines intimate forms of expression—diaries, journals, letters, memoirs—of significant contemporary writers. We will consider how an author's childhood memories, dreams, beliefs, passions, travel experiences, hobbies and even body image shape his or her fictional world. Readings will be selected from the self-reflective works of Isabel Allende, Maya Angelou, John Barth, Joan Didion, Alan Gurganus, Jamaica Kincaid, V. S. Naipaul, Reynolds Price and Amy Tan, among others. Class participants will experiment with new approaches to journal writing through guided class exercises and personal creative exploration.

HLD-4311-RModern World Literary Survey I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

This course will explore the literature of modern Africa and the Middle East. Our focus will be on the tensions between tradition and modernity, old and young, rulers and ruled, native and outsider. Readings will include selections from such writers as Chinua Achebe, Nadine Gordimer, Nawal El Saadawi, Etel Adnan, Maryse Condé and Patrick Chamoiseau.

HLD-4312-RModern World Literary Survey II

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

This world literary survey will focus on the best-known and most influential writers of India and Asia. The enormous changes of the 20th century have produced literatures that uniquely blend traditional cultural forms with new styles and content. Readings will include short stories, novels and essays from such authors as Kobo Abe, Yukio Mishima, Lu Xun, Lao She, Salmon Rushdie, B. Bandopadhyay and V. S. Naipaul. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HLD-4331-RPortraits of the Self in Early Modern Narrative

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Van Booy

What is the nature of experience? This very basic question is at the heart of how we understand ourselves. This course will explore the history of our concept of experience, using fiction from the 18th and 19th centuries, to think about how we communicate our feelings to others. Close attention will be paid to the ways in which literature imagines the experience of beauty, oppression, commodification and modernization. Authors will include Austen, Defoe, Smollett, Sterne and Cleland.

SOCIAL SCIENCESPHILOSOPHY AND CULTURAL STUDIES*HPD-2044-R*Art Theory: From Modernism to Postmodernism

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

This course is an introduction to the philosophical ideas that have shaped the practice of contemporary art and criticism in the West. We begin with an examination of some historical problems that have arisen in thinking about art. Then we survey the various systems that constitute modernist cultural "theory," including formalism, phenomenology, Marxism, structuralism, semiotics and psychoanalysis. These modernist theories are compared to poststructuralist and feminist views of art production and reception. The overall objective is to provide the necessary background for understanding and evaluating contemporary theories of art and design. Required texts: Stephen David Ross, ed., Art and Its Significance: An Anthology of Aesthetic Theory; Terry Eagleton, Literary Theory; Harrison and Wood, eds., Art in Theory: 1900-1990.

HPD-2047-R and HPD-2047-R1Magic, Symbolism, Modernism and Art

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

What is a mystic, a magician, a seer, a charlatan, a scientist, an artist? When do poetry, art, emotion and science collide? This course explores the themes of magic and science as they relate to the movements of symbolism and modernism in 19th- and 20th-century literature, philosophy, art and art theory. We will examine Edgar Allan Poe's definition of the infinite universe, Nikola Tesla's scientific achievements in electrical discoveries, Harry Houdini's sleight-of-hand tricks, the films of Georges Méliès and Jean Painlevé, and the art of Pablo Picasso. Readings from literature, scientific articles, philosophy and art theory will be complemented with films and demonstrations.

HPD-2104-AAn Introduction to Buddhist Philosophy and Yoga

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Jones

Limited to 18 students

The enlightenment, satori or liberation spoken of in both Buddhism and yoga share many similarities. Both rely on the union of the physical, mental and spiritual resources within the seeker. By incorporating basic yoga practices we will be able to experience a deeper understanding of the subject matter. Because the esoteric side must be witnessed through the silence, we will learn and practice meditation techniques as well as study the texts. In this course we practice the roots or base of Buddhism as well as explore the philosophy. Readings include: Living Yoga, George Feuerstein and Stephan Bodian; Zen Mind, Beginner's Mind, Shunryu Suzuki; Zen in the Art of Archery, Eugene Herrigel; Siddhartha, Herman Hesse, and other books on Mahayana and Hinayana aspects of Buddhism.

HPD-2267-AAfrican Art and Civilization

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Jeffries

The aims of this course are to study the traditional art for specific ethnic groups and to explore artistic variations from Africa, parts of the Americas, Brazil, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, Haiti and the continental United States. We will examine Dogon symbols and Bobo/Bwa, Guro, Senufo, Baule, Kingdoms of life, Fon, Benin, Yoruba, Congo, Bakuba, as well as Gabon, Cameroon, Cross Niger/Igbo Nigeria, South Africa, Zimbabwe. We will also look at African contemporary art, including modern film that contrasts modernity with antiquity.

HPD-2411-AThe Female Gaze

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Palmeri

We will look at artists whose vision has been clearly shaped by an awareness that what we see is conditioned by who we are, that our sexuality and personal histories play significant roles in the forming of our artistic statements. We will study artists like Sophonisba Anguissola, Hannah Hoch, Louise Bourgeois, Eva Hesse, Mary Kelly, Adrian Piper, Lorna Simpson, Sophie Calle, Shirin Neshat and Louisa Mattiasdottir in light of such questions as: How does gender relate to art? How is this relationship reflected in history? What is the relationship between the rise of the women's movement and art? What is feminist art? We will also look at the collaborative group known as the Guerrilla Girls. Language, identity and autobiographical impulses are among the topics to be discussed and integrated through readings in Ways of Seeing, John Berger, and Manifesta, Jennifer Baumgardner and Amy Richards. We will also examine the history of the women's movement and the feminist art movement through selected essays by John Stuart Mill and Harriet Taylor Mill, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Linda Nochlin, Lucy Lippard, Betty Friedan and Michelle Wallace.

HPD-2422-AArt and Politics

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Palmeri

An examination of the role of political art in history including Goya's Disasters of War and Caprichos, Picasso's Guernica, and Käthe Kollwitz's antiwar woodcuts, posters and other graphic work. How do artists respond to the social upheavals of their times? What is the artist's responsibility to these concerns and what is the responsibility to one's craft and to the development of a personal statement? Readings will be supplemented by film, video and field trips.

HPD-2687-RMetaphysics

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

Metaphysics is the study of the world in its entirety. The metaphysician attempts to understand reality as a kind of a whole, attempts to answer not the how's, but the why's of life; producing a map that, hopefully, captures with genuine insight what the seer leaves as inspired intuition. The map's legends are identity, potentiality, universals, time, mind, beauty, freedom and their cosmological adhesion is its paper. The course is designed to introduce the intermediary student to exploratory touring of the territory with classical and contemporary maps. Texts will include: Metaphysics, Aristotle; Monadology, Leibniz; Foundations, Kant; Metaphysics, Hamlyn.

HPD-2931-RThe Mythology of War

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

Perhaps an understanding of institutionalized violence and man's inhumanity to man has never been more important than in the troubled times in which we live. In this course, we will explore the philosophical and psychological foundations of the allure of war. While many studies of war and its causes look to states and institutions, here we turn our attention to what might be called the "mythology of war." Simply put, despite its costs—both human and economic—war and battle have an enduring appeal that defies rational understanding. Our task will be to probe the depths of the human experience in war and battle so as to better comprehend this appeal. We will consider the claim that man is by nature a warrior or, as a consequence of an innate lust for destruction, naturally driven to killing and violence. To guide us in this endeavor, we will study the insights offered in such texts as Michael Gelvin's War and Existence, A Philosophical Inquiry; Stephen Pressfield's, Gates of Fire, An Epic Novel of the Battle of Thermopylae; Glenn Gray's, The Warriors: Reflections on Men in Battle; Dave Grossman's, On Killing: The Psychological Cast of Learning to Kill in War and Society and Jonathan Shay's Achilles in Vietnam.

HPD-2998-RThe Philosophy of Mind

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Candal

The philosophy of mind concerns itself with the human—and perhaps nonhuman—mental, intellectual and spiritual awareness of the "world," broadly conceived. This course begins with an attempt to define typical mental states, such as perceiving, knowing and desiring, and then consider such issues as the mind-body problem and our knowledge of other minds. Contemporary questions will explore the relationship of thought and language, the possibility of artificial intelligence, the intelligence of animals, moral action and free will. Students will be encouraged to reflect on their thought processes as a source of phenomena that a coherent theory of mind must account for.

HPD-3024-RArt, Ethics and Moral Responsibility

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course is an introduction to philosophic reasoning about some basic ethical questions of human life. We will begin by exploring the moral notions of right and wrong, and whether there are rational ways for determining the difference between them. In particular, we will examine the nature and the application of moral standards to our personal behavior and especially to our artistic pursuits. In addition, we will consider whether there is a philosophical basis for moral responsibility, action and commitment, and whether such concepts will impact our freedom of expression. Among the authors and artists to be considered will be Immanuel Kant, W.D. Ross, Alasdair MacIntyre, Andre Serrano and Jock Sturges.

HPD-3123-RThe Philosophy of Human Nature

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Candal

Since Darwin shook the belief in divine provenance, philosophers and scientists have sought a new theory of human nature—or have denied such a thing is possible. This course begins with a study of classic sources of humankind's picture of itself—in Plato, the Bible, the Upanishads and Confucianism. Modern theories reflect on the human being as a respondent organism, a genetic mechanism, a maker of tools, a seeker of God, a creator of art, the destroyer of its own habitat, and even as the slayer of its own species. Contemporary readings will include reflections by Marx, Skinner, Dawkins, Freud, Lorenz and Sartre.

HPD-3133-RNietzsche: Nihilism and Freedom

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Moore

Nietzsche has inspired much of what is essential to 20th-century thought. Existentialists, expressionists, Freudian and Jungian psychotherapists, deconstructionists—even positivists and futurists—have claimed him as their forerunner. Yet, while key to all this ferment, Nietzsche is more than a Rorschach test for novel ideas. The confusion is understandable, Nietzsche is not only an accurate and comprehensive philosopher, but also a poet and visionary. This course will seek to interpret the core of his thought and his contribution to modern aesthetic, ethical and psychological theory, through an exploration of his statements on art, truth and perception, as well as his metaphors, humor and epigrams. We will study such works as The Birth of Tragedy, Beyond Good and Evil, Thus Spake Zarathustra, The Case Against Wagner and Twilight of the Idols, to examine the interplay between metaphoric and conceptual language, and between poetry and philosophy. Our goal will be to recover Nietzsche's ideas from his legend, and to understand a thinker who defies categorization, schools and systems, for intellectual integrity and individual freedom.

HPD-3342-APhilosophy of the Sexes and Racism

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Karp

Drawing from anti-racist feminist thought in literature, film and video, music, art, philosophy, history, social sciences and representation in various media, we will study reasoning regarding the subordination of women; the intertwining of racism, sexism, heterosexism and class; and varying forms of feminist consciousness. The course provides background for future study of oppression. It also includes study of Black feminist thought. Recommended for students interested in art and representation issues, the arts and activism, philosophy and critical thinking skills.

HPD-3343-ASexuality, Race and Representation

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Karp

In this course, we will study anti-racist feminist theory, fiction, film, music, art and performance. Examples will be included from Fatimah Rony, Toni Morrison, Julie Dash, Bessie Smith, Ethel Waters, Ella Fitzgerald, Helen Lee's The World of Suzie Wong, Casablanca, the Whitney's 1994 "Black Male" exhibition, 1970s feminist art and influences, the feminist debate on prostitution, L. Borden's Working Girls, Drucilla Cornell's The Imaginary Domain, Vanalyne Green's autobiographical documentary video and Luce Irigaray. Topics include: sexuality, desire, subjectivity, home, language, power/pleasure of cinema, whiteness, looking and being looked at, the social and aesthetic meanings of race, beauty, music, romantic love, split consciousness and resistance, fiction and truth, what's feminist about feminist art.

HPD-3401-RHistory of Problems in Social and Political Philosophy I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will consider primary issues and texts in social and political philosophy. In so doing, we will discuss and analyze the perspectives of various thinkers in relation to contemporary issues and problems. Topics will include: war, poverty, homelessness, government, patriotism, nationalism, racism, sexism, the social contract, the state and utopias. Readings will include selections from: Aristotle's Politics, Plato's Republic, Machiavelli's The Prince, More's Utopia, and Thoreau's On the Duty of Civil Disobedience.

HPD-3402-RHistory of Problems in Social and Political Philosophy II

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will consider primary issues and texts in social and political philosophy. In so doing, we will discuss and analyze the perspectives of various thinkers in relation to contemporary issues and problems. Topics will include: war, poverty, homelessness, government, patriotism, nationalism, racism, sexism, the social contract, the state and utopias. Our readings will include selections from: Hobbes' Leviathan, Locke's Second Treatise on Government, Marx's Communist Manifesto, Peter Singer's Animal Liberation and King's Letter from Birmingham City Jail.
Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HPD-3442-ASemiotics I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Beckley

We see the world we live in through the words and images by which we name and define things. Semiotics is the study of this naming process; an exploration of signs, both linguistic (speech and writing) and iconic (paintings, photographs, drawings, sculptures, etc.). Some of the texts will provide a background to the theory of semiotics while others will apply the theory and language of semiotics to contemporary aesthetics and current issues. Marshall Blonsky's On Signs is the primary textbook. We will read authors and texts that have had great influence in recent visual thought such as: Ludwig Wittgenstein, Roland Barthes, The New York Times, Julia Kristeva, Carter Ratcliff, Thomas McEvilley, Walter Benjamin, Jean Baudrillard and excerpts from Umberto Eco's Theory of Semiotics.

HPD-3443-ASemiotics II

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Beckley

This course will explore the semiotics of iconic signs, paintings and photographs. We learn the difference between these and linguistic signs. We will focus on applied semiotics and the interconnection of sign systems—aesthetic, political and moral. Texts such as Donald Kuspit's Dialectics of Decadence and Redeeming Art, Carter Ratcliff's Out of the Box and Roland Barthes's A Lover's Discourse are used. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HPD-3451-RIntroduction to Asian Thought

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will introduce the diverse doctrines and practices of the Hindu and Buddhist traditions as they developed in ancient India and traveled to Tibet, China and Japan. Through scriptural texts we will explore Hinduism's three spiritual paths: the Path of Action, the Path of Devotion and the Path of Knowledge. We will then examine how the Buddha's radical reinterpretation of the meaning of self formed the basis of one of the most powerful spiritual and philosophical movements in history. The course will then focus on Japanese Zen Buddhism through the writings of its founders. We will conclude with a look at the forms that these traditional schools are now taking as they are transplanted into Western cultures. Readings include: Fenton's Religions of Asia; Koller's Sourcebook in Asian Philosophy; Harvey's An Introduction to Buddhism; Suzuki's Zen Mind, Beginner's Mind.

HPD-3454-RAesthetics and the Modern Artist

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Moore

Why does art exist and what does it mean to human perception and our experience of the world? Why are we fascinated by beauty? What is the source of inspiration? What is the relationship of art to truth? This course is designed to explore the concepts of taste, beauty, expression, artistic judgment, genius and inspiration in the light of classical and contemporary aesthetic theory. Texts will include selections from philosophers such as Plato, Aristotle, Kant, Nietzsche, Heidegger and Sartre. We will also consider the contributions of poets, musicians and visual artists. Finally, this course will probe views of the political and social significance of creativity and assess their value in terms of history and the future.

HPD-3458-REthics

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

Is might right? Should majority rule? Does power corrupt? Does pluralism entail the abdication of values? Ethics is the rational analysis of morals, with no regard for fashion and political correctness, and can therefore both seek and find firm and objective answers to what is right, good, duty, justice and freedom in all corners of personal and social life. This course is not an issues menu or a survey of all possible positions, but a concentrated study of deontological, naturalistic and utilitarianistic ethics in classical texts and contemporary commentaries. Additionally, the question of evil in the world and the status of universal human rights must be sorted out.

HPD-3466-RUncontrollable Beauty I

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Beckley

This course defines the nature of beauty, drawing upon contemporary critics and philosophers and contrasts our modern notion of beauty with Victorian writers like John Ruskin, Walter Pater and George Santayana. We discuss the newest philosophies of beauty from writers like Dave Hickey, Jeremy Gilbert Rolfe, Jacqueline Lichtenstein and Marjorie Welish as well as the works of more established critics like Meyer Schapiro and Arthur Danto. Uncontrollable Beauty, an anthology compiled and edited by the instructor, is the primary text for the course. A sampling of the essays includes: "Beauty and the Contemporary Sublime," "Beauty and Morality" and "Enter the Dragon, On the Vernacular of Beauty."

HPD-3467-R
Uncontrollable Beauty II

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Beckley

This course defines the nature of beauty, drawing upon the polemics of recent cultural wars and the views of contemporary poets and artists. We will discuss the notion of cultural relativity and the modern artist's affinity for so-called "primitive" art, and also discuss the practice of beauty and art-making through the essays and poems of artists and writers like Agnes Martin, Kenneth Koch, Julia Kristeva, Donald Kuspit and Louise Bourgeois. Uncontrollable Beauty, an anthology compiled and edited by the instructor, is the primary text for the course.

Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HPD-3471-A
Media Criticism

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Skutsch

What is the role of the media in our contemporary society? How does it interact with our conception of democracy? What is the difference between information and propaganda? How does thought control work in a democratic society? How can we detect bias, conflicts of interest, inaccuracy, censorship and "dumbing down"? What is the role of visual imagery in shaping our attitudes toward gender, race and class? This course will explore these questions through readings from such analysts as Noam Chomsky, Ben Bagdikian and Norman Solomon. We will also examine some alternative sources of information and visual imagery.

HPD-3474-R
Social Problems in Contemporary Society: Peace, War, Terrorism and Personal Freedom

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will be devoted to examining and interpreting the nature and justification, if any, for war and terrorism, moral questions about tactics in war and responding to terrorism, ideas for avoiding war and eliminating terrorism, concepts and strategies for attaining peace and the morality of relations between nations. Then, putting theoretics behind us, we will focus on the historical details of the Vietnam and Iraq wars in the hope of uncovering some historical insights relevant to these issues. Finally, we will discuss the impact of terrorism and war upon such important values as personal freedom, dissent and patriotism. Reading assignments will include the works of such thinkers and social activists as Michael Walzer; Stanley Karnow; Mohandas Gandhi; Martin Luther King, Jr.; George Orwell; Virginia Held.

HPD-3494-R
Workers of the World: The Representation of Labor

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

Time is money. At least that's what we're told. It's strange to imagine that you could put a price on hours and minutes, but this is precisely what we do at the workplace. This course will explore literary and visual texts that challenge our assumptions about how human time and human lives should be valued. Readings from authors of philosophical and fictional works will include Marx, Orwell, Sartre, Melville and Woolf. We will also view selected films in the science fiction and magic-realist genres that imagine futuristic forms of labor, such as Brazil, Metropolis and Dark City.

ANTHROPOLOGY, PSYCHOLOGY, SOCIOLOGY

HPD-3511-A
Archaeology of New York City

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Janowitz

This course is an introduction to archaeology in general and to the archaeology of the New York City area in particular. The prehistory and history of the area will be presented from the viewpoint of North American archaeology. Field trips will be made to archaeological sites, museums and archaeological labs.

HPD-3520-A
Men and Women in the Modern Workplace

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Horowitz

After an historical overview of work in pre-industrial and industrial contexts, this course will focus on the experience of work in postindustrial society. Current issues within the workplace will be addressed, including: gender roles, the impact of the computer, functioning in complex organizations and opportunities for worker satisfaction. Those working in nonbureaucratic, smaller-scale contexts, such as professionals and artists, will also be discussed. A common theme will be the potential for, and limits to, worker autonomy and participation in decision-making. Readings will be supplemented with selected videos and films.

HPD-3522-R
Anthropology of the Bible

Thursday 6:00-8:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

This course will explore the birth and evolution of the Old and New Testaments and the relevance to people of different cultures throughout history. Employing sociological and anthropological models and theories, the class will conduct an archaeological examination of the peoples of the Hebrew and Christian Bibles.

HPD-3530
Interpersonal Behavior

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

This course will analyze the structures and processes involved in face-to-face interpersonal relationships. Sociology has developed three perspectives with which to understand the behavior involved in these relationships—exchange theory, symbolic interactionism and sociology of emotions. These perspectives will form the basis for an analysis of love relationships, anonymous relationships, friendships, work situations and family ties.

HPD-3531-R
Life Span Development: Child

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Rosow

In this course, we will focus on the extraordinary changes undergone by the developing child from conception through adolescence. We will base our study on the body of knowledge generated by theory and research in the field of developmental psychology. Our emphasis will be on patterns of physical maturation; linguistic and cognitive development; personal, social and emotional growth. Current issues in child psychology such as the working mother, popular media, neglect and abuse, drugs, and violence will also be addressed. The primary text will be Of Children: An Introduction to Child Development.

HPD-3532-RLife Span Development: Adult

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Rosow

Do adults develop through predictable stages or do they reach a peak in their twenties or thirties and then decline and die? Within the framework of this organizing question, we will trace predictable changes and challenges experienced by adults from young adulthood through old age and death. Central issues will include: finding a mate, bearing and rearing children, negotiating relationships with family and friends, selecting and developing a career, accommodating to changing physical capacities and health, and coming to terms with death.

HPD-3541-R and HPD-3541-R1Introduction to Psychology

One semester: 3 credits

Psychology is the science that systematically studies human behavior and experience. Within the last 100 years, psychologists have developed a significant body of knowledge in the areas of child and adult development, psychopathology, perception, cognition, memory, learning and social psychology. This course presents an overview of key topics in psychology and examines the methods that distinguish psychology from other approaches to human behavior.

HPD-3572-ACross-Cultural Human Relations

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

As it becomes increasingly clear that the shrinking globe is indeed one world and that all human cultures are ultimately one human culture, it is our responsibility to develop strategies that will equip us to come to grips with realities that all too often seem to be beyond our control and comprehension. In this course we will explore issues such as race, class, gender, caste and ethnicity in an attempt to understand how they can both divide and unite us. Readings will include works by George Orwell, Tillie Olsen, Allen Sillitoe, Simone de Beauvoir, Richard Wright, Ngugi, Douglas Turner Ward, Amy Tan, and others. Selected videos will also be screened. There will be guest speakers.

HPD-3601-APower, Politics and Propaganda: The Role of Free Speech and Public Opinion in American Democracy

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Barkan

Have the traditional American ideals of free speech and democracy been reduced to mere rhetoric? Or do they remain a vital reality? Who really shapes U.S. public opinion? How is it formed? What role does it play in American political life? Why is the true nature of political power and policy shrouded in mystery? In this course, we will examine various theories of political and economic power as we explore the secret dynamics of American politics and public policy. The role of propaganda and public opinion in current political life will be discussed in light of such issues as the presidential election, abortion, the environment, race relations and foreign policy. Selected readings from Margolis and Mauser, Manipulating Public Opinion; Wayne and Wilcox, The Quest for National Office; Cigler and Loomis, Interest Group Politics, 3rd ed. Readings will be supplemented by salient videos and guest speakers.

HPD-3623-AArt and the Psyche

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lange-Castronova

What do you reveal to your audience through your work? Is your art a free flowing stream to your unconscious? Is it a window to your own internal world or a reflection of the external? Do you strive for the content or the form? Freud argued that when making art one engages in complex mental processes. He described art as an effort at mastery as well as a regressive search for pleasure, representing both affective and cognitive expression. This course will examine three distinct theories of psychology as they apply to the relationships between art, artist and audience. The lectures will focus on drive theory, ego psychology and object-relations theory and their corresponding approaches to art analysis. We will explore selected works from Sigmund Freud, Melanie Klein, Ernst Kris, D.W. Winnicott, Margaret Mahler, Anna Freud and Fred Pine, along with the principal authors of some alternative theories of psychology.

HPD-3641-R and HPD-3641-R1Abnormal Psychology I: Neurotic and Character Disorders

One semester: 3 credits

This course will introduce students to the psychological and interpersonal conflicts that underlie obsessional, hysterical, depressive and narcissistic disorders. Treatment strategies will also be explored with reference to actual case histories. Readings include selections from such clinical theorists as Sigmund Freud, Anna Freud, David Shapiro, Alice Miller, Charles Brenner, Karen Horney and Heinz Kohut.

This course will focus on the psychological and interpersonal conflicts that characterize schizoid and borderline personality disorders as well as psychotic mood disorders and schizophrenia. Treatment strategies will also be explored with reference to actual case studies. Readings include selections from such clinical theorists as Frieda Fromm-Reichmann, Harry Stack Sullivan, Irvin Yalom, W.W. Meissner, R.D. HPD-3644Deviant Behavior and Social Control

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Wilson

This course will examine the causes and consequences of various forms of deviant behavior. In addition to viewing deviant behavior as a residual and problematic phenomenon in society, we will focus on what some sociologists consider to be the integrated and necessary relationship between deviance and society. Specific topics for analysis and discussion will include prostitution, pornography, drug addiction, alcoholism, mental illness, street crime and white-collar crime.

HPD-3677-ASurviving into the 21st Century: A Multicultural Perspective

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Janoff

At this moment, there are approximately 40 wars on our small planet. Most are based on racial, religious or ethnic differences. With today's weapons, it is easy to imagine omnicide, the death of everything. To move with hope in the 21st century, and the new millennium it has begun, we must learn to understand how we create "us" and "them" scenarios. We must learn to recognize ourselves as a single species. We will read some of the great writers and thinkers of many different cultures, religions and eras (Freud, Geronimo, Gandhi, Maya Angelou, Bei Dao, Neruda, Whitman, Marina Tsvetayeva, Elie Wiesel, Nelson Mandela, Virginia Woolf, Malcolm X). The process of reading, writing and discussion should enable each student to raise his or her consciousness and to explore ways of eliminating prejudice in daily life, the necessary first step toward world peace.

HPD-3898-RTheories of Personality I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lange-Castronova

What is a personality? How can we understand human behavior? What are the criteria according to which people can be characterized? This course will introduce students to a psychological approach to the question of what it means to be a person. It has two aims: First, it will provide an introduction to the classical personality theories of Freud, Jung, Erikson and Winnicott, as well as to current developmental perspectives on personality emerging from the ideas of Bowlby, Stern and Ainsworth. Second, it will teach students to use theories of personality to inform their understanding of self and others.

HPD-3899-R and HPD-3899-R1Theories of Personality II

Spring semester: 3 credits

Beginning with classical psychoanalytic writers, such as Freud, Klein, Winnicott and Mahler, this course will review different theories of personality development. Contemporary relational theorists will also be studied, with an emphasis on gender development, creativity and the impact of childhood trauma on adult functioning.

HPD-4026-RContemporary Art: Psychoanalytic and Postmodern Perspectives

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

The aim of this course is to give students a richer experience and deeper insight into contemporary art by approaching it from a variety of psychoanalytic and post-modern perspectives. The course includes the theoretical tools of psychoanalytic criticism, the classical approaches of Freud and his followers and more recent uses of psychoanalysis by Marxist art critics, feminists and deconstructionists. We will discuss traditional issues in art and psychoanalysis in a contemporary context: the relevance of the artist's biography for understanding his or her art, the analogy between art and dreams, the psychology of the aesthetic experience and the "mad genius" view of the artist. There will be practical application of these theoretical topics to issues raised by the latest museum and gallery exhibitions in the New York art world. Selections from Sigmund Freud, On Dreams and the Five Lectures on Psychoanalysis (the Clark lectures); Carl Jung, Man and His Symbols; D.W. Winnicott, Transitional Objects and Transitional Phenomena and the Location of Cultural Experience; Theodor Adorno, Art, Society and Aesthetics; Laura Mulvey, Visual Pleasure and Narrative Cinema; Donald Kuspit, Authoritarian Abstraction and Artists' Envy; Ellen Handler Spitz, Art and Psyche: A Study in Psychoanalysis and Aesthetics; Elizabeth Wright, Psychoanalytic Criticism.

HPD-4166-RPsychoanalysis, Art and Society

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

This course will critically evaluate psychoanalysis as a tool in understanding art, literature, history, philosophy and the social sciences. While focusing on Freud's classic theory, we will also explore the work of later psychoanalytic thinkers such as Jung, Winnicott and Kohut.

HPD-4280-AMarriage and the Family

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Horowitz

A behavioral science core curriculum course intended to parallel IDD-2010, Design Studio I. This course will focus on the basic functions of the family as well as its cross-cultural and historical forms. Emphasis will be placed on the American family. Issues will include immigration and minority family patterns; the family and social stratification; the family and social institutions; gender and family politics; parenthood, childhood and socialization.

HPD-4299-ARace and Ethnic Relations

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Jeffries

This course will focus on a variety of theoretical and empirical issues related to race and ethnic relations. Topics will include the concept of "race"; minorities; social stratification and social conflict; the relationship between prejudice and discrimination; assimilation, amalgamation and cultural pluralism; race, ethnicity and ideology; patterns of segregation; and the question of racial oppression or class subordination.

HPD-4333-RMan the Animal

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Janowitz

This course in physical anthropology will cover human evolution, physical characteristics of human populations (including growth studies, human variation and forensic anthropology) and the other primates (monkeys and apes). There will be field trips to museums as well as the Bronx Zoo.

HPD-4481-RPsychological Aspects of the Creative Process

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Kaufman-Balamuth

This course reviews the intellectual and the emotional processes that facilitate creativity. What kind of thinking facilitates creativity and what blocks it, and how do you develop creative thinking? What kind of internalized negative voices block you from achieving your fullest creative potential? How do you carve a personal space that will best assist your art-making? We will read psychological theories as well as personal accounts of writers and artists who write about the creative process. The work of Julia Cameron, author of The Artist's Way, will be the centerpiece of the course.

SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS

HSD-2114-R

Evolution

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

This course will explore the origins of life on earth as well as the evolutionary processes of microbes, plants and animals, especially humans. Focal topics will include Darwin's theory of natural selection and Gregor Mendel's contributions to our understanding of the diversity of life forms. Modern tools of artificial selection and the cloning of organisms will also be examined and discussed.

HSD-2447-R

Cells and Molecules

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

The last three decades have witnessed an enormous explosion of knowledge in cell biology. New techniques from molecular biology and new imaging techniques have revealed a complex web of interlocking processes, coordinated by a system of molecular signals. In this course, we will examine this system from a modern viewpoint, including the potential applications in cancer treatment and other clinical areas. Topics will include: Basic biochemistry and cell anatomy; enzymes and metabolic pathways, signals and receptors; signal transduction cascades; the cell as a complex system with many subsystems; the cell cycle—control of reproduction and mortality, apoptosis, developmental biology, cancer and the aging process.

HSD-2566-R

Biological Genetics

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

Genetics and molecular biology have increasingly found applications in a variety of areas collectively known as biotechnology. Many of these applications have become a part of our everyday lives. This course will focus on providing a basic understanding of genetics and molecular biology specifically as they relate to the practical application of these sciences. The basic architecture of cells; principles of inheritance; DNA structure, function and replication; and gene expression, including RNA and protein synthesis, will form the base of our investigations. The study of genetic engineering, the purposeful manipulation of genetic material to attain a desired result, will then allow for an understanding of the uses of biotechnology in many different areas. Biotechnologies covered will include the production of tools for disease diagnosis, the development of new drugs and vaccines, forensic employment in a variety of legal proceedings, uses in improving agricultural output and uses in environmental technologies.

HSD-2642-R

Designs of Brains and Minds

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

This course will explore diverse roles of the brain in the biological world and the emergence of artificial intelligence. Topics will include: evolution and development of the brain, engineering intelligence in animals, artificial organs, robotics and neural networks as the basis of artificial minds.

HSD-2666-R

Our Living Planet: The Biology of Life on Earth

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

This course will explore the biological nature and environmental habitats of microbial, plant and animal life on earth. The origins, physiology, behavior and reproductive patterns of the planet's various life forms will be examined in relation to their diverse natural conditions and interactions. The quest for life on other planets will also be discussed.

HSD-2987-R

Introduction to Mathematics I

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This course approaches mathematics historically, emphasizing its relation to art, science and other cultural areas. We will study ancient Greek mathematics and early astronomers; number systems and geometry; algebra, projective geometry, early physics and Renaissance culture.

HSD-2988-R

Introduction to Mathematics II

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This course is a continuation of HSD-2987, Introduction to Mathematics I. After review of material covered in the first semester, we examine an array of topics of interest: combinations and permutations, statistics and probability theory, topology, non-Euclidean geometries, and other areas of students' interest. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

HSD-3003-R

Energy and the Modern World

Fall semester, 3 credits

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Instructor: A Gupta

This course will examine the basic nature, forms and concepts of energy. We will also explore the similarities and differences between various types of available energy as well as the techniques by which they can be converted into one another. Special attention will be paid to the importance of energy conservation and the pitfalls and global perils that attend the growing competition over, demand for, and production of, energy in today's world.

HSD-3016-R

Science in the Modern World

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

The triumphs of modern science have been heralded as an emancipation from the burdens of ignorance, fear, toil and disease. But have the sciences fulfilled their promise to liberate humankind? Have we truly overcome superstition and dogma, or simply replaced them with the uncertainties of a scientific "metaphysics" bristling with mysterious forces, powers, fields, waves, quarks and rays? Have we achieved the goals of knowledge and power, or have we reinvented ignorance and multiplied the dangers that surround us? In an attempt to come to grips with these questions, this course takes stock of recent scientific progress in fields such as anthropology, cosmology, ecology, subatomic physics and genetic engineering, measuring the claims of science and technology against those of the individual.

HSD-3044-R

History of the Human Body: Society, Culture and Medicine

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

This course will focus on the ways in which concepts of the human body have shaped Western culture from classical antiquity to the present day. We will survey theories of the body, anatomy, the diagnosis and treatment of disease, and pharmacology. We will also consider the social aspects of medicine, focusing on the lives of people who generated and used medical knowledge. Moreover, we will investigate the ways in which this knowledge has affected modern culture, from its impact on art and philosophy to modern attitudes toward medicine and health care practitioners. In part, this course will consist of a survey of medical ideas and practices from earliest times to the present. We will subsequently focus upon the vast influence that medicine has had on the realms of culture, society and politics. Readings will include important contemporary sources as well as recent historical studies.

HSD-3111-RAstronomy

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This is an introductory astronomy course for nonscience students. We will begin with a study of the early history of astronomy and our current understanding of the planets and other components of the solar system. The second part of the course is devoted to the study of the rest of the universe. We examine the optical tools used, spectral types, the Hertzsprung-Russell diagram, the various kinds of stars and their life histories, black holes, galaxies, quasars and other celestial bodies. Cosmological theories will be discussed.

HSD-3114-RModern Art and Astronomy: The Expanding Universe

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

Where do stars come from? How big is the universe? What's inside an atom? Why is the sky blue? In the last century, scientists have given revolutionary answers to these questions, profoundly altering how modern society perceives reality. This course presents fascinating responses to these questions in plain, easy-to-understand English, along with illustrations of their impact on art and culture. Topics include Einstein's theory of the relativity of space and time, the discovery that the universe is expanding, space travel, the splitting of the atom, and the dawning of the nuclear age, as well as scientific metaphors in the arts.

HSD-3204-RScience, Technology and War: An Historical Overview

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

This course will examine two areas of great importance. The first area deals with the historical analysis of the roles that science and technology have played in the development and transformation of war. We will focus on the evolution of weapons and weapons systems and their effect in battle. The second area examines the effects of weapons technology upon the rest of society. We will study how changes in weapons technology can alter state and world systems. Can they increase the need to mobilize the population for industrial production? Do they increase the capacity to, and rationality of, striking at civilians? Has technological change made massive violence unlikely, or more likely?

HSD-3211-RThe Material World

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

We will begin by reading J.E. Gordon's Structures, which addresses the application of classical physics to structural problems of design in architecture, biology and other areas. We will then read March's Physics for Poets, exploring the development of physics from its Renaissance beginnings to the present. The approach is nonmathematical, and no previous knowledge of physics is assumed.

HSD-3253-RModern Art and Biology: The Mystery of Life

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

How did the first life on earth begin? How smart were dinosaurs? Why do children look like their parents? How does the human brain remember things? Scientists gave revolutionary answers to these questions in the 20th century, profoundly altering how modern society perceived reality. This course presents fascinating responses to these questions in plain English, along with illustrations of their impact on art and culture. Topics include the theory of evolution, how cells function, deciphering the DNA molecule, and medical revolutions from antibiotics to organ transplants as well as biological metaphors in the arts.

HSD-3254-RScience and Religion

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

What is the relationship between religion (popular and official) and science? Are they complementary in their effects, or are they antagonistic? Is there continuity and interdependence between the philosophical propositions of science and religion? Has Western science replaced religion as a rational activity? These and similar questions will be posed and discussed in the course through the critical examination of major historical, sociological and anthropological studies.

HSD-3322-REnvironmental Studies

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This course stresses the basic principles of the physical sciences. Topics include: physical and chemical parameters of the environment, populations, biochemical cycles, biological diversity, human ecology and energy.

HSD-3344-REnvironmental Economics

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

Beginning with an examination of economic ideas, from the physiocrats and Adam Smith to the present, this course will focus on issues of environmental economics. Readings include Heilbroner's The Worldly Philosophers as well as selections from Herman Daly and other contemporary writers.

HSD-3507-R and HSD-3507-R1Visual Science Workshop

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

Limited to 15 students

This course will explore the science of the tools that visual artists use. While bringing to light the methods scientists use to see their theories come to life, we will study such topics as: the photoelectric effect, microscopy, chemistry of color, biology of vision and the growing dependence of visual techniques on computer science. Activities will include performing experiments in the classroom and with the staff at the American Museum of Natural History. Note: Open to third-year Honors Program students and to all others with permission of the instructor.

HSD-3507-R1 spring

HSD-3901-RHuman Diseases

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levandowsky

This course will survey the major human diseases, their history, causes and treatment. Emerging diseases are also discussed. The legends and myths about diseases will be clarified and insights into infectious diseases will be provided. A trip to the American Museum of Natural History will be included.

HSD-4026-R and HSD-4026-R1Art, Science and the Spiritual

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

What is our place in the universe? How do we perceive the world? Students will learn how modern science has profoundly transformed modern art. The theories of Charles Darwin and Albert Einstein forever changed how artists understand reality. The rise of science also entailed the decline of organized religion, causing traditional spiritual questions to be reformulated in secular terms. At the same time, the theories proposed by psychologists—the new doctors of the soul—revolutionized modern society's understanding of the human psyche. Artists responded to the challenges posed by science and psychology by creating new metaphors for the human condition during the first secular, scientific age in human history. We will explore the interplay between art, science and the spiritual by evaluating major scientific and religious trends of the 20th century in relation to the representative artistic movements and works of the time.

Human Biology: The Immune System

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Hayes

With the advent of diseases that attack and cripple the immune system, immunology has been thrust into the public domain. This course will attempt to help the nonscientist understand some of the basics of the critical cells within the blood that help protect us from infection, disease and cancer, and that play an everyday role in our lives. Topics will include some of the myths about the immune system, how stress adversely influences our body's ability to cope with disease, how to potentially strengthen the immune system through dietary supplements, and how medical science is attempting to harness the immune system as a partner in the prevention and treatment of cancer using vaccines and immunotherapy.

Note: No previous science background is required.

HSD-4204-R

Human Anatomy and Physiology

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

A comparative study of human anatomy in the context of vertebrate evolution. Demonstration dissection of the fetal pig, field trips to the American Museum of Natural History and detailed discussion of the major physiological systems will be included.

HSD-4232-R and HSD-4232-R1

Light, Color and Vision I

Fall semester: 3 credits

The basic physics and chemistry of light in a nonmathematical treatment of classical geometrical and physical optics will be examined in this course. We will discuss: refraction and diffraction; structural color; a qualitative discussion of the modern view of the nature of light and its interactions with matter; photochemistry, pigments and dyes; the principles underlying fluorescence and phosphorescence, lasers and holography.

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

A continuation of HSD-4232, Light, Color and Vision I, this course will examine: the biology and psychology of vision, sensory responses to light in microorganisms and plants, vision in the invertebrates, the vertebrate eye, aberrations of human vision, the biochemistry and neurology of vision, visual illusions and visual perception in relation to art history. Prerequisite: HSD-4232, Light, Color and Vision I, or instructor's permission.

Art, Mathematics and Human Reason

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

What is infinity? Do numbers originate in our minds or in the cosmos? How do abstract patterns acquire meaning? These fascinating questions lie at the heart of mathematics, which—because of its abstractness—is the foundation of exact thought and the international language of today's high-tech culture. But despite its pivotal importance, mathematics is often a disappointment to artists because its secrets are written in a language—mathematical symbols—that they may not understand. The goal of this course is to describe in plain English the ideas that drive mathematics—numbers, infinity, geometry, pattern, and so on—and to demonstrate how these topics have been absorbed, interpreted and expressed by modern artists. The course will also explain how mathematical ideas are conveyed in symbols, formulas, graphs and diagrams. These figures and formulas amount to a pictorial visualization of abstract concepts that have profound implications for artists who create animated patterns, abstract paintings or conceptual art. No background in mathematics is needed; the only prerequisite is a natural curiosity about numbers.

Food Explorations

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

Cuisine, nutrition and the problems of our abundant food supply will be examined in this course. Topics will include the selections of crops, meats and beverages by ancient civilizations; industrialization of farming through genetic engineering; and fast-food diets. The impact of our changing taste for nutrition and our health will also be explored. Other areas suggested by students will be included. Field trips to green markets and purveyors of food will provide a chance to explore the culinary arts. Readings include: Harold McGee's Science and Lore of the Kitchen.

SPECIAL COURSES

SPD-2717-A

The Philosophy and Practice of Yoga I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Materials fee: $20

Instructor: N. Jones

Limited to 18 students

Three routines designed for freedom and alignment of both the body and mental processes will be practiced. Gradual or sudden improvement in lifestyle involving diet, general health habits, ways of thinking, etc., will be studied and discussed.

Texts include: B.K.S. Iyengar's Light on Yoga; Dick Gregory's Natural Diet for Folks Who Eat; P. Yoganand's Autobiography of a Yogi.

SPD-2718-A

The Philosophy and Practice of Yoga II

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Materials fee: $20

Instructor: N. Jones

Limited to 18 students

Throughout the semester we will practice three different routines designed to develop a fund of energy and vitality. Through balancing these energies by practice and meditation, we can reach higher and more efficient levels of mental/spiritual perception and calmness. Because yoga demands a holistic approach in lifestyles for best results, we will study literature dealing with diet and general health. Class discussions will share experiences and information. The following books will be used: The Soul and Its Mechanism, Alice Bailey; Diet for a Small Planet, Frances Lappe; Yoga, Immortality and Freedom, Mircea Eliade; Pranayama (The Yoga Breathing), Andre van Lysbeth. Note: There is no prerequisite for this course.

SPD-2753-A (previously SPD-1966)

French for Artists (and Travelers)

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Instructor: G. Moore

We are constantly surrounded by things French: painting, wine, perfume, cuisine, literature and film, and sometimes intimidated by the language itself. Many of us wish to learn it so that we could speak easily, visit a French-speaking country, perhaps even sell our artwork there, but we are daunted by pronunciation. This course is designed to help students speak and read French, with a sense of humor and patience, to get over that "foreign" barrier. Starting from the beginning, we will gradually learn the language, while exploring the inspirational peaks of French culture, literature, art and film.

SPD-2877-A

Holography

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Equipment and supplies fee: $100

Instructor: S. Morée

A studio-oriented course that begins with an introductory discussion of the basic principles and history of holography, followed by work in the holography lab. Students will make single-beam-reflection (Denisyuk) holograms, shadowgrams, laser-viewable transmission master holograms and white-light viewable transfers.

SPD-2911-A

Bridging Art Therapy: An Introduction to the Therapeutic Uses of Creative Arts

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Instructor: L. Furman

This course is an overview of the use, benefits and scope of art therapy. Students will explore the history of art therapy and the field's current reach; the use of art materials and various creative modalities within a therapeutic context; the collaboration of art, client population and setting; and the popular uses of theory in art therapy. Class discussions, creative art experientials, slide presentations and guest speakers will help students gain a general understanding of the use of art therapy and this ever-growing field.

SPD-3733

Art in Education and Therapy

Friday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Instructors: L. Furman, L. Seeney

Taught by faculty from SVA's graduate programs in art education and art therapy, this course will provide an introduction to the history, theories, practices and methods used in these fields. The art therapy introduction will include an exploration of the uses of art and creative modalities within a therapeutic context. Sessions in art education will provide an overview of teaching art in public schools, museum education and special SVA programs for children. Classes will be held in the graduate program facilities. Course requirements include active class participation, readings, writings and final projects.

Introduction to Public Presentation

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 miscellaneous credits

Instructor: J. Kuznekoff

Communication skills are listed by employers as one of the most sought after (and most lacking) qualities in job candidates. This course is an introduction to the art of public speaking and will help students to improve their ability to express themselves and to listen to others in a variety of situations. Students will gain practical firsthand experience by presenting three speeches in front of the class. One of these speeches will be performed as part of group. Specific topics covered will include: audience analysis, delivery, ethics, persuasion, critical thinking, credibility, intercultural communication and dealing with "stage fright." Text: A Speaker's Guidebook: Text and Reference, 2nd edition.

SPD-3933-A

Law and the Visual Artist

Wednesday 6:00-8:50; January 23-30 and February 6-13

Spring semester: four sessions, no credit

Instructor: C. Steinberg

This course is an intensive study of the law as it applies to the visual artist. Areas of concentration will include copyright law, artists' housing, artists' rights and risks in the content of artworks, contracts, leases, publishing, income taxes, incorporation, estate planning and public support of the arts. Study will also be devoted to current assaults on freedom of expression and examples throughout history of the interaction between law and artistic expression.

Department of Illustration and Cartooning

First-Year Requirements

Freshman illustration and cartooning majors must take all the courses listed below. These courses are the foundation-year requirements and they must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College unless you have already received credit in transfer for any of these courses. Note: If you are receiving credit in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Following are 14 general foundation course programs, each composed of the foundation-year required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled. Note: General Foundation 14 will not be made available until all other foundation schedules have reached capacity.

Freshmen who will begin their studies in the spring 2008 semester should refer to general foundation blocks 15 and 16.

AHD-1010 Survey of World Art I

One semester: 3 credits

As the first part of a two-semester introduction to the art of Western and non-Western cultures, this course will examine art from the Paleolithic period to 1450. Key monuments and styles will be explored in architecture, sculpture and painting through methods of visual analysis. Discussions will link the ways in which concepts in art develop and change within different cultural contexts. The second semester will examine art from the Renaissance to the modern world. Field trips and museum visits will augment the course.

AHD-1015 Survey of World Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1010 for course description.

FDD-1030 Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester) Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

FPD-1020 Painting I

One semester: 3 credits

Foundation-year painting will explore various means of representation through the application of pigments to canvas, panels and paper. Color and its organizational principles will be investigated—both as a practical and theoretical endeavor. An exploration of form and content will be undertaken with an emphasis on technical skills. Class critiques and museum visits will be employed as vehicles to develop critical terms concerning painting.

FPD-1025 (previously FPD-1020, second semester) Painting II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FPD-1020 for course description.

FSD-1050 Sculpture

One semester: 3 credits

As an introduction to the material world, this course explores diverse media and their potentialities to create volume, line and mass. Ranging from the ethereal to the fabricated, materials such as clay, plaster, cardboard, wood, resin and wire will be investigated by exercises in casting, mold-making, installation and site-specific work. Discussion will include concepts of space, gravity and light, among others, as they pertain to three-dimensional form.

HCD-1010 Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020 Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

SMD-1020 Foundations of Visual Computing

One semester: 3 credits

Serving as an introduction to the tools, terms and techniques of visual computing for artists, this course will cover basic skills for operating and maintaining a computer, as well as the techniques to create collages and layered images and the tools required to display work on the World Wide Web. The impact of technology on the visual arts will be examined and discussed from contemporary and historical perspectives.

General Foundation Courses for Freshmen Beginning Spring 2008

Freshmen who will begin their studies in the spring semester must register for spring 2008 and summer 2008 General Foundation 15 or spring 2008 and summer 2008 General Foundation 16. Please look over both schedules and decide which would be best for you. Since each program has a limited number of seats, we cannot guarantee that you will be registered for your first choice.

Illustration Second-Year Requirements

The recommended course load is 15 credits per semester. All students should see their advisor about individual humanities and sciences distribution credit needs.

Second-year illustration majors must take:

REQUIREMENT A

One semester each of:

ILD-2000	Principles of Illustration I
ILD-2005	Principles of Illustration II
ILD-2010	Painting/Illustration I
or CID-2050	Storytelling I
ILD-2015	Painting/Illustration II
or CID-2055	Storytelling II
ILD-2020	Drawing I
ILD-2025	Drawing II
ILD-2040	History of Illustration: Myth and Symbol
HHD-2990	Western Civilization I
HHD-2995	Western Civilization II

REQUIREMENT B

Choose one of the following technique courses each semester:

ILD-2104	Hand Lettering
CID-2108	Drawing with Ink for Cartoonists
ILD-2108	Drawing with Ink for Illustrators
ILD-2122	Watercolor Techniques
ILD-2126	The Gouache Experience
ILD-2131	Pastel Techniques
ILD-2136	Figurative Sculpture
FGD-2137	Etching and Monoprint as Illustration
ILD-2143	Collage Illustration
CID-2148	Digital Coloring for Cartoonists

Illustration Third-Year Requirements

The recommended course load is 15 credits per semester. All students should see their advisor about individual humanities and sciences distribution credit needs.

Third-year illustration majors must take one semester each of:

ILD-3010	Pictorial Problems I
ILD-3015	Pictorial Problems II
HPD-3050	Culture Survey I
HPD-3060	Culture Survey II

Note: Pictorial Problems I and II and Culture Survey I and II are courses that cover related theme-based material for third-year projects. Since the theme changes each year, none of these courses can be repeated the following year. Therefore, failure in any of these courses will require enrolling in summer courses and might require repeating all four courses in the following year.

Illustration Fourth-Year Requirements

All fourth-year students should see their advisor early to determine remaining credit needs and requirements. You must be able to complete all 120 credits of the BFA degree, including all course and credit requirements, within the fourth year to be eligible to graduate.

Fourth-year illustration majors must take:

REQUIREMENT A

One semester each of:

ILD-4010	Illustration Portfolio I
ILD-4015	Illustration Portfolio II

REQUIREMENT B

Two different sections each semester of:

ILD-4030	Senior Series I
ILD-4035	Senior Series II

Cartooning

Second-Year Requirements

The recommended course load is 15 credits per semester. All students should see their advisor about individual humanities and sciences distribution credit needs.

ILD-2000 (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 16 students

Designed to introduce the illustration basics: editorial interpretation, compositional fundamentals, different media, color and stylization, this course will focus on thinking and establishing creative solutions to problems. The sketch and its function in the illustrative process will be explored. Appropriate professional work habits will be stressed. Each instructor has particular areas of focus as indicated in the following course descriptions. Choose the section that best aligns with your areas of interest.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor
ILD-2000-A	M	9:00-11:50	S. Catalano
ILD-2000-B	M	6:00-8:50	R. Colon

ILD-2000-D	W	9:00-11:50	J. Chung
ILD-2000-E	W	6:00-8:50	J. Chung
ILD-2000-F	Th	12:00-2:50	J. Rosen

ILD-2000-A (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Catalano (www.lavatyart.com)

How to make pictures, using your hand, head and heart will be the focus of this course. The fundamentals of pictorial language—drawing, composition and color—will be stressed. We will explore how to find, make and use reference material from all types of imagery—classical to modern, mainstream to obscure—that will serve to inform and inspire. Exploration of new media is encouraged. The goal is to develop solid skills and creative thinking that allow for personal expression.

ILD-2000-B (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Colon

The goal of this course is to help students understand how illustration works today. They will learn about problem solving, the creative process, research, and employing all media to develop original ideas. Picture books, graphic novels and editorial art will all be explored. Art techniques using pen-and-ink, water-color, colored pencils and other mediums will be covered. Assignments will focus on developing each student's personal voice. Field trips will expand that vision.

ILD-2000-C (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Y. Shimizu (www.yukoart.com)

Developing each student's conceptual and compositional skills and solving illustration problems in original ways is the focus of this course. Various assignments will be given to help students find their strengths and personal voices, as well as improve on less proficient skills. Working in different mediums and surfaces, student will explore various fields (illustration, fine art, graphic design, comics) and guest lecturers will show their work. There will be some writing and research assignments, as well.

ILD-2000-D (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Chung

By breaking down the creative process of storytelling and picture-making, this course will focus on building strong work habits. Through an exploration of concepts, composition, drawing and finding a personal visual style, students will learn what it takes to make successful, finished illustration. We will look at various career avenues and find inspiration from guest lecturers; field trips and presentations are included.

ILD-2000-E (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Chung

See ILD-2000-D for course description.

ILD-2000-F (previously ILD-2030, first semester)

Principles of Illustration I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Rosen (www.jrosen.org)

The goal of this course is to introduce the process and art of illustration. Students will be encouraged to find their voice by applying individual style to a wide variety of creative problem-solving assignments. We will focus on developing visual literacy and harnessing ideas to technique, as well as delve into the current crossover between fine art, illustration and comics. You can expect to be exposed to a vast range of art-making, both in the classroom and on field trips.

ILD-2005 (previously ILD-2030, second semester)

Principles of Illustration II

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see the corresponding section of ILD-2000 for course description.

CID-2000 (previously CID-2030, first semester)

Principles of Cartooning I

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course is designed to introduce the formal building blocks of the medium, in contrast to CID-2050, Storytelling, which emphasizes content. Topics will include the different stages of page preparation—thumbnail sketches, page layout, penciling and inking, lettering, title design, basic perspective and narrative structural approaches. Students will self-publish their work at the end of the year. Each instructor has particular areas of focus as indicated in the following course descriptions. Choose the section that best aligns with your areas of interest.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor
CID-2000-A	M	12:00-2:50	K. Jansen
CID-2000-B	W	12:00-2:50	T. Hart

CID-2000-D	W	3:00-5:50	K. Mayerson

CID-2000-A (previously CID-2030, first semester)

Principles of Cartooning I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Jansen

This course is designed to introduce students to the essential components of visual communication—the ability to tell a story through images. Emphasis will be on both storytelling problems and solutions that are appropriate for comics, storyboarding and film. We will examine visual narrative through composition, design, image, juxtaposition of elements, storytelling theory, distortion, panels, continuity and more. Assignments are due every two weeks in the fall semester; a final project (approximately 20 pages) will be completed in the spring.

CID-2000-B (previously CID-2030, first semester)

Principles of Cartooning I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Hart (www.newwhatstories.com)

This course will look at cartooning as a powerful medium for all kinds of storytelling and idea exploration, from creative self-discovery and drama to social commentary and personal expression. Beginning with a focus on the basics and mechanics of panel, page and scene composition, we'll emphasize keeping sketchbooks, organized notes, stories and studies as the basis for generating work that will be refined later. Students will learn basic tools of visual and narrative arts, including juxtaposition of images, narrative transitions, light and dark, clarity, rhythm, and the psychology of drawn images and cartoons. A wide variety of cartooning and sequential art will be examined and studied.

CID-2000-C (previously CID-2030, first semester)

Principles of Cartooning I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Bertozzi (www.nickbertozzi.com)

Making a readable comic requires that you master a host of skills—perspective, lettering, page layout and mood, to name a few. It can be overwhelming for someone that just wants to make a simple comic. The goal of this course is to break down the processes, the effects and the language of comics into manageable, learnable chunks. By the end of the course, students will be ready to take on any genre, to tackle any type of scene and to articulate what it is they want to do with comics. Note: Please bring three examples of work from your own portfolio as well as an example of your favorite comic to the first session.

CID-2000-D (previously CID-2030, first semester)

Principles of Cartooning I: The Semiotics of Sequential Art

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Mayerson (www.derekeller.com or www.sevenseven.com)

The past, present and future are all simultaneously “real” and visible in the landscape of the comic page. Unlike other media, comics uniquely manipulate the viewer’s sense of time and space, smell and feeling, narrative and place, through the use of transitions and juxtapositions. Through the research and practice of different comic forms, we will explore the infinite possibilities of how to produce meaning by the sequence of images and words. Students will be encouraged to make and construct stories in whatever genre, style and medium they like, and to critically engage in the process, to achieve the full potential of their artistic practice. Assignments will range from traditional (gag cartoons, comic strips, comic books) to explorations in sequential art and the graphic novel.

Painting/Illustration I: Painting from the Figure

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: T. Elwell

Understanding form as revealed by light is the basic principle of representational painting. Designed to give students a working knowledge of this principle through painting the human figure in oil, this course will begin by using paint as a tonal medium, then gradually expanding the palette as your understanding of light and your control of the medium increase. Along the way, we will cover the basic rules of light and shade, the importance of edges and practical color theory.

ILD-2010-B

Traditional Painting/Illustration I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: M.J. Vath

This is a course designed specifically for the representational artist. Each session is a concentrated painting workout, painting directly from still life and/or the model. Students will work at their own level in a mistake-friendly environment. Recognizing and building on the strengths of each individual’s unique approach to painting will be stressed throughout the year. The goal of this course is to give students a practical, flexible “tool box” for creating the images they want to create.

ILD-2010-C

Painting/Illustration I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: P. Edlund

This course takes a conceptual approach to art and composition, yet emphasizes a comprehensive understanding of traditional oil painting techniques and materials. Appropriation; still life; use of color; working from photography, literature and art history are combined to explore innovative approaches to a classic medium.

ILD-2010-D

Painting/Illustration I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: G. Crane

A course based on figurative painting. Contemporary and classic approaches to painting will be explained. A firm foundation in the fundamentals of painting will be provided.

ILD-2020-A

Drawing I

Tuesday 3:30-6:20

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: T. Woodruff

Limited to 15 students

This course will give a strong base on which to build personal work. With short poses, students will describe form with line, gradually introducing tone, always considering compositional and formal concerns. The course will also include working and reworking one drawing throughout the semester. I will try to break you of bad drawing habits and stylish tricks, train your eye/hand coordination, and inspire a clean, pure approach to picture-making. Note: No midyear entry.

ILD-2020-B

Drawing I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Ruggeri

Focusing on figurative drawing with the nude model, class sessions will typically begin with quick poses and then move on to longer poses. Aspects of drawing, such as balance, rhythm, light and shadow, proportion, anatomy (including drawing the head) and composition will be explored. This is an intense and really fun course for serious students who are interested in improving their approach to the figure.

ILD-2020-C

Drawing I

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: R. Vecchio (www.riccardovecchio.com)

This drawing course will concentrate on the diverse elements of good draftsmanship: perspective, anatomy, shape, line and value. Nude and clothed models will be utilized exclusively, to achieve volume and dimension in the figure.

ILD-2020-D

Drawing I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: N. Ascencios (www.ascencios.com)

Students will work on sketching the figure quickly and in proportion, whether for a gesture drawing or a 40-minute pose. We will go beyond layout and gesture to understanding details within the contours of the figure through observation, attention to structure and anatomy. The more one understands and knows regarding the figure, the more choices one has when drawing on whether to include or eliminate what they see. This process will help artists with development of style.

ILD-2020-E

Drawing I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: P. Williamson

Drawing for illustration has its own unique challenges. Through observation, a visual memory can be developed. By understanding basic principles of anatomy and perspective an artist can create a convincing figure in space. When combined with skill and knowledge, visual imagination enables the illustrator to create with limitless possibilities. We will work hard to achieve these goals.

ILD-2020-F

Drawing I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Rosen (www.jrosen.org)

Using nude and clothed models, this course will introduce the encyclopedic vocabulary of the figure to help students build a foundation of visual fluency. Composition, lighting, anatomical structure, texture, memory and personal style will all come into play. Examples of historical and contemporary figure drawings will be shown. Props (and sometimes costumes) will be part of the mix. This course will be demanding and, ultimately, rewarding.

History of Illustration: Myth and Symbol

One semester: 3 credits

Instructors: T. Fasolino, M.J. Vath (www.newborngroup.com)

The fascinating history of illustrative images and the major movements in illustration are the focus of this course. The continuous interrelations between commercial and fine art, as well as the changing role of the artist's effect on culture, will be explored. The course will also help students better understand the differences of metaphor in pictorial content and the universal symbolic vocabulary—where a rose is not just a rose, a ladder is not just a ladder, and a dark horse is far from being just a dark horse.

CID-2050-AStorytelling I: Foundations of Comics Narrative

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructors: J. Abel, M. Madden (www.jessicaabel.com) (www.mattmadden.com)
This course will examine the fundamentals of comics storytelling. We will start with an emphasis on the basic mechanics of plot and characterization, and then explore more experimental and personal approaches to narrative expression, both in form and content. The goal is to develop a personal mode of expression that achieves a meaningful balance between tradition and experimentation. Comics publishing and self-publishing will be addressed. Assignments will include short comics and a final book project.

CID-2050-BStorytelling I: Artist's Books

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: F. Jetter (www.francesjetter.com)

In this course, stories will be told in pictures, with or without words. One project will be developed into an artist's book. The aim will be to produce an object with drama, individuality and intelligence. You will be involved in making each image function as a separate piece of art, as well as part of a cohesive whole. Work will consist of development of characters, mood, color, texture, materials, overall design and layout—including pacing—to propel the story forward. The book's cover should set the stage for the entire book, but still hold some mystery, and may be dimensional or incorporate type. There will be guest speakers and demonstrations of basic bookbinding. Both traditional and experimental approaches will be welcome.

CID-2050-CStorytelling I: Comics Narrative

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: G. Panter (www.garypanter.com)

This course will explore primary and complex strategies of storytelling in cartoon form. Assignments will require students to move from stream-of-consciousness and free association narrative exercises to controlled, coherent storytelling using the formal elements of cartooning and illustration. Increasing knowledge and comfort with traditional tools and techniques for getting ideas onto paper will be emphasized.

CID-2050-DStorytelling I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Cavalieri

Comic book artists must learn to defy the constraints of the page and of the imagination to get the greatest possible effect with the greatest economy: to use a series of images to tell a story clearly and effectively. These principles of storytelling are the solid foundation of the comics medium, and can be employed no matter what style or approach is chosen. Contemporary and past examples of bravura storytelling, as well as many personalized methods, will be explored to unlock the story in your head and get it onto paper.

CID-2070-ADrawing for Cartoonists I: Practical Perspective

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: S. Amendola

Everything that is necessary to know about perspective will be covered in this course. From the essential basics of one-, two- and three-point perspective to shadows, reflections, refraction, figure placement (including form and foreshortening), as well as the relationship of color and value to create the sense of light, atmosphere, space and form. Assignments are designed to prove the practical applications of the basic principles of perspective. Class sessions with models, props and lighting will assist in the exploration of perspective.

CID-2070-BDrawing for Cartoonists I

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Little

Do your sketchbook drawings look gorgeous, but you can't seem to translate them to the comics page? This course will show you how to exploit different processes—from the mechanical to the impulsive—to get the best possible drawing onto the panel. We will focus on topics specific to the cartoonist: character, acting, posing, framing, mood, invention, line personality and cartoon simplification, as well as explore classical concerns such as observation, anatomy, drapery, perspective, light and shadow.

CID-2070-CDrawing for Cartoonists I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: P. Jimenez

Whether you are drawing Japanese manga, alternative comics or superheroes, drawing skills are the fundamental necessity for every cartoonist. It will take you everywhere. This course will focus on your draftsmanship and visual memory to help you make your comics even stronger. Sessions will include drawing from models, different cartooning drawing materials, and professional cartoonist/illustrator guest lectures and discussions.

ILD-2104Hand Lettering

Friday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 2 credits

Instructor: A. Bloch (www.anthonybloch.com)

Words combine with images in various ways: from narrative text balloons and comic strips to title designs, page headings and logos, and on book covers or posters. Pictures with words are everywhere—yet lettering is an art form in its own right. One cannot create good hand-lettered type without understanding time-tested techniques. This course will teach students these principles and practices. There will be plenty of time for guided experiments in expressive work. You will also be able to adapt or refine your lettering on preexisting illustration or cartooning projects.

Instructor: M. Madden (www.mattmadden.com)

This course will introduce students to the powerful, expressive possibilities of ink drawing. While it is geared toward working for comics, it is not strictly a “how to ink for the big leagues” course. Rather, students will study and experiment with a variety of materials, techniques and approaches to drawing with ink. Demonstrations in the use of dip/quill pens, and the uses of pen and brush together will be given. Techniques such as the modulation of line weight to create depth and the uses of crosshatching to achieve lighting effects will be shown and discussed. An analysis and critique of pen-and-ink drawings of past masters of fine art, comics and illustration, as well as weekly critiques of student work is included.

This course will focus on the unique capacity of ink to achieve beautiful effects in rendering, modeling and texture. Students will be given demonstrations in the use of steel tip, crow quill, reed and technical pens and a variety of brushes. Work with Japanese brushes using ink stick and ink stone will also be included. Techniques for lighting effects, inking drawings and penciling will be discussed and demonstrated. Drawing and compositional skills are emphasized. In-class work will include drawing from the model, object settings, group drawings and demonstrations; there will be analysis and critique of pen-and-ink drawings of past masters, as well as weekly critique of student work. Note: Please bring 8.5x11" paper, waterproof ink, a small water container, and a variety of brushes to the first session.

Instructor: D. Soman

Watercolor is a beautiful, versatile and demanding medium. This course will focus on learning its technique and applying it to a semester-long assignment. The majority of class time will be spent painting from the model in order to master traditional, realistic, tonal painting. Attention will be paid not just to the differing techniques of watercolors, but also to basics such as composition, drawing and color. The works of past and present master artists will be examined through weekly discussion. Students may work in any style they choose to develop and execute the semester-long project. Particular focus will be placed on the conceptual and interpretive nature of the work. Note: Please bring a drawing pad and pencils to the first session.

ILD-2126The Gouache Experience

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Parks (www.johnparks.com)

An intensive course devoted to the use of gouache for illustration. Gouache is, in many respects, the ideal illustration medium—fast drying and giving brilliant, rich matte color. The course will be a workshop and seminar in which students undertake a variety of projects. A number of different techniques will be explored, but the course will concentrate on using gouache to enhance the work of the individual student. Some seminar time will be devoted to taking a close look at the uses of gouache in the professional work of many artists and illustrators.

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course provides an historical overview of Western thought from the Renaissance to the early 20th century. Students will explore the ways in which history and culture have interacted to shape the development of societies and individuals in the modern age. We will focus on major historical transformations such as the Renaissance and the Reformation (first semester), the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution (second semester), in order to understand how such pivotal events both condition and reflect movements in science, philosophy and the arts. The course will also provide an introduction to the assumptions, strategies and methods that inform the disciplines of history, philosophy and the social sciences. Readings include selections from: A History of Modern Europe, vols. ILD-3010Pictorial Problems I: Illustration

Fall semester: 3 credits

Students will design a cohesive series of works based on a theme, starting with specific assignments and progressing to more elaborate, self-determined explorations. Each student will be asked to devise his/her own complex research systems and to develop an important, cohesive body of work. A series of related illustrations will be produced by the end of the spring semester, from which an exhibition of selected works will be displayed. Choose the section that best aligns with your areas of interest. Note: Pictorial Problems I and II and Culture Survey I and II are courses that cover related theme-based material for third-year projects. Since the theme changes each year, none of these courses can be repeated the following year. Therefore, failure in any of these courses will require enrolling in summer courses and might require repeating all four courses in the following year. Open to junior illustration majors only.

ILD-3010-APictorial Problems I: Illustration

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Z. Lazar (www.zoharlazar.com)

What makes pictures function successfully in a verbal context? This course will help to build a foundation for successful picture-making under pressure. Students will expand their visual literacy and dissect the language of symbols and clichés. We will develop conceptual tools for solving pictorial problems and navigate hypothetical job issues by working on simulated commercial art situations. We'll also view obscure samples of art historical genius by anonymous masters.

ILD-3010-BPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Fiore (www.peterfiore.com)

This course connects observational drawing to the ideas of narrative, metaphor and composition in illustration. The work will be divided in two stages. In the first, students will draw and photograph the clothed figure, with some supplementary drawing of the nude. This will lead, in the second stage, to assignments depicting figures in pictures with specific illustrative objectives. By learning to carefully observe the figure and its environment, the student will find the specific information and the emotional focus upon which to build interesting moments and strong ideas. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

ILD-3010-CPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Woodruff

Limited to 15 students

One of the most important and sophisticated talents an illustrator must demonstrate is the avoidance of the obvious, symbolic cliché. Being able to conjure dynamic and dramatic visual solutions is also a crucial skill. In this course, we will work on developing heightened awareness while focusing on each individual's evolving, interpretive voice. Not an easy task, but by working with the construct of a given theme, we will be able to achieve these goals. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

ILD-3010-DPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Fasolino (www.newborngroup.com)

This course will deal with the basic concepts of individual picture-making. It will explore space, value, form and problems designed to make you think in terms of a total picture. Finished assignments will not be required. All work will be done to solve the multiplicity of problems encountered in the making of the complete piece. Assignments will deal with deep space, light and shade, premise and concept. Each phase of the process will be discussed and critiqued. An average of one assignment every other week will be given. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

ILD-3010-EPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Jetter (www.francesjetter.com)

Students will work to make images that are intriguing and forceful, which communicate with intelligence, grace and clarity. You will be encouraged to avoid the conventional, to experiment and take risks in your work in order to become memorable. There will be short assignments early in the semester, where thumbnail sketches are due one week, finishes the next, concurrent with working on a longer-duration project. The rough sketches will be as important as the finishes; enabling students to explore different ideas on a subject, with variations in compositions that will enhance nuance and meaning in your work. All mediums, including three-dimensional work are welcome. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

ILD-3010-FPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: C. Griesbach, S. Martucci (www.cherylgriesbach.com)

The goal of this course is to help students develop and reinforce technical skills along with strong compositional strategies to establish a style that is beneficial in pursuing illustration assignments. We will encourage students to find the right subject matter to best bring out their strongest qualities by expanding their visual vocabulary, as well as participating in group critiques to accomplish these ends. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

ILD-3010-GPictorial Problems I: Illustration

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Soman

Success in illustration today is not solely based upon technical and conceptual mastery, but also upon what you, uniquely, do with it. The aim of this course is to help bring out who you are as an artist. Thus, the focus will be to develop a portfolio that showcases each student's artistic sensibility. Work will be done both in and out of class, beginning with shorter assignments, and then focusing on the junior-year thesis, with the goal of using it as a vehicle toward intelligent, artistic self-expression. Students may work in any medium; emphasis is on using classical, figurative techniques to create contemporary illustrations.

ILD-3015 (previously ILD-3010, second semester)Pictorial Problems II: Illustration

CID-3010Pictorial Problems I: Cartooning

Fall semester: 3 credits

Students will design a cohesive series of works based on a theme, starting with specific assignments and progressing to more elaborate, self-determined explorations. Each student will be asked to devise his/her own complex research systems and to develop an important, cohesive body of work. A graphic novella will be produced by the end of the spring semester, from which an exhibition of selected works will be displayed. Choose the section that best aligns with your areas of interest. Please refer to the individual course descriptions that follow.

Note: Pictorial Problems I and II and Culture Survey I and II are courses that cover related theme-based material for third-year projects. Since the theme changes each year, none of these courses can be repeated the following year. Therefore, failure in any of these courses will require enrolling in summer courses and might require repeating all four courses in the following year. Open to junior cartooning students only.

CID-3010-APictorial Problems I: Cartooning

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Hart (www.newwhatstories.com)

With an emphasis on the writing of comics, the crafting of storytelling technique and the development of story ideas, this course will examine the difference between dramatic storytelling, which has its roots in theater, and less linear image-making, which might have more in common with music and poetry. Exploring and encouraging the practice of both concepts toward the gradual development of a piece of work based on the third-year departmental theme, we will examine the mechanics and tools of all types of storytelling, from theater to film, radio to opera. Exercises will focus on organic generation of narrative and imagery and will integrate traditional and nontraditional cartooning techniques to develop narrative, imaginative and visual reflexes. We will work to examine the visual storyteller's "tool box" and refine our craft over the course of the year. A wide spectrum of comics will be shown. The understanding of what tools and techniques are available to the sequential artist is the ultimate goal. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

CID-3010-BPictorial Problems I: Cartooning

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Abel (www.jessicaabel.com)

This course will begin with a series of explorations designed to highlight various aspects of the comics-making experience, and then will synthesize those ideas into a larger project based on the third-year departmental theme. Through the hard work of editing and rewriting, the course will emphasize story structure, character development, and the students' individual verbal and pictorial "voice." Professional practices will be taught and followed. Note: Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

CID-3010-CPictorial Problems I: Cartooning

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Mayerson (www.derekeller.com or www.sevenseven.com)

Storytelling is a series of choices, of problems posed and solved. These choices reflect the voice of the author/artist, and affect the reader's experience with the work. This course is a rigorous, formal investigation into comic-book storytelling for the advanced student. We will explore the ways decisions are made, and how structure, chance and limitations can be important factors in these decisions. Students will experiment with style, interaction between text and image, and different ways of telling the same story. Exercises will be individual as well as collaborative. Note: Recommended for serious students who like to work hard. Open to junior illustration and cartooning majors only.

CID-3010-DPictorial Problems I: Cartooning

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Tobocman

We will examine comic book artists, illustrators, cartoonists, printmakers, painters, filmmakers, playwrights, journalists and science-fiction writers throughout history who have used their craft to comment on the issues of their day. Then methods in which to apply these tactics to our own times will be explored. What is the relationship between real life and the two-dimensional universe of the comic book page? How can we use historical research, interviews, autobiography, life studies and photographic reference to bring realism to our drawing and writing? How can we use fantasy and symbolism to comment on the world around us? How can we use collage to expose the lies of our culture? While developing your own style and voice, we will uncover the answers to these questions.

ILD-4010Illustration Portfolio I

Fall semester: 3 credits

In the senior year, students will create a personal body of work, building on their progress from the sophomore and junior experiences. Your informed choice of an instructor will be crucial. Twelve finished works are expected by the end of the spring semester, and after completing an exit review, selected senior works will be chosen for the Portfolio book. Please refer to the individual course descriptions that follow. Note: CID-4020-C and CID-4025-C, Cartooning Portfolio I and II, are open to illustration majors.

ILD-4010-AIllustration Portfolio I

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Catalano (www.lavatyart.com)

This course encourages your unique creative personality. Through a series of assignments and discussions you will refine your creative process, research and coordinate reference material, develop a professional attitude, and explore methods of marketing and self-promotion.

ILD-4010-BIllustration Portfolio I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Woodruff

Many illustrators in their last year of study begin to think that they must be able to do every job that may come their way. This concept can create a scattered looking portfolio, which lacks a point of view. This course will help the artist to define himself or herself at this particular moment—what drives and interests each of them artistically, and how to develop a body of work predicated on intense interests and strengths. Career opportunities in illustration and fine art areas will also be discussed.

ILD-4010-CIllustration Portfolio I: The Memorable Idea-Oriented Portfolio

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Jetter (www.francesjetter.com)

Trendy, superficial work that takes no chances will be frowned upon in this course. The emphasis will be on finding what is uniquely yours in your work and coming up with strong ideas that will turn the assigned book or article, someone else's story, into your story. That's what makes your work memorable among thousands of portfolios. There will be some short assignments to get you used to working in this field, but most of the work will be on longer assignments of the students' choosing. Portfolio presentation, trade practices and promotion will be discussed.

ILD-4010-DIllustration Portfolio I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Brodner (www.stevebrodner.com)

Think of this course as your last checkpoint before beginning a career in illustration. The emphasis will be on the total product: your artwork; instincts for the real world; presentation process—focusing, targeting and marketing your work. We will focus on problem-solving, understanding your product, audience, clients and the illustration market. Various resources will be explored, including magazines, newspapers, book illustrations, comics, posters, paintings, pantomime, film and, most importantly, your personal voice. Freedom in this course is matched only by your determination and pursuit of your individual vision.

ILD-4010-EIllustration Portfolio I

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Mattelson (www.fineartportrait.com)

This course will help students develop a successful approach to creating consistent personal imagery. Whether taking a representational, stylized or fantastic approach, using traditional or digital media, students are encouraged to expand their picture-making skills by considering how the use of light, line, color, value and composition can be most effectively employed to get across their individual point of view. Innovative problem solving is emphasized and combined with practical information on how to assemble quality reference material that supports one's artistic intent. We'll also explore the usefulness of photography and computer manipulation to help formulate ideas and create superior reference material. The goal is to give you the tools necessary to create a unique professional portfolio that will open the door to a successful career.

CID-4020-ACartooning Portfolio I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Panter (www.garypanter.com)

This portfolio course serves to showcase the students' abilities as artists. Approaches to generating materials for self-promotion will be explored. Students will complete self-defined narrative projects and organize various materials for professional use. Approximately 17 finished art pieces will be required by the end of the spring semester and students are expected to complete additional works from which a selection of 17 pieces can be made.

CID-4020-BCartooning Portfolio I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Mazzucchelli

This course will enable the cartooning senior to shape his/her portfolio to be prepared for the professional world. Individual goals, whether directed toward the comic book, advertising or animation industry, will be thoroughly discussed, and with hard work and focus, personal aspirations can be met.

CID-4020-CCartooning Portfolio I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Mayerson (www.derekeller.com or www.sevenseven.com)

Great art is often a reflection of the spirit of the times, reading between the lines of contemporary culture to come up with something new, fresh, inviting and invigorating. It is a reflection of who, what and where you are as an artist and as a human being. In this course, we will intensely explore personal vision to bring about work in a voice that is uniquely your own. Various approaches are acceptable—an independent comic, samples of comic-derived illustrations, compound artwork, or any combination of these—if you are hardworking and challenge your abilities and talents. Ongoing critiques and discussions will be conducted to assist in creating a body of work that fulfills your artistic aspirations. Note: This section is open to illustration majors.

ILD-4030Senior Series I

Fall semester: 1.5 credits each section

The following courses have been designed to give illustrators and cartoonists an opportunity to study a variety of advanced areas that will help them to become more sophisticated and prepared to understand our current cultural landscape. Students must choose two different seven-week sections each semester. Please refer to the individual course descriptions that follow.

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Animé Wonderland

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: K. Mayerson (www.derekeller.com or www.sevenseven.com)

In this course, we will briefly explore traditions of Eastern art and how it came to inform Japanese manga and animation. We will read texts of the genre, and discuss and critique the canon of contemporary forms. Focus will be on major figures of this word/image, dreamlike, artistic phenomenon.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-A	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/4)
ILD-4030-B	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/23)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Culture and Cartooning

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: J. Cavalieri

The impact of cartooning on contemporary culture has been immense. It can be witnessed in the museums when viewing the early work of the pop artists, or seen at the beaches in the designs of current surf culture. This course will examine some of cartooning's illegitimate sires, and explore why certain notions of "high" and "low" status have been hierarchically assigned to particular imagery.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-C	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/4)
ILD-4030-D	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/23)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Artists' Stage Design

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: M. Denton

This course will introduce the illustration-oriented student to designing settings and costumes for theatrical performances. The emphasis is on artists and illustrators who have worked for the stage in the 20th century, such as Maurice Sendak, Edward Gorey, David Hockney, Red Grooms; as well as the Soviet artists of the 1910s and 1920s; and surrealists such as Giorgio di Chirico, Jean Cocteau, among others. In addition, discussions will focus on the basic elements of designing for the theater (lighting, the conventions of the form). Each student will be responsible for a (proposed) design for a specific work of theater, music or dance.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-E	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/5)
ILD-4030-F	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/24)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Poetry into Art

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: D. King (www.davekingwriter.com)

William Blake is that rare example of an artist who achieved greatness in two different fields; his visionary paintings and prints are the perfect complement to his highly mystical poetry. Few have achieved Blake's versatility, but the relationship between poems and pictures—and between poets and artists—nevertheless has a long and noble history. This course will consider ephrastic poetry, in which poets draw inspiration from works of art, but we will concentrate on the reverse equation: how artists interpret and illustrate works of poetry. Poems of all eras, moods and styles will be considered, and a portfolio piece illustrating a poem of the student's choosing will be the primary course project. Note: Previous knowledge of poetry is not a prerequisite for this course, nor is the desire or ability to write poems. Poetry-writing exercises will be made available for those interested.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-G	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/5)
ILD-4030-H	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/24)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Influences of Newspaper Comic Strips

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: J. Harris

American newspaper comic strips (and the comic books they eventually spawn) are simultaneously influenced by, and influential to, the events of the day. As the comic strip evolved, its format met the physical demands of the developing publishing industry, the technical advancements of black-and-white drawing techniques, and the public's never-ending need for daily entertainment and diversion. The goal of this course is for students to create a professional, unique and original comic-strip presentation, which will take into consideration the contributions of the most influential comic strips, the legal precedents set by their often avant-garde creators, and the distinctive featured characters, who reflected the attitudes of the very audiences they entertained. We will explore drawing approaches that are unique to the black-and-white, pen-and-ink medium demanded by the comic-strip format, as well as creative considerations reflected by today's society.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-J	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/6)
ILD-4030-K	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/25)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: SPOTS Before Your Eyes

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: S. Savage (www.stephensavage.com)

This course will outline the basics in how to do small “spot” illustrations, as seen in most daily newspapers and weekly magazines. They are a staple for many emerging illustrators, and their artistry is conceptual and surprisingly abstract.

We will explore the history of the “spot” and examine what various artists have contributed to the form. In addition, we will attempt to re-create the environment and procedures necessary to excel in this challenging type of illustration.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-L	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/6)
ILD-4030-M	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/25)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Contemporary Figuration

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: M. Zalopany

This course will look at the current trends and issues of content shared by cutting-edge contemporary figurative artists and certain “outsider” folk artists. Selected critical essays will be discussed. Students will be made aware of important cultural themes.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-N	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/7)
ILD-4030-P	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/26)

ILD-4030Senior Series I: Experiments in Narrative

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: L. Yablonsky

The purpose of this course is to liberate students from the conventions—and clichés—of traditional storytelling. It is an intensive workshop that encourages experiments in character, content and narrative form through instructive examples of such innovative artists, filmmakers and authors as Akira Kurosawa, Andy Warhol, Jean-Luc Godard, Jack Smith, Kurt Vonnegut, Jorge Luis Borges, the Wooster Group, Matthew Barney and other contemporaries whose imaginations and perceptual strategies continue to influence and refresh our culture.

Course #	Semester
ILD-4030-R	fall, first 7 weeks (begins 9/7)
ILD-4030-S	fall, second 7 weeks (begins 10/26)

ILD-4035 (previously ILD-4030, second semester)Senior Series II

Spring semester: 1.5 credits each section

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Students must choose two different seven-week sections each semester. Please refer to the individual course descriptions that follow.

ILD-4035 (previously ILD-4030, second semester)Senior Series II: Words and Pictures

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: M. Newgarden

Many artists in the commercial and fine art arenas have been investigating the relationship of words with pictures. This course is for students who are interested in exploring ways to integrate imagery with writing in their work. When is a combination successful? When does it fail? From Egyptian hieroglyphics and medieval illuminated manuscripts to early cubist paintings, posters, comic books and the mixed media of current artists, history provides many examples for inspiration and critique. We will focus on concrete problem solving as well as historical context.

Senior Series II: The Subversive Image—The Political Cartoon

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: L. Yablonsky

The chaotic, quickly changing political and cultural landscape of today almost begs for barbs to make sense of it. Indeed, cartoonists ranging from Thomas Nast, Bill Mauldin, Herbert Block and Pat Oliphant to Jules Feiffer, Gary Trudeau, Art Spiegelman, Scott Bateman, José Guadalupe Posada and Roz Chast have proven unique in their ability to affect public opinion on a variety of issues critical to both domestic and foreign policy. By evaluating historical examples and providing tools to identify areas ripe for caricature, this course represents an opportunity to develop a resonant visual approach to meaningful social commentary.

Drawing on Location

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Ruggeri

Class sessions will be spent at various New York City locations, learning to challenge the practical difficulties that arise while drawing on the spot. The main goal of the course is to encourage students to observe their environment, the particular details of each situation, and to draw spontaneously. We will put together three stories from drawings done on location. On-the-spot drawing experience is not necessary, but you should have some drawing skills.

Life Painting Workshop

Monday 9:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Assael (www.stevenassael.com)

This course will pursue direct painting from the model over a sustained period of time (three to four weeks per pose). Students will paint in a workshop environment alongside the instructor with the emphasis on the development of a highly representational image. The selective process that gives meaning to the expression of a representational painting is the primary concern. Simplifications of form and the gradual development of the parts in context to the whole are produced through the observation of light and shadow and warm and cool colors. Students will gain an understanding of materials and basic craftsmanship from ground supports to a variety of techniques in oil paint. Gaining an understanding of form painted from observation will give students the tools to formulate a selective eye when using photographic reference material. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

Illustrative Painting Workshop

Friday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructors: S. Ellis, E. White (www.stevellis.com) (www.ewhite.com)

A new type of imagistic artist is emerging. Many labels have been unsuccessfully thrown around, and magazine and galleries have sprung up giving imagistic works of art more cultural accessibility. These artists use an illustrative vocabulary, technical bravura and over-the-top imagery that has excited the public and scared the conservative art world. This course—taught by two “bad boys” of painting—will explore this cutting-edge “neo-symbolist” direction and help each student to find his or her own voice through images, while insisting on the precision necessary to make the pictures successful. Guest artists will visit the class.

Instructor: M. Mattelson (www.fineartportrait.com)

This curriculum is derived from the mindset and methodologies utilized by the great classical-realist painters. Working from the live model, you'll learn how to portray the illusion of three-dimensional reality on a flat surface. You'll discover how objective analysis of your subject will inform your decision making and allow you to depict solid, structurally sound figures with startlingly lifelike color, bathed in light and surrounded by air.

The Painting of Light

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Fiore (www.peterfiore.com)

This course deals with the interpretation of light for the two-dimensional artist. The ability to capture the world around us, in a representational manner, requires a keen sense of observation. We will explore how light visually describes your subject (i.e., time of day, temperature, weather conditions, humidity, color, texture, etc.). To create a sense of reality is the artist's job—this course will teach you how. It will enable you to calculate the effect your pictures will have. Light is the great designer of our world. ILD-3419-APictorial Fantasy Illustration

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: C. Griesbach, S. Martucci (www.cherylgriesbach.com)

Ideas and concepts will be reinforced through an in-depth exploration of fantasy illustrations in film and print. Traditional reference sources will be used to fashion unusual characters in fairy-tale landscapes. Students will create a glowing picture of strange and compelling creatures and distant worlds. Assignments will be tailored to individual pictorial preferences from child-inspired storytelling to sophisticated image realism. All media can be explored—from colored pencil and gouache to acrylic and oil—to best develop intriguing and suggestive images. Fantasy imagery can be a bold addition to your portfolio.

ILD-3432Fashion Illustration and Beyond

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Chin (www.marcoschin.com)

For students with an interest in fashion illustration and for illustrators with a fashionable flair, this course will explore and practice the skills needed to produce illustrations for fashion advertising as well as for print media, theater posters, package design, beauty illustration, book covers, licensing and product merchandising. Group critiques will help students identify areas on which to focus in order to achieve a personal style. Instructor: S. Martucci (www.cherylgriesbach.com)

Are you bored with rendering the human figure? If you find yourself relating more to frogs, insects, jaguars, snakes and other beasties, this course is for you. Real or imagined creatures in visual expression can be an exciting and vital part of your portfolio. Choose from a diversified view of assignments ranging from creating a movie monster poster, designing an alphabet consisting of animals, to portraying a poisonous toad in a rain forest. Projects will be worked on in class with supervision on concepts, use of different mediums and choosing reference sources supplemented with occasional field trips. This course welcomes students in all phases of development who feel this area is an important component of their visual vocabulary. Use of all media is acceptable.

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. McCarty (www.petermccarty.net)

Telling a story in pictures is both challenging and immensely satisfying.

This course covers every stage in the creation of a picture book: developing an idea and writing it; creating sequential, storytelling images; book layout; solving problems of pacing; presenting a book to a publisher; contracts; and working with an editor. The emphasis will be on the process of making the words and images work together seamlessly, from the first rough storyboard all the way through to a presentation dummy. We will also discuss, in depth, all the work available in children's illustration and how to look for it. A good portfolio for this market is quite different from an editorial or advertising portfolio. So, we will address the questions of what art directors in this field are looking for, and what sort of portfolio pieces you might need to be competitive.

ILD-3566-A (previously ILD-3562, first semester)Children's Book Illustration I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Soman

Beyond beautiful pictures, the real art in illustrating a children's book is in telling a story, and the real work is in telling it well. More than just pictorial narration, the field of children's books gives artists the great freedom and opportunity to explore a variety of ideas and themes found in both classic and contemporary children's literature. This course will focus on how to use our skills as artists to explore these possibilities. Students will focus primarily on one story (their own or someone else's), taking it from typewritten text to fully realized illustrations. The first part of the course will concentrate on such elements as breaking down and understanding a text, character development, composition and storyboards, and the finished dummy in order to grapple with the more complex problems of pacing and point of view. The rest of the year will be spent creating the finished illustrated story (approximately 15 portfolio-quality pieces). Time will also be devoted to issues involved in printing and production as well as working in the field.

ILD-3631Two Eyes, a Nose and a Mouth

Monday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Savage (www.stephensavage.com)

Learning to capture an individual's likeness is a skill to which almost every artist aspires. The caricaturist distorts and manipulates the face to make us laugh. Cartoonists and illustrators use the same method to create familiar or original characters in their narratives. In this course, students will learn the fundamentals of simplification and exaggeration, and how these principles impact the content of an image. We'll draw hundreds of faces—using slides, magazines, movies and models as our subject matter. We'll look for the main idea within each face—the particular arrangement of shapes that sets that person's face apart from all other faces.

Spring semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Sandlin

Using silkscreen, students will explore the many ways to present print as sequential images—artists' books, themed portfolios and comics, even fanzines. The course will cover the process from concept to finished and bound multiples. Students will learn methods of making color separations for multicolor prints using traditional hand-drawn and modern photographic techniques. Bookbinding techniques will be demonstrated, including Japanese bookbinding, accordion folding and signature binding. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

ILD-4201 (previously ILD-3226)Advanced Drawing

Monday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Chung

Drawing is the root of all visual language. An artist cannot practice the profession without an understanding of all the processes and various options. In this course, great emphasis will be placed on observational understanding of the nature of form (nature being our greatest teacher). Different approaches and experimentation will be encouraged with the goal of achieving both emotional and intellectual advances in your own style and direction. Assignment will consist of a sketchbook based on a stream of consciousness thought process. Note: Bring a bond-paper drawing pad (18x24") and various drawing materials to the first session.

Someone who can copy a photograph accurately may have difficulty in drawing from their head while someone else who can't copy as well may have no problems in drawing from their head. This course is for anyone (beginning or advanced) who wants to be able to draw from their head right now. Modern Illumination

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Imperiale-Warner

During the Middle Ages, books were produced that drew widely from the use of symbolism and illustration to convey and support the meaning of the text, much like modern illustration. This course will focus on learning to use the materials and techniques of medieval illuminated manuscripts in a modern context. Students will learn to mix and use egg tempera, apply gold leaf and work on goatskin parchment. Some time will be devoted to looking at examples of manuscripts from Europe, Russia and Persia that were created in the Middle Ages, as well as contemporary examples of egg tempera. Individual research is a must. Initial course sessions are devoted to gilding and understanding the difficulties, limitations and beauty of egg tempera. The second part of the course is geared toward completion of a final project, which can range from re-creating elements of an illuminated manuscript to illustrations, cartoons or personal work. The course is recommended for students who have an attention to detail, excellent time management and patience with an extremely difficult medium. Knowledge of medieval illuminated manuscripts is not necessary. Note: Materials used in this course are generally more expensive than common painting materials.

Instructor: S. Ewalt (www.ewaltimaging.com)

This course will explore and define the visual formulas that occur in popular images. You will then reinvent and "tweak" these formulas, while developing your own personal voice. We will strive for innovative, edgy solutions to problems, and discuss how an artist can produce marketable art for the mainstream while not compromising his or her aesthetics. Particular attention will be paid to issues of scale (the CD package vs. the billboard), period styles, tracing postmodern sources, and subculture genres. Materials fee: $150

Instructor: D. Sandlin

Using silkscreen, students will explore the many ways to present print as sequential images—artists' books, themed portfolios and comics, even fanzines. The course will cover the process from concept to finished and bound multiples. Students will learn methods of making color separations for multicolor prints using traditional hand-drawn and modern photographic techniques. Bookbinding techniques will be demonstrated, including Japanese bookbinding, accordion folding and signature binding. Large-scale digital output is available in the printshop.

Picture-Story/Comic-Strip Workshop

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Katchor (www.katchor.com)

Rethinking the conventions of the comic strip with the goal of finding a personal drawing style and narrative voice is the aim of this course. Studio exercises will help students discover the visual world within their own writing and find literary inspiration through drawing. The course will examine the European precursors of the American comic strip and the work of contemporary alternative comic strip artists, with an eye toward placing the student's work within a larger literary and artistic context.

Comic Book Storytelling Workshop

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Bertozzi (www.nickbertozzi.com)

Stories have a basic, clear format. Within that structure is an exponentially expanding set of narrative choices that the author can make. Add to that the myriad devices used in constructing works using words and pictures and it's often difficult to know where to begin telling a story. This workshop will examine the theories behind storytelling using practical exercises to help students recognize and use the components of a good story.

Cartooning Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

ADVANCED ILLUSTRATION AND CARTOONING ELECTIVES FOR NO CREDIT

ILD-3328

Advanced Painting

Monday 3:00-5:50

One semester: no credit

Instructor: G. Crane

This course is an in-depth study of painting materials and techniques. We will be painting the figure as a way of understanding composition and anatomy, with particular attention to light, form and color. Additional critique of outside personal projects will be addressed and development of your personal visual vocabularies will be encouraged.

ILD-3224

Advanced Drawing for Illustrators and Cartoonists

Friday 3:00-5:50

One semester: no credit

Instructor: K. Mayerson (www.derekeller.com or www.sevenseven.com)

This course will be a place where the student can develop both observational and conceptual skills. Models will be available for those inclined toward direct representation; for those concerned with more stylized or abstract directions, critique and encouragement will be offered. A veritable one-room schoolhouse, this course is designed to enable the student to gain the greatest personal growth in relation to their drawing abilities.

Department of Interior Design

Degree requirements:

Successful completion of all course requirements

78 studio credits in interior design classes

30 humanities and sciences credits, including the Humanities

Distribution Requirements

12 art history credits in interior design

Interior Design First-Year Requirements

Below is a listing of required courses for the foundation year. These courses must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College. If you have received credits in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact the Interior Design Department chair, Jane Smith, so that you can arrange to take some elective courses.

IDD-1010

Basic Building Systems

One semester: 3 credits

This course will introduce the foundation and materials and methods of interior drafting and basic building systems. The goal is to enable students to understand and complete a variety of drawing types used in the design of interior space.

Topics will include: tools and materials used in drafting, surveying a space, converting survey information into a plan, plans, elevations, axonometric drawings, detail drawings. Guided by the lecture material and studio projects, students will prepare a series of drawings to enhance their understanding of how drawings are prepared and used in the development of an interior space design.

IDD-1020

Perspective Drawing

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on architectural sketching and graphic skills necessary to complete quick interior sketching and to present, communicate and develop interior ideas and concepts quickly and graphically. A journal will be required. Course work will support drawings for IDD-1060, Designing Interiors, where possible.

IDD-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

The majority of the class sessions will be spent at various New York City locations, learning to draw the particular details of an environment. Composition will be stressed along with line drawing and the use of tone to capture the sometimes subtle changes and differences of the environment. Capturing the mood of the building and its locale are one of the major class goals. Students will be encouraged to develop selectivity in order to stress a focal point or area of interest.

IDD-1050

Design Concepts

One semester: 3 credits

This course is designed to help students develop a personal vision within the context of the design process. Basic design principles for interiors and principles of visual thinking and communication will be introduced through two- and three-dimensional projects. Line, mass, texture, volume, form, shape, configuration, symmetry, vista, light, color, proportion and scale will be covered.

IDD-1060

Designing Interiors

One semester: 3 credits

As the first step in designing interiors, this course will organize the creative design process into a number of distinct steps, including: a study of client and user needs, writing the design "program," understanding the building that will house the interior design, diagramming activity areas, drawing the interior, analyzing and selecting materials and furniture, presenting the design and follow-up. Small interior design projects will serve as the focus of the semester, requiring the application of basic skills and visual design studies from all other courses.

IDD-1140

Drawing II: Drawing and Color

One semester: 3 credits

This course will begin as a continuation of IDD-1030, Drawing I. The first five sessions will focus on the rendering of interior and architectural details and ornament with the emphasis on surface characteristics and proportions. The next 10 sessions will incorporate color theory for interior design, and will focus on the history, language, technology and psychology of color as well as how to use color in design sketching and plans.

IDD-1160

Computer-Aided Drafting and Design

One semester: 3 credits

This course is an introduction to computer-aided design and drafting (CAD). The overall concepts and ideas explored are the same as those in a manual drafting course, even though they will be taught through AutoCAD, the industry standard software program. The concepts covered will enable students to use most CAD programs. The concepts of layout, line weights, dimensions and annotation will be explored. We will approach drawings as a visual communication tool that is both artistic and informative. The course will revolve around a semester-long project that will result in a drawing that contains the various types of plans, elevations and sections of an interior space. Three hours per week of scheduled lab time is required. A teaching assistant will be available during lab time to help students with problems they may encounter in completing assignments.

IDD-1170

Basic Computer Design

One semester: 3 credits

This course will focus on the basic operational skills of the computer and the development of creative techniques in 2D and 3D using Adobe Photoshop, Illustrator and InDesign. Students will start learning about the computer's operating system, how to scan images at the proper resolution and develop an archive of work. The course will cover basic graphic design principles of layout and design through hands-on exercises to create business cards, letterheads, logos, layout grids, illustrations and books.

IDD-2130

Current Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals I

Fall semester: no credit

Two required lectures on current issues in interior design will be held by visiting professionals. Scheduling of the lectures will be announced during the semester.

IDD-2135

Current Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals II

Spring semester: no credit

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see IDD-2130 for course description.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020

Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

Note: Courses are listed in numerical order.

IDD-2010

Design Studio I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Limited to 15 students

This fundamental studio course is designed to introduce basic design issues and principles. Skills will be developed via three-dimensional sketch problems varying in levels of complexity and duration, culminating in a final project for juried presentation. It will integrate third-semester interior design course materials, including perspective and rendering as well as behavioral science course material from HPD-2030, Social Science and Environmental Issues I. CAD and other computer 2D and 3D programs will be an option.

IDD-2020-A

Drawing III: Rendering and Color

Friday 9:00-1:20

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Spokowski

This course will focus on interior rendering, with an emphasis on drawing perspective and color. Sketching and resource courses such as IDD-1020, Perspective Drawing, and HPD-2030, Social Science and Environmental Issues I, will be incorporated. Constructing perspectives from plans and elevations and rendering perspectives with a variety of media will be covered. Where possible, projects for IDD-2010, Design Studio I, will be explored.

HPD-2030-A

Social Science and Environmental Issues I

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Kettler

Centering on six social science themes as they relate to environmental issues, this course surveys issues that include: the impact of communications technology on social organization in the environment, demographic changes as signals to social and design change, the role of professions in environmental change. Course readings and research assignments will focus on the process of discovery and investigation in the social sciences, basic research methods and organizing the logical presentations of ideas.

IDD-2030

Building and Interior Systems I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Ottaiano

This course will present the principles and practice of building and interior construction systems. The purpose of this course is to enable students to complete a set of construction drawings from the initial survey of a space to the final plans, specifications and details of an interior design project. Building construction, interior construction (walls, ceilings, flooring), lighting, electrical, plumbing and mechanical, HVAC, acoustics, life safety, building codes, barrier-free codes and testing standards will be covered. Professional and business practices will be discussed. Visits to interiors under construction will be included when possible; the details of interior design elements will be studied both through direct observation and drafting. CAD will be used as much as possible. There will be an emphasis on developing drafting skills and lettering to complement AutoCAD skills.

HPD-2040-A

Social Science and Environmental Issues II

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Kettler

Part two of this yearlong sequence will begin with an investigation of social organization and government as they relate to environmental utilization and design; economics and resource allocation related to social movements; and current social science research on the impact of our built world—interiors, buildings, cities—on people.

IDD-2060-A

Drawing IV: Advanced Rendering

Friday 9:00-1:20

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Spokowski

A course focusing on the development of multimedia rendering techniques using pen-and-ink, ink line with color, marker with pencil and watercolor/tempera. Advanced interior residential and commercial subjects, including those from IDD-2070, Design Studio II, will be explored. Individual rendering techniques will be developed and reinforced.

IDD-2070

Design Studio II

Monday 3:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Limited to 15 students

Students will be given a wide range of projects of increasing levels of complexity and scope to expand design skills. A final juried project will be presented that demonstrates the application of previous course material, including principles of design, color, perspective and rendering as well as the course material in HPD-2040, Social Science and Environmental Issues II. Barrier-free design for the handicapped will be considered. CAD will be an option for students.

Building and Interior Systems II

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Ottaiano

A continuation of IDD-2030, Building and Interior Systems I, the goal of this course is the development of an overall understanding of the building process and the technical aspects of interior design. Emphasis will be placed on the further development of architectural drafting and lettering skills to complement computer-aided drawing (AutoCAD). Professional business practices will be discussed as they relate to the process of design. Areas covered will include professional ethics, fees, building laws and codes, project and team management, as well as health, safety and welfare regulations.

History of Interiors and Architecture I: Western Architecture from Prehistory to the 21st Century

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course is concerned with the social, economic, material and structural reasons for the development of the various styles of architecture in the ancient, medieval, Renaissance and modern worlds.

IDD-2110-AHistory of Interiors and Architecture II: Interiors of the Italian and French Traditions to 1900

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course will present the Italian interior from Pompeii, concentrating on the 15th-century Renaissance through to the 17th-century baroque. It will also examine the French interior from the Middle Ages, emphasizing 17th-century baroque, 18th-century rococo and neoclassical manifestations. The relationships between France and Italy, and their influences upon other areas of the European continent will be explored. The interdependence of interior architecture, furniture and accessories will be stressed.

IDD-2130-ACurrent Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals I

Fall semester: no credit

Two required lectures on current issues in interior design will be held by visiting professionals. Scheduling of the lectures will be announced during the semester.

IDD-2135-ACurrent Issues in Interior Design by Visiting Professionals II

Spring semester: no credit

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see IDD-2130 for course description.

IDD-3010-AMaterials and Finishes

Wednesday 3:00-6:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Gesimondo

The various materials that define our interior environment will be studied in depth. We will examine a wide range of manufacturing processes and applications, as well as the limitations of different materials. The course will provide a foundation for students to understand, identify, select and apply materials for interiors. The midterm and final project will be the culmination of a fully designed architectural and furniture finish scheme for a large-scale corporate interior project. Lectures will be supplemented by trips to showrooms; visiting design professionals and industry sales representatives will be included.

IDD-3020Design Studio III

Monday 9:00-11:50 and 1:00-3:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Limited to 15 students

This course will present projects that one is likely to encounter in a diverse design practice, including projects for special populations. Students will explore space and uses of geometry. Special emphasis will be given to using models and perspective as tools with which to explore space. CAD will be an option for students. Students will use a variety of drawing techniques to represent their ideas and designs, including hand sketches, hand-drafted plans, AutoCAD and three-dimensional computer programs. Building codes, laws and ADA will be incorporated into class projects. Process books are required for juried presentation of a final project.

IDD-3020-B	M. Hylton

IDD-3030-ALighting Design

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Cameron

This course will explore the techniques and concepts in lighting design: lamps, luminaries, light and color theory; and the psychological, emotional and aesthetic effects of light and color. There will be a studio project that includes the use of architectural drafting to prepare a reflected-ceiling plan, the selection of lighting fixtures, as well as project scheduling and costs.

IDD-3050Design Studio IV

Monday 9:00-11:50 and 1:00-3:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Limited to 15 students

The application of drawing and drafting techniques to a variety of interior projects is the focus of this course. Students will develop a strong concept to guide design decisions and utilize a solid design process. A variety of drawing techniques will be employed to represent ideas and designs, and students will work with hand sketches, hand-drafted plans, AutoCAD and three-dimensional computer programs. Interior design and behavioral science course materials will be integrated. Barrier-free design for the handicapped will be considered.

IDD-3050-B	M. Hylton

IDD-3090-AThesis Research

Thursday 9:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Kettler

As preparation for the thesis design project, this course will lead the student through project selection, background research and survey of the design project "type," strategies for determining client and user needs, program writing, location and building selection, zoning, landmark and code investigation.

IDD-3100-AHistory of Interiors and Architecture III: Interiors of the English and American Traditions to 1900

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course will present the English interior from the Middle Ages, emphasizing the 18th and 19th century developments, as well as the complex inter-relationships with Continental styles. The American dependence upon this tradition from the 17th century onward to creative freedom will be explored. The totality of interior architecture, furniture and decorative arts will be stressed.

IDD-3110-AHistory of Interiors and Architecture IV: Interiors of the 20th Century

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course gives an in-depth picture of the richness and diversity of 20th-century design in European and American interiors, furniture and decorative arts. Topics will include: the Viennese Secession, Eclecticism, International Style, Art Deco, 1950s and 1960s modern and postmodern.

IDD-3201-AUsing Photoshop for Web Design of Interior Projects

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Calabrese

Limited to 14 students

This course will introduce students to ways in which Adobe Photoshop can be used in creating interior spaces. Students will learn the basic features of the program as well as the most effective ways to enhance their images and create images with type. The course will cover the tools, functions and techniques of Photoshop used to create graphic documents. Topics will include: converting files from AutoCAD, Web and print graphic standards; layer hierarchies; saving and exporting file options; various filters, tools and effects available in the Photoshop environment. Coupled with Adobe ImageReady and Macromedia Dreamweaver, each student will make a Web site to showcase his or her work.

IDD-3212-A3D Studio VIZ for Interior Design

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Lam

Limited to 14 students

AutoDesk 3D Studio VIZ will be used to create a virtual three-dimensional interior environment. Emphasis will be on scene setting, lighting and textures, and the importance of problem-solving within an architectural space using the tool sets available with VIZ. Students will be required to complete a preliminary walk-through and a video output of their projects. Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Adobe Photoshop and AutoCAD.

IDD-3213-AMultiple Digital Media for Interior Design

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 14 students

Digital media representation of an interior space with a practical and conceptual emphasis on compositing multiple renderings, masks and digital photography to produce a sequence of simulated "film stills" is the focus of this course. Each student will document, measure and photograph an existing interior and then use this information to develop a set of 2D AutoCAD drawings. These drawings will be imported into 3D Studio Max and used as an underlay to construct an accurate 3D computer model. We will then start the rendering process, and students will learn how to light the computer model and develop textures for the interior surfaces. Multiple renderings will be achieved using Adobe Photoshop. Each student will learn how to develop highly complex Photoshop files, capable of producing multiple new "readings" of the space. Students will design a narrative for the stills; these images will be suitable for portfolio inclusion.

IDD-3317-AGreen Design

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Sustainable design is an important strategy in today's design of the built environment, and clients are embracing it as part of their business models and mission statements. This course is geared toward the study of sustainable design strategy as related to LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design). Through case studies (in both the public and private sectors) and class projects, students will explore sustainable environmental design, as well as prepare for the LEED certification process.

IDD-4010-ADesign Studio V: Thesis

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Lee, N. Lewis

This will be a significant design project of the student's choosing. Student work is expected to incorporate all prior course material, and will culminate in a jury presentation to visiting design professionals.

IDD-4030-AProfessional Practice I

Thursday 1:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Belfiore

This is the first part of a two-semester course that explores the nature of the client-designer relationship, with special attention to providing marketable skills that clients are interested in procuring. Mutual expectations are identified, along with developing a working knowledge of standard forms of agreement. Resources necessary to provide services such as the organization of the office; managing people, time and money; and recognizing social styles of interaction will be covered. Students will have an opportunity to prepare and present proposals for interior design services to guest critics. This course emphasizes the importance of communication through comprehensive content, attractive graphics and oral presentation. The second semester will focus on being an entrepreneur and building a business within the interior design profession.

IDD-4035-A (previously IDD-4030, second semester)Professional Practice II

Tuesday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 7 weeks, no credit (begins 1/8)

Instructor: J. Smith

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see IDD-4030, for course description.

IDD-4050-ADesign Studio VI: Thesis/Portfolio

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Lee, N. Lewis

Students will complete the thesis project started in IDD-4010, Studio V: Thesis, and revise previous projects to complete their portfolios. This course incorporates all prior course material and will culminate in a jury presentation by visiting industry professionals.

IDD-4060-ABasic Textile Science

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Rand

This course will focus on a comprehensive study of textiles, with an emphasis on textiles for interiors. Topics will include: basic textile science, performance, product labeling, textile testing, care and an introduction to textiles used in residential and commercial interiors. Technical considerations such as fire codes and what effects they have on design applications will also be covered. Green design projects will be included.

IDD-4110-APortfolio Development

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Spokowski

This course is intended for seniors to develop and produce a brochure/book of their interior design projects and related materials. Using different digital applications, paper formats and other materials, students will explore ways to present their project information in creative and innovative ways. The student will develop mock-up brochures leading to a finished book for promotional purposes at the end of the semester. Organization methods using different color or visual keys, different typefaces and sizes, will be developed. Students will digitize any previous work (studio projects, drawings, renderings, etc.) so they can be used in a book or brochure form.

IDD-4272-AAdvanced AutoCAD 3D Modeling

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Jakubowski

Limited to 14 students

This course will look at ways to take an existing two-dimensional drawing and create a three-dimensional virtual model from start to finish. While we will not use any rendering packages, we will touch upon the proper ways to create models so that they can be rendered using third-party packages such as VIZ Render, 3D Studio VIZ, form•Z, AccuRender, and others.

IDD-4999-AInterior Design Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

International Studies

Painting in Florence

Summer semester

Instructor: P. Hristoff

This program is for serious painters at the advanced level who wish to spend up to three unforgettable weeks in the cradle of the Renaissance. Students will work in the studio and paint on location: in the gardens of an ancient palace, in a bustling piazza or from a quiet hilltop overlooking the city—magnificent sites that throughout history have attracted people from all over the world. The objective of the course is for students to experience Florence on their own terms and to render that experience on canvas. It will include guided visits to museums and historic sites.

While punctual class attendance is mandatory, the evenings and weekends are yours to explore the myriad offerings of this fabled city, from flea markets and boutiques to dining at a local trattoria or an elegant four-star restaurant. Students can also visit nearby towns such as Pisa, Siena and Lucca, or take a weekend excursion to Venice or Rome. The beaches of the Mediterranean are about an hour away by train. Accommodations at Youth Firenze 2000, a modern hostel near the Arno River, are double occupancy, with private bathrooms. Continental breakfast at a local café is included. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

Course	Dates	Credits	Tuition
IPD-3102-A	May 25 – June 9	2	$2,900
IPD-3103-A	May 25 – June 16	3	$3,500

Painting in Barcelona

Summer semester

Instructors: T. Carr, C. Miquel

Spend up to three weeks painting in the city that inspired Pablo Picasso, Joan Miró, Antoni Tàpies, Susana Solano and Antoni Gaudí. Classes will be conducted in the spacious studios at the Escola d'Arts Plàstiques i Disseny (LLOTJA), where a distinguished faculty will help you to clarify your artistic vision and explore new directions in your work.

The program is divided into two sections, each conducted by a different faculty member, who will organize the course and critique the work. Students may work with any style, medium and subject they choose. Classes will be held Monday through Friday and a walking tour of the city and visits to the Miró Foundation, the Picasso Museum and Gaudí's La Pedrera are included. Weekends are yours to explore this Olympic city's Gothic and modernist quarters, Gaudí's architecture and visit its many outstanding museums. You may travel to Madrid, Bilbao or Girona for the weekend.

The program offers you an opportunity to do serious work, combined with a European adventure filled with artistic inspiration. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

Digital Photography in Florence

Summer semester

Instructor: J. Rudnick

Surround yourself with the magnificent art and architecture of the birthplace of the Italian Renaissance. Photographers are invited to spend up to three inspiring weeks in School of Visual Arts' Digital Photography in Florence program.

The course will examine the artistic vision and camera control needed in image-making, and will include daily one-on-one review of each student's photography as well as weekly critiques. Advice regarding equipment, shooting and lighting techniques, personal expression, aesthetics, mood and emotional content will be offered. Daily access to digital printing facilities will be provided. Students will be directed to work on individual projects that range in scope from fine art to art for commerce and will complete a final body of work for review. This creative study will provide guidance for photographing the city of Florence, its people and the surrounding Tuscan landscape. Guided tours of museums and churches in the area will be included.

While class attendance and punctuality will be mandatory, the evenings and weekends are yours to explore the culture and traditions of this engaging metropolis, whether it's wandering through flea markets, shopping in boutiques, sampling Tuscan cuisine, or enjoying excursions to Siena, Lucca or Chianti.

Prerequisite: Two semesters of basic photography, a working knowledge of Adobe Photoshop and digital printing is required. Students will need to supply their own digital camera (4 megapixel, or higher), storage media, cables and a copy of the appropriate download software. Note: A slide portfolio is required for review and acceptance to this program.

Tuition includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and double occupancy accommodations.

Course	Dates	Credits	Tuition

IPD-3403-A

Cinema in Toulouse

June 11 – 29

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Lacoste

Tuition: $3,500 (includes guided tours, daily Continental breakfast and dormitory accommodations).

This unique three-week directing program in Toulouse, located in the southwest of France on the banks of the Garonne River, offers a journey of exploration and discovery into the craft of directing. Students will write a short scene and then direct the scene in Toulouse, and work with trained actors at various locations throughout this beautiful medieval city. Working with a distinguished faculty and students at the prestigious Ecole Supérieure d'Audiovisuel, students will be immersed into one of the most important areas of filmmaking, the actor-director relationship. Mentored individually by a French director, students will learn directing techniques, the importance of rehearsal, communicating effectively with actors and collaboration on a production set. Each student will also work in various production crew positions during the program. This program is a rare opportunity to direct overseas.

For further information contact Salvatore Petrosino, in-residence coordinator, at 212.592.2194; fax: 212.592.2115; e-mail: spetrosino@sva.edu.

OVERSEAS EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

The International Studies Exchange Programs provide students with the opportunity to live and study overseas for one semester. Studio credit completed in the participating exchange school is transferable.

SVA has exchange agreements with the following schools:

FRANCE

Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts (ENSB-A)
Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Arts Décoratifs (ENSAD)
Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Arts Graphiques (ESAG)
Ecole Supérieure d'Audiovisuel (ESAV)

ITALY and SPAIN

Istituto Europeo di Design (IED)

THE NETHERLANDS

Rietveld Academy of Art & Design
Willem de Kooning Academy

NORWAY

Staten Handverks og Kunstindustriskole (SHKS)

PORTUGAL

Centro de Arte & Comunicação (ARCO)

SWITZERLAND

Hochschule für Gestaltung und Kunst Zürich (HgKZ)

The exchange program is available to the following majors only: Photography, Fine Arts, Illustration, Graphic Design, Interior Design, Film and Animation. To be eligible, you must be a full-time matriculated degree candidate, working toward your BFA degree, and have junior standing by the fall 2007 semester. Applications are due September 15, 2007.

Applicants must submit a completed application form, unofficial SVA transcript, two letters of recommendation and slides or JPEG images of their work. Applications are due by September 15, 2007. (Students accepted into the program will study overseas during the Spring 2008 semester.)

Students, who are accepted into the program and travel overseas, will receive an exchange stipend, which will be applied to their spring 2008 tuition. The stipend is valid only for those who will study overseas.

Note: SVA students are not required to pay the visiting school's tuition; however, you are required to pay for any course and registration fees that apply, as well as transportation, housing and meals.

For more information and an application, please contact the Office of International Studies, 212.592.2543; e-mail, studyabroad@sva.edu.

Department of Photography

First-Year Requirements

Freshman photography majors must successfully complete all foundation-year requirements by the end of their first year at the College.

Following are seven photography foundation programs, all composed of the required courses. Please look over each schedule carefully and decide which would suit your needs best. Since each program has a limited number of seats, it is a good idea to have alternative choices in the event that your first preference has already been filled. If you have received credits in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact your departmental advisor to arrange to take some elective credits.

Students are also required to complete a portfolio review at the end of each year. Any student who does not submit a portfolio will not be allowed to begin classes the following semester until the portfolio has been evaluated. Students may enter their next year level only after all photography requirements have been satisfied in their current year.

AHD-1060 History of Photography I

One semester: 3 credits

An introduction to the history of photography, this course will begin with a discussion of the invention of photography and continue through the work of the present day. Major photographers and trends in photography will be covered in detail.

AHD-1065 History of Photography II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1060 for course description.

HCD-1010 Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned for all sections will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

HCD-1020 Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. Please refer to the general humanities and sciences degree requirements as outlined at the beginning of the humanities and sciences section of this book.

PHD-1030 Photography Workshop I

One semester: 3 credits

A black-and-white-photography course with an emphasis on individual growth through extensive darkroom work and group critique. Printing, negative development, bleaching, spotting and mounting are covered. Assignments will be given, and students are required to submit a portfolio at the end of the semester.

Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-1035 (previously PHD-1030, second semester) Photography Workshop II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-1030 for course description.

PHD-1040 Introduction to the Principles of Photography

One semester: 3 credits

This series of lectures and demonstrations will supplement the student's practical experience in PHD-1030, Photography Workshop I. Sessions will investigate the principles of photographic materials and techniques and discuss how to apply them effectively to achieve improved picture quality. Topics include: exposure and exposure meters, development, light and filters, printing materials and techniques, contrast control, cameras and lenses, practical testing, sources of information.

PHD-1080 Introduction to Digital Imaging

One semester: 3 credits

Emphasis will be placed on gaining a fundamental understanding of the Adobe Photoshop application. Among the topics covered will be file management, image size and resolution, flatbed and film scanning, color modes, file formats, painting and editing tools, image adjustments, working with layers and layer masks, and output options. By the end of the semester, students should have a basic understanding of how to work with photographs in a digital environment.

PHD-1090Foundation Symposium

One semester: 3 credits

Foundation Symposium is designed to introduce the student to a variety of photographic practices and ideas. The symposium is composed of six (6) five-week courses that will explore the following topics.

Career

The practical information and career opportunities available to photographers will be discussed in depth. Topics will include: procedures for introducing work to fine art and commercial industries; résumés, statements and other supportive materials; effective strategies for promotion and marketing; basic business practices.

Commerce

This course will give an overview of how photography, both vintage and contemporary, is valued and priced in the fine art market. Recent trends in contemporary photography are discussed, and field trips to New York galleries are required. The use of photography in magazines will also be discussed and students will research the possibilities available in editorial, fashion and travel assignments.

Language

The many ways that photography and language interact to create meanings is the focus of this course. We will examine a broad range of work—advertising, fine art, documentary, photojournalism, fashion—to see how text can shape the way we understand images, and vice versa. Class time will be devoted to in-class assignments, discussions, slide presentations and critiques.

There is a large body of photographic art that utilizes the physical presentation of the imagery as an integral part of the artwork. We will explore photo-based works, such as Dada collage, constructed pieces and installation work. Students will be encouraged to expand their appreciation of the ways in which photographs are presented, and explore alternative approaches to presentations, encouraging a reevaluation of how a photographic image can be utilized.

Take Photos, Add Techniques, Stir

This class combines photography with a range of art techniques to create expressive, innovative pictures. The use of paint, collage and alternative photography will be applied to photographs based on a study of principles of visual perception.

Video

The goal of this production/discussion course is to expose photography students to contemporary video art and to encourage a dialogue between photography and video, both technically and conceptually, as part of a larger art practice. Genres will include mock documentary, music video, reality television and advertising. Each student will produce two video pieces (one to three minutes in duration).

PHD-2050

Photography on Assignment

One semester: 2 credits

Instructor: S. Klein

This intermediate course in photographic nuts and bolts will include technical demonstrations and assignments concerning the use of meters, filters, lighting, flash and color film, among other topics. The course will also include discussions on how to get started in the photographic marketplace, with special emphasis on meeting the visual needs of clients who require promotional photographs (actors, musicians). Student work will be critiqued individually.

PHD-2060

Fall semester: 2 credits

Photo Critique initiates an in-depth conversation about photography as driven by content, and each student's exploration of subject matter. Intention and articulation will be emphasized. Please refer to individual course descriptions that follow.

Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-A

Photo Critique I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Vezzuso

Self-expression will be explored in this course. Each student will work toward the production of a single body of work. Awareness of contemporary photography and guest lecturers will be part of this course. Equally important, the language of critique will be explored, along with a vocabulary that will enable students to express new ideas. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-BPhoto Critique I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: M. Lippman

Students will engage in developing, expanding and challenging their image-making to discover their unique vision as well as to arrive at an intensely personalized style and statement. Photography is an extraordinary creative tool for exploring our lives and ourselves. The work involved in this exploration, however, requires a commitment to hard work and an investment in making the time for one's work. Students will be required to dig deeply into their own resources and their own lives. They will be encouraged to explore and stretch their talents and to take those talents seriously. Students will examine new techniques while continuing to refine others; work on, or work out, some new concepts and produce new work with a strong personal voice. There will be a strong emphasis on taking risks. This course will include guest artists; weekly assignments to incite the imagination, allow spontaneity and indulge fantasy; and tough and loving critiques of student work. Note: Please bring one photograph to the first session.

PHD-2060-CPhoto Critique I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: E. Weeks

This course will explore using the medium of photography for self-expression. By harnessing the passion of the photographic process, analyzing intentions before and after making the picture, and submitting the results to constructive criticism, students will create a strong, cohesive and expressive body of work. The course is structured around extensive group critiques. Students must be self-motivated and able to create and produce individual assignments of their choice. At the end of the semester, students are required to submit an artist's statement to accompany their work. There will be class trips to contemporary art galleries specifically relating to students' work. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-DPhoto Critique I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: F. Backstrom

This course is built around exchange in constructive and informed group critiques in order to develop, expand and challenge each student's images. The analysis of intentions and the work will teach students the language of critique, in order to enable a more precise discussion of new ideas. Students will work independently, while being encouraged to take risks, include new concepts and refine existing ones to build a new body of work. Ideas in contemporary photography, as well as the role of the photographic image in a larger society will be explored through readings, slides, visiting lecturers and trips to galleries and museums. Throughout the semester, a written artist's statement will be developed. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-EPhoto Critique I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: M. Joseph

This course will focus on your pictures and the exploration of everything relating to them (your artistic practice). You will begin to define who you are—as an artist and as a photographer—while building a body of photographs through the rigorous pursuit of your ideas, from conception to realization. Gallery and museum visits are regular components of this course, as are group discussions as well as the constructive and articulate criticism of each student's artwork. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-FPhoto Critique I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: J. Williams

The making of a photograph is not something that only occurs in the fraction of a second when the shutter is released. It is an ongoing process that requires attention, receptiveness and creativity. The capacity for creativity, to see the world as fresh and new, lies in every person. This course will provide an environment where students are encouraged to work undeterred within their creative processes, and hopefully take some risks. Each week, students will present work for class critiques and participate in informed and constructive discussions. The goal is to assist each photographer in discovering and nourishing a personal vision (how to place oneself in relation to what one perceives) and in mastering the requisite tools and materials. Students are regularly exposed to the works of established and emerging artists through slides, books, films, and gallery and museum visits. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2060-GPhoto Critique I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: R. Rothman

The making of a photograph begins with our own sense of what is significant. In this course, students will be encouraged to develop an approach to photography that is both personally meaningful and visually cogent. We will begin with a review of each student's portfolio and goals. Class critiques will emphasize the importance of group participation and critical discussion in a supportive and serious environment, which is intended to assist in portfolio development. Students will be encouraged to follow their instincts and work toward a personal vision, while being regularly exposed to the work and ideas of well-known and emerging photographers through slide presentations, films, readings and current exhibitions. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2065Photo Critique II

Spring semester: 2 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see the corresponding section of PHD-2060 for course description. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-2080Intermediate Digital Photography

Spring semester: 2 credits

Students will further their knowledge of image construction, manipulation, retouching and collage techniques, using Adobe Photoshop and software extensions. Emphasis will be placed on an exploration of the full potential of all aspects of the application. In addition to exploring various advanced digital imaging techniques, students will be encouraged to apply these techniques to their work, and to critically examine the profound effects that new imaging technologies are having on the ways we see and make art. A variety of topics will be covered, including advanced selection techniques, shape-and-text tools, channels, paths, blending modes, filter effects, service bureaus, color management, monitor calibration and digital cameras.

PHD-2112-AExperimental Darkroom Techniques I

Friday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Orabona

How many times have you developed your Tri-X in D-76? Are you tired of the same old results? If you want to break out of those photochemical doldrums, take this course. In the first semester, we will explore new ways to use familiar films as well as experimenting with new films and developers. We will experiment with sharp films, grainy films, infrared films as well as some Polaroid products; and also work with a wide variety of developers and toners. The second semester encompasses the realm of the extended print—experiments to challenge your creativity. We will analyze solarized prints and negatives, Polaroid transfers and several nonsilver processes such as calotypes, cyanotypes and gum bichromates.

PHD-2113-A (previously PHD-2112, second semester)Experimental Darkroom Techniques II

Friday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Orabona

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-2112 for course description.

PHD-2133-AGo Shoot Yourself: A Course in Self-Portraiture I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Robinson

The camera is a unique and often surprising source of self-revelation. Self-portraits, in particular, are a great way to explore one's experience, background, feelings and aesthetics. And they're an especially good vehicle for developing personal vision. Technique and formal considerations will be discussed along with ideas about picture-making. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session. Midyear entry with instructor's permission.

PHD-2134-A (previously PHD-2133, second semester)Go Shoot Yourself: A Course in Self-Portraiture II

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Robinson

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-2133 for course description.

PHD-3020-ALecture Series I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: M. Foley

This lecture series will provide an introduction to several aspects of, and approaches to, photographic practices. A diverse group of photographers will show their work and share their experiences, providing information and insight into the requirements of working professional photographers.

PHD-3025-A (previously PHD-3020, second semester)Lecture Series II

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: M. Foley

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-3020 for course description.

PHD-3040Photography Seminar I

Fall semester: 3 credits

A continuation of the discourse begun in PHD-2060, Photo Critique I, this seminar will culminate in a body of work that is self-motivated. A commitment to this process is required, as well as the progression of the students' understanding of their work and the ability to articulate their ideas. Please refer to individual course descriptions that follow.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor
PHD-3040-A	M	12:00-5:50	E. Carucci
PHD-3040-B	Tu	3:00-8:50	E. Weeks

PHD-3040-F	Th	9:00-2:50	J. Craig-Martin
PHD-3040-G	F	12:00-5:50	F. Potash

PHD-3040-APhotography Seminar I

Monday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Carucci

Having mastered the fundamental tools of photographic vocabulary, third-year students have the opportunity to build a body of work that embraces their individual interests and observations. This course will vigorously support these goals. Students need not be cautious and tentative, but fully committed to discovering what they never knew. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3040-BPhotography Seminar I

Tuesday 3:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Weeks

Students will undertake personal projects of their own choosing in a decidedly noncommercial approach to the medium. Discussion on wide-ranging topics, including contemporary photography, will emerge from in-depth critiques of student work. The intentions of the photographer will be continually compared to what is actually present in the photographs, while the process of making work and developing personal intentions and goals will be fully considered. The environment in which all of this is accomplished will be supportive in outlook. Only highly dedicated and inquisitive students who wish to push their work to the next level are urged to enroll. Note: Please bring samples of your work to the first session.

PHD-3040-CPhotography Seminar I

Tuesday 6:00-10:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Maida

In this course, students will work toward the formation of an original body of work in which concept, content, technique and style are equally considered. Students are expected to produce photographs on a biweekly basis, to participate in class discussions, and to use occasional reading and writing assignments to aid in the development of their personal project. Students are strongly encouraged to challenge the conventions of photography to make thought-provoking and persuasive images. Visiting artists will also present their work and critique student work. By the end of the course, students should have a coherent portfolio of pictures that they can speak about articulately. There will be required gallery walks and field trips in addition to class hours. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3040-DPhotography Seminar I

Wednesday 3:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Steiner

This course encourages analysis of concept, process and presentation; utilizing guest speakers, slide presentations, readings, and museum and gallery visits. Critique incorporates in-class discussions of students' work, concepts and goals. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3040-EPhotography Seminar I

Thursday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Lippman

By the third year of study, students have gathered the skills that enable them to make images competently with a camera. Now begins the great journey—to discover, refine and expand the uniqueness and direction of their own vision, as well as their individual aesthetic voice and style. This journey, although deeply satisfying, is a long and hard one that requires time and courage and commitment. Work will be challenging, intense and personal, both in class and out. Students must be prepared and willing to think, feel, explore and push their boundaries; to commit to quality time spent involved with their work, as well as the work of their colleagues. There will be guest artists, field trips, individual assignments and ongoing critiques that will be tough, but loving, and all aimed at helping each student to create a strong, personal, meaningful body of images. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3040-FPhotography Seminar I

Thursday 9:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Craig-Martin

This course will offer students the opportunity to create a coherent and meaningful body of work. Students are encouraged to push the boundaries of traditional picture-making. This involves theory, content, context and quality of the image. Students are required to participate in discussion of one another's work. A range of interests and practices will be expected. Note: Please bring samples of your work to the first session.

PHD-3040-GPhotography Seminar I

Friday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Potash

The intention of this workshop is to motivate the participants to think and to create new work. Students will have the freedom to cross over the barriers of traditional thought in photography by utilizing every possible medium at their disposal. The concerns of other artists will be examined and discussed. Concepts such as process, commitment, culture, myth, evidence, mediocrity, tension, etc., will be analyzed and used as springboards for ideas that can be incorporated into photographic images. This course proposes to provide the impetus for students to produce the best work they have done to date, and leave with the feeling that they have just begun. Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3045 (previously PHD-3040, second semester)Photography Seminar II

Spring semester: 3 credits

PHD-3050Digital Photography I

One semester: 3 credits

Having mastered the fundamental digital processes, each student chooses (from among the third-year course offerings) an area of digital specialization of interest and relevance to their future photographic activity. Please refer to individual course descriptions that follow.

PHD-3050Digital Photography: Fashion and Beauty

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course will cover specialized retouching skills needed to attain successful fashion images. Adobe Photoshop will be the primary software. The course will help students gain increased competence in digital manipulation. Note: Students must bring an external hard drive to each session.

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Ashe

The goal of this course is to develop a working understanding of the materials, practices and aesthetics of contemporary fine art digital printmaking, especially the use of digital color management tools. Through lectures, demonstrations, project-based assignments, as well as studio visits and field trips to digital labs and galleries, students will expand their proficiency and confidence in producing a personal artistic vision through various digital printmaking techniques. Included with the practical aspects of the course will be an exploration of historical and contemporary uses of digital imaging in commercial and fine art photography. Note: Students must bring an external hard drive to each session.

PHD-3060Contemporary Photography

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course has two purposes. The first is to provide an overview of contemporary photography and its trends since 1960—not only fine art, but also advertising, photojournalism and any other commercial applications—presented not as an isolated academic study, but something relevant to working today. The second purpose is to encourage students to develop their own criteria for looking at photographs. Students will be required to report on current developments, and their perception of and reaction to contemporary photography. They will be required to write about and to make presentations on their observations in an attempt to formulate and to articulate their own critical aesthetic.

PHD-3106-APrinciples of Color for Photographers

Wednesday 12:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Armstrong

This course will focus on how to unleash the power of color to give maximum impact to your photographs. Whether it's fine art, editorial or commercial work, successful photographers know the secrets of color that painters and designers use to create effective color images. Exploring both the technical and aesthetic aspects of color, we will examine such topics as the psychology and symbolism of color, contrast and harmony of colors, and the interaction of colors. Taking advantage of New York's resources, we will visit galleries and museums to examine contemporary color and to see how great painters of the past handled color. Through lectures, slide presentations, shooting assignments and critiques, students will gain a core understanding of how color works, which will improve their technical ability to shoot and print, with film or digital technologies, as they learn the aesthetic principles behind creating strong color photographs. Note: This is not a lab course; students should have one semester of color printing.

PHD-3113-ASocial Documentary I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Levin

Photographs are the visual statements of your personal view of the world. Finding a subject that excites you may be closer than you think. You do not have to travel thousands of miles to different cultures or venues to find a subject to explore. We will investigate commitment to your vision and various methods of storytelling through visual means. Each week, we will evaluate the building blocks of narrative, with a great deal of time and attention given to the journey as you explore your concept or issue. At the end of the semester, you will produce an editorially appropriate presentation of the project you have chosen to pursue. Note: Students may shoot in black-and-white or color.

PHD-3133-AWriting about Photography I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Yablonsky

Writing about an image can often reveal meaning that is not always evident from visual examination alone. Students are invited to make new discoveries about works by artists, photographers and their own work through a consideration of their written works and that of others. Discussion will involve all kinds of photography—documentary, setup, portraiture, fashion, still life—and such attendant notions as the camera as witness; the responsibilities of the photographer to subject, public and self; the photograph as an identity construct; abstraction and aesthetics in photography; the issue of exploitation; the impact of technology on the making and viewing of a photograph; and so on. Students will be given opportunities to pursue writing projects of personal interest.

PHD-3151

Art and Commerce

Monday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Crump

Are there distinctions between making work for personal expression and for public consumption? Many of these lines have been blurred, when museums are hosting retrospectives of fashion photographers and magazine art directors scour galleries for new talent. In an industry which breeds fierce competition, a photographer's most effective artillery may well be his ability to stay true to his personal vision, even when producing commissioned images. This course will consider the relationships between these worlds and what this means as students prepare to go into the field with their portfolios. Assignments, critiques and visiting guests will help us to clarify our intentions. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Wallenstein

What do you do with all those photos you have made that are sitting around in boxes? This is a hands-on approach to the photo book using simple bookbinding methods. We will investigate several handmade book structures, including scroll, scrapbook, pamphlet, Oriental fold and fan, as well as the concepts of series, sequence and pacing of images within the books. Books will be examined from the viewpoint of both object and container. An historical overview of book arts, photography books in particular, will be presented. Students will create works from groups of photographs, bound together in completed form. Six to eight books and a group project will be completed. *Note: Open to all students. Photographic Thinking: From Artist's Mind to Viewer's Eye I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Balsys

This course will explore the dynamic relationship that exists between the viewer and the picture in every successful photograph. How can you create a photograph that captures what your imagination holds, and not just what the lens gives you? What can you do to make as sure as possible that the viewer will "get" what you are trying to show? Designed to shorten the gap between the images in your mind's eye and those that show up in the viewfinder, this course will help to develop visual memory and the ability to previsualize the final picture, giving you more control over the internal and external processes that go into the making of powerful photographic statements. Practical exercises, discussions and critiques will be included as well as what tools, materials and technique should be chosen to make the picture as strong as possible. Note: Open to juniors and seniors; sophomores may register with instructor's permission. Please bring examples of recent work to the first session.

PHD-3223Practical Theory

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Umbrico

Limited to 12 students

This critique course will investigate the role of theoretical issues in art and photography, from modernism through postmodernism to the present, in order to understand their relationship to current photographic activity. We will define various artistic forms relative to, or inherent in, photography; through weekly readings, slide presentations and critiques, we will attempt to locate each student's work within the context of these issues, in order to provide a deeper understanding of the work. Students will be expected to bring in new work every two weeks. This course is designed for students who wish to pursue personal artistic expression in their work. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

Thursday 1:30-5:20

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Kawa

This course is designed for students who are seriously interested in fashion. We will cover all aspects of the field: editorial, advertising, beauty and portrait. Both studio, with artificial lighting (tungsten and strobe), and location, with available light augmented by strobe, will be taught. Various camera formats, from 35mm to 4x5", will be used. Emphasis will be on the anatomy of a fashion shoot: working with models, hair and makeup people, editors, art directors, etc. Personal style will be stressed. Prerequisite: PHD-2045, Studio Photography II. Note: No midyear entry.

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: G. Aroch, J. Pluchino

Limited to 18 students

For the photography student with commercial aspirations, this course will be driven by and focused on building a portfolio. Regular portfolio reviews will be balanced by the discussion of practical aspects of the field, from assisting to postproduction, to estimates, invoicing, stock and resale. Guest speakers, including art buyers, photo editors, producers and photo agents will add information and insight. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only. No midyear entry.

PHD-3243-AA Survey of Portraiture

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Schulman

This course will survey the history of portraiture through the study of prominent photographers—Brassai, August Sander, Man Ray, Irving Penn, Berenice Abbott, Joel-Peter Witkin, among others. We will look at the relationships among the photographers and their subjects and examine formal studio portraits to informal street portraiture. The beauty and power of color, as well as black-and-white photographs, will also be discussed. Critique of student work will focus on style and influences. Assignments are included.

PHD-3258-AStill Life: Objects of Desire and Disgust

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Moscovitch

Fruit, lipstick, corpses, skin, insects, purses, diamonds and seashells: all items that have been imaged in modern photographic still life. The Dutch classical masters defined it as an expression of consumption and mortality through static physicality, but today still life images are most often associated with commerce. This course will lead an inquiry into the differences between the historical significance of still life and its modern possibilities, and students will be encouraged to experiment with the genre. Commercial and self-expressive motivations will be equally addressed.

PHD-3261-ASexuality and the Nude

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Culver

The nude and its representational history, and the body as sexual object will be explored in this course, as well as the ways in which photography defines the erotic. Gay, lesbian and transsexual photography, and their censorship, will be examined. Students will be encouraged to develop a portfolio and respond to assignments. Slide lectures that examine 19th- and 20th-century artists who have concentrated on sexual subject matter will provide additional insight. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

PHD-3264-AHumor in Photography

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Robinson

A serious exploration of the humor (deliberate or unintentional) in photographic imagery. Students will examine the work of established photographers who have successfully employed and incorporated humor, study how it has been previously used in their own pictures, and make new work that utilizes humor more effectively and/or subtly. Discussions will focus on visual puns, irony, wit, ingenuity, the comical, the kitschy, the absurd, the incongruous, the ludicrous, the funny, the clever and the just plain dumb. Note: Open to sophomores, juniors and seniors.

PHD-3269-A (previously FID-3266)Photography in Fine Art

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

While pronounced “dead” every so often, the painted “picture” never really goes away. Instead, painting survives (and flourishes) as a result of its collaboration with a medium once perceived to be its greatest foe—photography. This course will examine this historic co-dependence through lectures, gallery visits, guest lecturers and critique of student work. Artists as diverse as Salvador Dalí, Gerhard Richter and Tina Barney will be discussed in relation to art history and in parallel developments in photography and print media. Of central concern will be recognizing the reasoning process and decision-making employed in the production of a work of art—be it a painting-scaled photograph or a snapshot-size painting.

PHD-3274-AForm and Concept

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Vezuso

A broad range of artistic endeavors will be considered in this course—painting, sculpture, literature, music, theater—in an attempt to expand each student’s frames of reference to their own work. While diverse mediums and information will be included, student presentations will be based on individual interests and enthusiasms. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

PHD-3277-AInvestigation and the Private “I” (part I)

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Frailey

The premise of this course is the pursuit of content: the investigation of a sensibility that is unique to each individual. This process is a task of encouragement and permission, with an attitude of risk-taking, experimentation, courage and conviction, and a general subversion of preconceptions about the photographic medium. The agenda is for students to use the medium as a notation and discovery of their thought processes, and as a vehicle to express themselves from their hearts and minds. Inspiration and information will be sought everywhere.

A commitment to this process and a strong desire to develop a body of work are required. All photographic genres welcomed; a sense of humor is appreciated.

Note: Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3363The Secret Sits in the Middle

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Lippman

This course embraces the idea of the image as an outbreathing of a deeply personal self, as a reflection of one’s inner journey. The course is about finding images from the inside out—finding that place within where imagination and intuition, the conscious and the unconscious, begin their dance. It’s about befriending and honoring that inner reality, and discovering (actually, uncovering) our own poetry with a visual narrative that resonates with, rather than evades, our unique history, our dreams and feelings, our center, our soul. The course is essentially about being interested in one’s own sensitized surfaces, which will be additionally stirred and sensitized by readings by guest artists and poets (from Diane Ackerman to Rumi, Carl Jung, bell hooks, to name a few), and through critiques. As Robert Frost said, “We dance around in a ring and suppose, but the secret lies in the middle and knows.” Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

PHD-3386-ATake Photos. Add Techniques. Stir.

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Burrell

Techniques taught in this course will take the camera’s image apart and insert an artist’s vision. A series of in-class workshops will show students how to change tone, color, subject matter and composition in a photograph. Solvent transfers, blueprints and chemical “erasers” will reduce the clutter in photographs. Photograms, multiple projections and drawings on acetate will add structure. Homemade lenses and unusual shooting assignments will change the camera’s “drawing.” Paint will mix with photography. Lectures on new theories of perception and traditional rules of academic painting will provide fresh understanding as the camera’s record is turned into expressive pictures. The class does not provide access to darkrooms or computers. Instead, office copiers, slide projectors and one-hour mini-labs will be used as a “daylight darkroom.”

PHD-3388-ALandscape Photography I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Taylor

What constitutes a landscape when so many contemporary visions of exterior spaces seem to be at war with one another? This question will be part of an ongoing discussion as we examine artists as disparate as Sally Mann, Lynn Geismann, Rocky Schenk, Edward Burtynsky, Robert Adams, Edward Weston and Todd Hido, among others. These photographers—past and present—have created mammoth gallery color prints and exquisitely printed 11x14” black-and-white images, depicting everything from rotting corpses to muted, romantic images of gardens created by Louis the XIV. In keeping with this dialogue, students are encouraged to use any format (from pinhole to 4x5”) and any material (from black-and-white to inkjet) to create their view of the outside world. Weekly critiques are often supplemented by gallery or museum visits when important artists are exhibiting. Note: Open to juniors and seniors; sophomores will be admitted only after an interview and portfolio review with instructor. Midyear entry with instructor’s permission.

PHD-3401New Topographics

Friday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Rothman

In response to profound changes postwar America, a group of photographers in the 1970s began to take stock of a landscape that had been transformed by industrial and suburban culture. The acclaimed 1975 exhibition “New Topographics: Photographs of a Man-Altered Landscape” heralded a movement that continues to influence many contemporary photographers. In this course, students will document their vision of the continually changing landscape around them, as we study the work of the photographers in the exhibition, including Lewis Baltz, Robert Adams, Bernd and Hilla Becher. The work of the photographers they have influenced, such as Thomas Struth and Edward Burtynsky, will also be addressed.

PHD-3411Wood, Rubber, Leather and a C-Clamp

Friday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Sinnott

There's a long tradition in photography of the photographer/inventor. This course will help students to develop skills while they pursue a specific project that aids in the realization of their vision and personal style. Students will construct cameras, lenses and accessories; make modifications to existing equipment, or create a device to help achieve specific photographic results. We will learn to select appropriate materials, develop problem-solving strategies and acquire the necessary skills to see projects from concept to finished, functional device. Projects can be large and complex or small and simple. Class time will be spent on design and construction. As work progresses and projects begin to yield images, they'll be adjusted and refined to provide superior results. Participants will be taught basic shop safety and will be supervised when using power tools. Projects will vary each semester.

PHD-3416Display, Presentation, Installation and Collaboration

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Garfield

Focusing on the application of theory and practice, this course will explore the uses of visual information in space. We will concentrate on the numerous implications of the relationship among the artist, the artistic object, the audience and on the use of this triangular relationship in conveying ideas. Using photo editing, drawing and drafting, model construction, computer and digital technology, experimental materials and nontraditional approaches in installations, we will explore aspects of presentation such as formal, spatial and political. Written and oral presentations are included. Discussions, slides and electronic media presentations, guest lectures and student experimentation to explore ideas, purpose, process and signature in exhibition will be employed. Texts will include excerpts from Visual Display, Slater; Before Photography, Galassi; Inside the White Cube, O'Doherty; Space, Site, Intervention, Suderburg; Visual Display of Quantitative Information, Tufte; The Power of Display, Staniszewski; New Media in Late 20th Century Art, Rush.

PHD-3423-APhoto Editing/Curatorial Projects I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Brez, B. Yochelson

The photograph's flexibility, its ability to accrue meaning depending on context, is the basis of this course. Two different but related procedures will be explored: (1) The curatorial process in which exhibitions are formed that explore various themes; (2) Photo editing in which photographs are chosen or assigned to accompany printed text. This is a workshop course, and students will participate in these processes with work from both inside and outside the College community. Pictorial research and an informative attitude are expected, but this is also an opportunity for ideas and themes in each student's individual work to be identified and amplified. Note: No midyear entry.

PHD-3424-A (previously PHD-3423, second semester)Photo Editing/Curatorial Projects II

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Brez, B. Yochelson

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-3423 for course description.

PHD-3448-AVisual Storytelling: Photography in an Editorial Context

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Doyle Bales

This course will provide photographers with a foundation to work in the editorial realm. We will focus on different genres regularly found in magazines, including portraiture, conceptualism, still life, fashion and documentary photography. The use of historical information and visual references, both current and vintage, will be used to introduce each type of photography. Students will be required to explore the photographic genres through assignments, completing them just as you would for a magazine. Assignments include photographing for published and unpublished editorials. You will develop a "pitch" for a magazine and then complete an assignment based on your own story idea. Group discussion will take place upon the completion of each unit regarding the editing and sequencing process. Students will produce a minimum of three 8x10" prints for each assignment and contact sheets for critique. Assignments will begin with a single portrait and work up to a photo essay.

PHD-3474-AThe Personal Image, the Individual Voice

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Linn

This course investigates the complex relationships among what you know, what you are taught and what you learn through actively looking, shooting, printing, editing and looking again. The goal is to find and build a personal vision through a series of experiments. The course is particularly helpful for students who wish to go beyond preconceived agendas of what constitutes a successful photograph. Random chance, hard work, intuition and desire are employed.

PHD-3524No Place Like Home

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Maida

This critique-based course will explore various notions of home and how our understanding of family and domestic space influences our conception of what home is. Weekly class discussions will guide students in developing a series of photographs that directly addresses their own ideas of home and family. The role and treatment of the domestic landscape in contemporary art and film will be considered through slide lectures, film screenings and readings. We will look at the work of photographers and directors including P. T. Anderson, Tina Barney, Richard Billingham, Larry Clark, Philip-Lorca diCorcia, Sally Mann, Lee Friedlander, Nan Goldin, Douglas Sirk, Laurie Simmons, Larry Sultan, Wolfgang Tillmans and John Waters, as well as the work of visiting artists. Students are strongly encouraged to develop a working method to breaking down psychological barriers when photographing in different situations to produce images that are specific, personal and revealing. This course is open to all genres of photography. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only. Please bring your portfolio to the first session.

PHD-3524-B spring

PHD-3598-AOn the Photography of Archaeology

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Blume

After the invention of photography in early 19th-century Europe, photographers began making images of archaeological sites, starting in Egypt, then Greece and the Holy Land, and beyond to the Americas. As we look at selected works within the tradition—from Francis Frith and Gustave le Gray to Lynn Davis and Robert Adams—we will simultaneously explore readings about time and otherness. Readings will include poets such as Sappho, Rumi and Celan, as well as philosophers from the pre-Socratics through to Heidegger and Levinas. Throughout the semester, we will examine photographs of ruins and the photograph's effect on our imagination and the interpretation of culture.

PHD-3671-APhotography and the Cinema

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

Both mainstream and independent cinema can play a subconscious role in the photography student's practice, operating like a deep depository of false memories when confronted by the real. This course will deepen the consideration of the moving image and how it informs the still image, using examples from artists in the 1970s who used photography and found justification in film to work in the current artistic community that appropriates film narrative. We will also address the vigorous relationship of commercial photography with cinema. In addition to lectures and critiques, readings will be assigned and discussed. Emphasis will be placed on articulating ideas as part of an individual's reasoning process.

PHD-3761Digital Video and Photography

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Vezzuso

With the proliferation of digital equipment, making creative and professional-quality video is within reach. Using video cameras or simple point-and-shoot cameras with video capability, students will create conceptual projects using time, movement and sound. Home movies, contemporary art video and works of master filmmakers (Eisenstein, Epstein, Murnau, Antonioni, Fellini and Ray) will be viewed and discussed. Students will be required to make one or more 60-second video relating to their photography project.

PHD-3806-AAdvertising, Graphic Design and Photography

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: TBA

The purpose of this course is to give photography, graphic design and advertising majors the opportunity to work on projects together as they would in the professional community. The course will be collaborative and assignment driven, and will be taught by instructors from each discipline. Note: Open to senior advertising and graphic design majors, and junior and senior photography majors only.

PHD-3852-APhotography in NYC Public Schools I

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Fishman

This course is an outreach program in which third- and fourth-year photography students will go into New York City public high schools to teach basic black-and-white photography to a select group of students. SVA students will assist in the development of lesson plans and assignments, and participate on field trips to take pictures together and learn about film processing and basic darkroom techniques. Students will discuss how to approach a new subject and what elements make a powerful photograph; you will also have an opportunity to discuss your own work, and share your expertise and critical knowledge. This experience will help you to gain confidence through the articulation of technical and aesthetic issues and, in the process, contribute to the future of the medium and the community of New York City.

PHD-3853-APhotography in NYC Public Schools II

Friday 9:00-11:50

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see PHD-3852 for course description.

PHD-4080Photography Thesis I

Fall semester: 6 credits

The function of this course is two-fold: as critical seminar of depth and insight, which helps each student to build a coherent body of unique work; and also as an information forum that prepares students for careers in photography. Please refer to individual course descriptions that follow.

PHD-4080-APhotography Thesis I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: J. Astor

This course offers analysis of each student's previous work with respect to personal expression, quality and direction toward future specialization. We will establish the thesis theme of each student by continually reviewing current work to maintain continuity of the theme. Assignments will focus and reinforce the student's chosen direction. We will develop philosophy, ethics, direction and goals through class discussion of projects; and examine and discuss published photography and the work of established photographers. There will be guest speakers.

PHD-4080-BPhotography Thesis I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: E. Respini

In this course, students will form their ideas and concepts into a coherent body of work. Students are expected to work consistently toward developing their personal vision, and a year-long project. Experimentation is encouraged, as is the consideration of photography in its many permutations and applications. Contemporary artists working in photography and other related media will be discussed. The course includes individual and group critiques, occasional guest speakers, and visits to current exhibitions.

PHD-4080-CPhotography Thesis I

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: W. Nabers

Visual language is not the same as written language. Taking good pictures is not the same as talking a good game. In this course, you will do both. First, how do you make pictures; what do you see? Then, how do we describe it? Thesis develops a grammar for each. Every two weeks, each student will present a growing body of work for class review. In the first semester, subject and presentation are left deliberately open and can include contact sheets, work prints, digital formats, video and installations. The work itself can borrow from art, journalism, documentary, advertising, fashion and performance. Show a lot; don't over edit. This is the time to share work that isn't ready. In the second semester, that developing body of work becomes focused—a portfolio, a book, a show. Students will make and show new pictures to enrich their thesis project, while paying attention to the increasingly important aspects of editing, sequencing and refinement. The subject matter is shaped with an eye for exhibition and publication. This consistent, advanced and coherent body of work will become your calling card upon graduation.

PHD-4080-DPhotography Thesis I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

Not too long ago the worlds of "fine art" and "commercial" photography enjoyed a specific, but uneasy, distance from each other. These two worlds seem closer than ever before, and often cannot be told apart. This course will seek to examine the social, cultural and economic conditions that have redefined both the photographer and the image-driven world. The individual working with a camera may function as a computer technician, businessperson, music video director, self-publisher, filmmaker, and even artist. Consequently, the central theme of weekly discussions will be the symbiotic relationship between art and commerce, and how they continue to reference and inform each other. Mainstream films which feature photographer protagonists (from Blow Up to the recent High Art) will be screened in an attempt to locate the photographer as mythic culture hero and to debate the viability of that image in contemporary society. In addition to selected readings and field trips, observational skills (over technical skills) will be required.

PHD-4080-EPhotography Thesis I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: S. Frailey

This course will assist in the formation of a coherent and unpredictable body of work that challenges and subverts preconceptions of the photographic medium. A commitment to this process and to respond to your classmates' work is required; the course is a collaboration. The intent is to support an interest in all different kinds of photography and the premise that the most meaningful work in all genres shares self-expressive motives.

PHD-4080-FPhotography Thesis I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: C. Chermayeff

This course will consist of an ongoing and in-depth critique of student work, and will offer guidance and encouragement, culminating in a coherent body of work that reflects individual interests. We will also discuss the photographic industry and each student's relationship to particular facets of it. Verbal participation is an essential element of the course.

PHD-4080-GPhotography Thesis I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: A. Frame

This course will grapple with issues that pertain to the development of a coherent body of work, including the relevance and scope of content; the freshness of approach and its suitability to content; the relationship of the work to recent developments in photography; the degree of exploration of an idea and stylistic choice. Field trips to galleries and many short readings from magazines will be assigned.

PHD-4080-HPhotography Thesis I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: B. Sullivan

We will approach photography not as a separate discipline divided into documentary, fine art and commercial, but as a critical and flexible medium, whose internal and external boundaries are less distinct. We will look at photography within a critical frame shared by other visual arts. Students will work along the lines of their own choice, and are encouraged to experiment, change and explore new territory in their work. Some projects will be assigned. Sessions are primarily devoted to critique of student work; slide and video presentations of photographers and artists, past and present, will be included. There will be assigned readings.

PHD-4080-JPhotography Thesis I

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: TBA

The fourth-year represents the culmination of a body of work and the beginning of a professional responsibility to it. Thesis is a rigorous critique class, that demands commitment and concentration, and a sense of shared purpose in the classroom.

PHD-4080-KPhotography Thesis I

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: TBA

Thesis is a collaboration and a dialogue. A coherent and unique body of work is the desired end result, and an attitude of inventiveness, risk, commitment and focus will proceed to that.

PHD-4999-APhotography Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional Sponsor

Students can gain valuable exposure and experience through an internship with a sponsor/employer. Internships are available to full-time juniors and seniors who have earned a cumulative grade point average of 3.25 or better. To receive credit, students must get approval in advance from their department chair, academic advisor and the internship coordinator. Students must work a minimum of 150 hours (10 hours per week); the upkeep of a journal and evaluations throughout the semester are also required. Elective studio credit is awarded for the successful completion of an internship.

Photography in Fine Art

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

While pronounced "dead" every so often, the painted "picture" never really goes away. Instead, painting survives (and flourishes) as a result of its collaboration with a medium once perceived to be its greatest foe—photography. This course will examine this historic co-dependence through lectures, gallery visits, guest lecturers and critique of student work. Artists as diverse as Salvador Dalí, Gerhard Richter and Tina Barney will be discussed in relationship to art history and in parallel developments in photography and print media. Of central concern will be recognizing the reasoning process and decision-making employed in the production of a work of art—be it a painting-scaled photograph or a snapshot-size painting.

PHD-3386-A

Take Photos. Add Techniques. Stir.

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Burrell

Techniques taught in this course will take the camera's image apart and insert an artist's vision. A series of in-class workshops will show students how to change tone, color, subject matter and composition in a photograph. Solvent transfers, blueprints and chemical "erasers" will reduce the clutter in photographs; photograms, multiple projections and drawings on acetate will add structure. Homemade lenses and unusual shooting assignments will change the camera's "drawing." Paint will mix with photography. Lectures on new theories of perception and traditional rules of academic painting will provide fresh understanding as the camera's record is turned into expressive pictures. This course does not provide access to darkrooms or computers. Instead, office copiers, slide projectors and one-hour mini-labs will be used as a "daylight darkroom."

PHD-3416

Display, Presentation, Installation and Collaboration

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Focusing on the application of theory and practice, this course will explore the uses of visual information in space. We will concentrate on the numerous implications of the relationship among the artist, the artistic object, the audience and on the use of this triangular relationship in conveying ideas. Using photo editing, drawing and drafting, model construction, computer and digital technology, experimental materials and nontraditional approaches in installations, we will explore aspects of presentation such as formal, spatial and political. Written and oral presentations are included. Visual and Critical Studies First-Year Requirements

Below is a listing of required courses for the foundation year. These courses must all be successfully completed by the end of your first year at the College. If you have received credits in transfer for any first-year courses and do not have to take the entire first-year curriculum, contact the Visual and Critical Studies Department chair, Tom Huhn, so that you can arrange to take some elective courses.

FDD-1030

Drawing I

One semester: 3 credits

Focusing on the perceptual skills involved in image-making, this course will examine drawing as an act of producing independent works of art and as a preparatory process in organizing a finished work. Projects will be assigned to study the formal elements of art, such as line, space, scale and texture. Materials will include pencil, charcoal, pen-and-ink and wash, among others. Projects range from the figure and still life, for example, to mapping and storyboarding.

FDD-1035 (previously FDD-1030, second semester)

Drawing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see FDD-1030 for course description.

PHD-1003

Photography Workshop

One semester: 3 credits

This course will cover cameras, equipment, negative development, enlarging, bleaching, spotting and mounting. There will be considerable darkroom work with critique and correction of each student's work, with an emphasis on creativity and self-expression through personalized assignments and critiques.

PHD-1080

Introduction to Digital Imaging

One semester: 3 credits

Emphasis will be placed on gaining a fundamental understanding of the Adobe Photoshop application. Among the topics covered will be file management, image size and resolution, flatbed and film scanning, color modes, file formats, painting and editing tools, image adjustments, working with layers and layer masks, and output captions. By the end of the semester, students should have a basic understanding of how to work with photographs in a digital environment.

AHD-1030

Visuality and Modern Art I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first of a two-part course that will examine the interconnections among modern art, modernity and visuality. Topics will include the historical development of "modern" vision, the impact of photography and film on visualization, and the decline of realism and the emergence of abstraction. The goal of the course is to bring together historical, philosophical, scientific and technological studies of visuality and relate them directly to "modern" artistic practice.

AHD-1035

Visuality and Modern Art II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHD-1030 for course description.

HCD-1010

Literature and Writing I

One semester: 3 credits

This is the first part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of modern Western works from among the following authors: Voltaire, Mary Shelley, Jane Austen, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Anton Chekhov, Virginia Woolf, William Faulkner, James Joyce, Zora Neal Hurston and Albert Camus, as well as American and English poetry. The course's focus on writing short essays, improving grammar, coherence and essay development will help prepare students for the Proficiency Examination and elective humanities and sciences and art history courses. The first work assigned will be Voltaire's Candide. Note: Students are required to take and pass the Proficiency Examination during their first semester at SVA. The Proficiency Examination is given approximately six times a year. Students will read a short article and respond with a 500-word essay that demonstrates an understanding of the topic and the mechanics of attribution, sentence and paragraph logic, as well as good grammar and spelling. For dates and sample tests, visit the SVA Web site at: www.writingresourcecenter.com. Questions should be directed to the student's academic advisor or to Neil Friedland, coordinator of writing services, at the Writing Resource Center, 212.592.2575.

HCD-1020

Literature and Writing II

One semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course, which emphasizes writing and critical thinking. Students will read and write about a selection of premodern Western works from among the following authors: Homer, Dante, Geoffrey Chaucer, William Shakespeare and Miguel de Cervantes, as well as Greek and Roman poetry and plays, and the anonymous works Beowulf and Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. Students will write essays and complete a research paper; grammar, essay coherence and essay development will continue to be the focus of writing instruction.

VCD-1030

The Nature, History and Practices of the Image I

One semester: 3 credits

Serving as an introduction to the place of the image in art, society, history and philosophy, this course will begin by examining the relation of the art image to the image in magic, science and religion. The distinction between image, idol, statue and reproduction will be investigated. We will see that both priests and philosophers have struggled to distinguish “true” from “false” images. The commercial image, the sexual image, the image of the human body, as well as self-image and the world as image will be explored.

VCD-1035

The Nature, History and Practices of the Image II

One semester: 3 credits

This course is a comparative study and critical introduction to the image in dance, film, photography, literature, music, and the plastic arts. We will begin with modern materials and work our way back through the centuries both historically and cross-culturally. Prerequisite: VCD-1030, The Nature, History and Practices of the Image I.

VCD-3020	Theories of Imitation
VCD-3050	Art in Theory: 1648-1900
	One elective art history course
	Four elective studio courses

Visual and Critical Studies Fourth-Year Requirements

The recommended course load is 15 credits per semester.

All students should see their advisor about individual credit needs for graduation.

Fourth-year visual and critical studies majors are required to take:

One semester of:

AHD-4140	Senior Seminar
HCD-4010	Essay Workshop
VCD-4020	Art in Theory: 1900-1990
VCD-4050	Aesthetic Theory
VSD-4010	Thesis Studio I
VSD-4015	Thesis Studio II
VSD-4050	Thesis Workshop
	Three elective studio courses

Visual and Critical Studies General Course Listing

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

Elective art history and studio courses can be chosen from among the undergraduate studio offerings in this book, course prerequisites not withstanding. Unless otherwise indicated, all courses in the visual and critical studies general course listing grant three credits per course.

Courses are listed in numeric order.

FSD-1050 Sculpture

As an introduction to the material world, this course explores diverse media and their potentialities to create volume, line and mass. Ranging from the ethereal to the fabricated, materials such as clay, plaster, cardboard, wood, resin and wire will be investigated by exercises in casting, mold-making, installation and site-specific work. Discussion will include concepts of space, gravity and light, among others, as they pertain to three-dimensional form.

CVD-1101 Introduction to Digital Video

The focus of this course is on the individual as videomaker. Students will work in several genres, including documentary, narrative, poetry-video, abstract and diary forms. Similarities and differences between film and video will be discussed as well as when to use each medium. There will be screenings of a wide variety of works from video art to pieces made for television. Analytical and critical skills will be developed and exercised in written work. Ideas, rushes, rough drafts and completed projects will be presented in class and students will participate in critiques of these projects. The basics of video, camera operations, lighting, sound and editing will all be covered. There will be outside readings on aesthetics and technical materials.

AHD-2010 Visual Perspectives of the Premodernist World

The history of art serves as a visual record of the history of ideas. This course will trace the changing nature of representation in painting, sculpture and architecture from the Paleolithic to the early 19th century. Focus will be placed on the rise of civilizations in the Greco-Roman world as well as their roots in non-Western cultures such as those in Asia and Africa. Class discussions, slide presentations and museum visits are a part of this course. Topics include art and ritual, idealism and beauty, iconoclasm, the grotesque and theories of God.

GDD-2020 Basic Graphic Design

This course is an introduction to the various aspects of graphic communication and will cover concepts, typography, layout and general graphic techniques.

VCD-2020 Theories of Vision and Color: A History of Ideas and Applications

From the primary palette of Paleolithic cave paintings to classical disagreements about the colors of the rainbow to Abstract Expressionist painters and light installation artists of the 20th century, there is a spectrum of approaches to the study of light and color: scientific, psychological, aesthetic, mystical, philosophical, and practical. This interdisciplinary course combines a history of ideas with discussions of art theories and artistic practices. Our readings include excerpts from Aristotle, Alhazen, Newton, Goethe, Chevreul, Itten, Kandinsky, Albers, T.D. Jones and Wittgenstein. Lectures will incorporate slide talks, short videos, and listening to music by composers who attempted to demonstrate synaesthesia. We trace the development of color use and the influence of science on artistic practice, ending with the light installations of Thomas Wilfred and James Turrell.

GDD-2090 Computers in the Studio I

no credit

An introduction to visual and graphic design on the Macintosh desktop publishing system, the first semester will introduce basic Macintosh operating systems—Adobe Illustrator and Photoshop, and design layout programs such as Adobe InDesign—as tools for visual creation. The second semester will combine acquired techniques to create layouts, book covers, advertisements, packaging, etc., utilizing complex combinations of the computers and software. A minimum of three hours of lab time is required.

GDD-2095 Computers in the Studio II

no credit

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-2090 for course description.

HLD-2211 Introduction to Poetry

We do not like that which we do not understand. As Marianne Moore wrote: "I too, dislike it: there are things that are important beyond all this fiddle. Reading it, however, with a perfect contempt for it, one discovers in it after all, a place for the genuine." This course will concentrate on the close reading of a wide variety of poems—ballads, nursery rhymes, sonnets and contemporary lyrics—and will attempt to focus on the genuine aspects of the poet's craft and vision. Students will be encouraged to attend poetry readings, and guest poets will be invited to the class. Texts include: Perrine, Sound and Sense; O. Williams ed., Modern Verse; T. S. Eliot, The Waste Land and Other Poems.

HLD-2220 Poetry and Poetics Workshop

In tandem with HLD-2211, Introduction to Poetry, this writing workshop will provide an exploration of the variety of modes of poetic construction. Through weekly writings and readings, the goal is to deepen and expand each student's sense of poetry.

VCD-2240 The History and Practices of Perspective

This course challenges students to understand and to analyze the phenomenon of perspective as a cultural invention. Central topics will include: infinite space and illusion, the fixed eye and the gaze, the relationship between vision and power. The history of perspective will be encountered as it relates to scientific, religious and philosophical movements by way of readings and visual presentations. Texts by Leon Batista Alberti, Erwin Panofsky, Jacques Lacan, Norman Bryson and Martin Jay, among others, will be discussed.

FID-2310 Looking into Music

Many artists approach their own work by way of ideas and properties that are primarily associated with another form of expression. Music, abstract and non-material by nature, has often served as a means of exploring the visual arts. This studio course will consider the interrelationship of the visual arts and music by first examining historic examples through lectures and individual research, then applying some of those principles to student projects and presentations. Beginning with the ancient belief in universal connectedness (such as the Harmony of the Spheres), topics will include: structural comparisons of visual and aural creativity; the nature of abstraction; phenomenological similarities and paradoxes of visual and aural perception; sociological and political activism; artistic and legal implications of appropriation in art and music; the interdependency of visual and sound elements in multi-disciplinary art forms such as theater, film, animation, music video and Web-based art.

FGD-2377 Printmaking: An Introduction

Students will be introduced to different image-making possibilities available in etching, monoprint, linoleum and woodcut. Etching will be explored through the introduction of line etching, soft ground, aquatint and photoetching. The second half of the semester will focus on monoprint, linoleum and woodcut. Starting from a direct application of color in monoprint, students will then explore the use of color separations and overlays to create color linoleum and woodcut prints.

AHD-2831Introduction to Visual Culture

Tired of hearing about art versus design versus advertising versus the comic book? This course is designed to explore the issues of what constitutes culture—who said so, why, and what we can learn from them and change about it. Our “society of the spectacle” engages case studies from sports, the mall, Madonna, James Bond, drag balls, Disneyland, Spike Lee, television, comic books and, yes, the fine arts, for their role in the construction of cultural values. Subtopics range from contemporary myth, the hero and the heroine, the use of stereotypes and icons, attitudes toward gender and ethnicity and their consequences for the meaning and understanding of “culture.” Critical approaches are introduced to explore how cultural norms are established and to develop your own position in the current debates. Readings are from the German Frankfurt and British Birmingham schools of social thought, film and visual theory, studies in popular culture, feminism and cultural theory.

VCD-3020Theories of Imitation

An historical and philosophical examination of various ways in which theories of imitation have considered visual and textual imitations is the focus of this course. Readings will include: Plato, The Republic (excerpts); Denis Diderot, The Paradox of Acting; J. J. Winckelmann, Reflections on the Imitation of Greek Works; Erich Auerbach, “Figura”; David Summers, The Judgment of Sense (excerpt); Oscar Wilde, “Decay of Lying”; Harold Bloom, “Necessity of Misreading”; Rene Girard, To Double Business Bound (excerpt); Paul Ricoeur, “Mimesis and Representation”; Jacques Derrida, “Economimesis.”

VCD-3050Art in Theory: 1648-1900

Centered on the first two volumes of Art in Theory: An Anthology of Changing Ideas (1648-1815 and 1815-1900, respectively), this course will focus on what became the central ideas that informed the European tradition of art theory and criticism. The goal is to acquaint students with the writings and ideas of these times and which were considered to be the foundation of what constitutes art and the art experience.

HSD-3507Visual Science Workshop

This course will explore the science of the tools that visual artists use. While bringing to light the methods scientists use to see their theories come to life, we will study such topics as: the photoelectric effect, microscopy, chemistry of color, biology of vision and the growing dependence of visual techniques on computer science. Activities will include performing experiments in the classroom and with the staff at the American Museum of Natural History.

HCD-4010Essay Workshop

This workshop offers the forum through which the written component for each student’s thesis project is envisioned and developed.

VSD-4010Thesis Studio I

Consisting of weekly critiques by faculty and visiting artists, this course will provide the anchor by which the final thesis project is undertaken.

VSD-4015Thesis Studio II

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see VSD-4010 for course description.

VCD-4020Art in Theory: 1900-1990

Concentrating on the final volume of Art in Theory: An Anthology of Changing Ideas: 1900-1990, this course will focus on the European tradition of art theory and criticism in the 20th century. The goal is to acquaint students with the writings and ideas of the 20th century that were thought to be the foundation of what constitutes art and the art experience.

VCD-4050Aesthetic Theory

An examination of major texts in the modern tradition of aesthetic theory, this course will be based around readings that include: David Hume’s essay “Of the Standard of Beauty,” Edmund Burke’s Enquiry into the Origins of Our Ideas of Beauty and the Sublime, Kant’s Critique of Judgment, Hegel’s Aesthetics (excerpt), Nietzsche’s Birth of Tragedy, and excerpts from the writings of Herbert Marcuse and Theodor Adorno.

VSD-4050Thesis Workshop

Intended to hone the skills necessary for the undertaking of the thesis project, this course will examine the material and intellectual contexts in which the thesis is pursued.

AHD-4140Senior Seminar

The seminar will examine theoretical issues in art through a critical discussion of various current exhibitions. Different texts will be used to provide a sensitizing framework for discussion. Students will be expected to make a class presentation about a particular artist or movement.

Undergraduate Electives Open to All Departments

Updated course information can be viewed using WebAdvisor, which can be accessed through MySVA (<http://my.sva.edu>).

The following elective courses are open to students from all undergraduate and graduate departments. These courses represent a sampling of the undergraduate elective offerings available that may be of particular interest to students from diverse concentrations of study.

ADVERTISING AND GRAPHIC DESIGN

The following elective courses in advertising and graphic design are open to all students who satisfy the prerequisite(s). In addition, students can register for second- and third-year advertising and graphic design courses (listing begins on page 50 of this book) with permission from the department chair.

GDD-2153-A (previously GDD-2163, first semester)

Basic Three-Dimensional Graphic Design I

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Diresta

Three-dimensional graphic design is an emerging field that has opened various job opportunities in a most experimental area. You will be taught to translate your concepts into personalized 3D objects by drawing upon inspiration from all art disciplines. The course will cover many innovative as well as traditional techniques in assemblage, papier-mâché, wood, casting, mold-making in several media, etc. The course will be augmented by guest lecturers and demonstrations of techniques and procedures.

GDD-2154-A (previously GDD-2163, second semester)

Basic Three-Dimensional Graphic Design II

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Diresta

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see GDD-2153 for course description.

GDD-2168 (previously GDD-2176, first semester)

Graphic Designer as Image Maker I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Dana

Limited to 22 students per section

From the cave wall to the computer screen, the desire to communicate one's unique vision has always existed. A great concept combined with the right technique, be it finger painting or Adobe Photoshop, can produce extremely powerful images. This course will focus on exploring style in graphic design through experimentation with various mediums such as collage, rubbings, image transfers, use of found objects, and many other techniques. Students will be encouraged to think and create in unconventional ways. Projects for this course will include book covers, CD packages, editorial illustrations, food packaging and poster designs. Field trips will be included.

Originality

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Leban

How can you make your work stand out in the midst of the thousands of visual and verbal messages that bombard the public each day? How can you make your work distinctly, unmistakably yours? By questioning and rethinking your preconceived ideas and assumptions about what makes art, what makes it "good" or "bad," and which applications are possible for your work. You will assign yourself projects that we'll critique in order to identify your uniqueness and to remove any obstacles to it. We'll consider how standards and influences affect the originality of your ideas and executions, among other issues. New ideas can only result from thinking in new ways; this is the emphasis of the course.

Textile Design I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Joyce

Complete instruction in designing for studio and freelance work. Creative fabric design for the fashion apparel market (women's, men's and children's) and the home furnishing decorative market (drapery, sheets, wallpaper) will be discussed. Designs will include floral, paisley, chintz, liberty, ethnic, conversational, geometric, contemporary and coordinate patterns. Thorough instruction in layout: tossed, spaced, border, patchwork. How to find and use reference material is included. How to do repeats and color combinations; tracing; drawing and special painting techniques such as batik, warp, bleach, woodblock and flower shading will be shown—all valuable techniques for use in other fields (illustration, graphics, interior and fashion design, etc). The use of gouache, transparent dyes, and pen-and-ink will be examined. Computer textile designing and its relation to traditional methods will be discussed. This course is geared toward developing a professional portfolio for those seeking a job in today's market.

GDD-3306-A (previously GDD-3331, first semester)

Toys and Games I: From Concept to Finish

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $20

Instructor: A. Benkovitz

The toy industry is a trendy business where innovative designs are introduced continually. This course will analyze successful products from different categories (games, plush, action figures, novelties), explore what great toy concepts are and how to originate them. The use of various tools and materials and how to create renderings and prototypes will be demonstrated. By taking part in brainstorming sessions, hands-on workshops and field trips to toy stores; and by testing their own designs, students will learn how to develop concepts into finished products. Manufacturing and marketing, as well as career opportunities in the toy industry will be discussed. In addition to assigned weekly projects, students will be encouraged to work on another product of their choice—limited only by their imagination. The goal is to create at least one finished product per semester, suitable for presentation to a toy company or for inclusion in a portfolio.

ART HISTORY

Please refer to the art history section of this book (beginning on page 68) for a complete listing of art history courses open to all departments. The following is a sampling of course offerings.

AHD-2226-A

American Art: The Rise of Pop Culture

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Goldberg

Beginning in the 1920s through Neo-Dada of the 1950s, this course will examine the rise of American pop art and its focus on consumer culture. Discussions will include an exploration of pop art's European antecedents; the movement's zenith in the 1960s with artists such as Warhol, Lichtenstein and Oldenburg; pop manifestations in Europe; commodity art of the 1980s and pop art's lasting influence.

AHD-2254-A

The Arts of Ancient Egypt and the Near East

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Kawami

This course will survey the art of the peoples who inhabited the great cultural centers of Egypt, Mesopotamia and Iran from their earliest appearances in the fifth millennium BCE to the conquest by the Greeks under Alexander the Great in the fourth century BCE. We will focus on the stylistic and iconographic developments of the cultures and civilizations that flourished in the area and will emphasize the continuity across the millennia of artistic imagery, forms and techniques.

AHD-2258-A

The Silk Road and Islamic Art

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lundquist

This course combines the thousand-year history of the art and cultural exchange that constitutes the Silk Road, including a focus on Islamic art and architecture. We will examine the interchange that produced Buddhist, Christian, Manichaean, Iranian, Sogdian and Islamic art along the 7,000 mile stretch of commercial routes that connected China with the West, across Central Asia. The major developments in Islamic art and architecture, especially the great Islamic dynasties of the Middle East and Central Asia, will also be presented.

AHD-2261-A

What is Latin American Art?

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Stellweg

Beginning with an introduction to the ideas that have typified the art from Latin America, this course will explore how the European encounter with the Americas' vast indigenous cultural models radically altered, transformed and revolutionized art on both continents. Latin America's cultural interaction with European and U.S. cultural centers, the mutual confrontations of high art and popular culture and relationships between Euro-American and local formal styles will also be addressed. Moreover, the course will study contemporary artists from the United States and Europe in terms of their connections to pre-Columbian and Colonial urban art and culture. Exploring the pendulum relationship, we will cover Latin American modernism from 1900 to 1945 and show how ideas and influences traveled back and forth across the Atlantic, enriching the art of the entire Western Hemisphere—beyond traditional boundaries and geographic borders. Emphasis will be placed on the artistic production of certain countries, such as Mexico, Brazil, Argentina and Cuba. Discussions will focus on how artists both contributed to and responded to nationalism and 'indigenism' while forging unique contributions to international modernism. The effects of colonialism and modernization on the art from Latin America will also be discussed.

AHD-2266-A

African Art

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Becker

This course relates the African influence on contemporary art forms and cultures of North and South American and the Caribbean, to familiarize students with the concept of cross-cultural experience. We will trace the African influence from its origins in transatlantic trade and the plantation system. Looking at weavings, textiles, flags, quilts, writings, religious artifacts, sculpture and other art forms, we will make direct comparisons between the function of pattern, iconography, symbolism, magic and ideographic writings. Emphasis will be placed on cultural transformation and its historical, economic and political contexts.

AHD-2299-A

The Art and Symbols of India and the Himalayas

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Cummins

This course examines the art of India and its extension into the Himalayas. It traces currents of religious belief and aesthetic preference through four millennia of Indian history, looking at temple architecture, sculpture and painting from many of South Asia's diverse regions.

AHD-2511-A

The Renaissance in Italy

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Edwards

This course will examine the distinctive character of the Renaissance in Italy beginning with the 14th century. We will concentrate on the three great centers—Florence, Rome and Venice—studying the works of artists from Giotto to Michelangelo. Topics to be discussed are the influence of antiquity, the emergence of the artist as a man of culture and genius, and the link between the artist and the sociopolitical setting in which he worked.

AHD-2544-A

Mannerism

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Rosenberg

We will begin with a discussion of Mannerism as a concept of wide-ranging implications for the history of 16th- and 20th-century art. Artists to be discussed include Michelangelo, Raphael, Leonardo, Titian, Del Sarto, Romano, Bronzino, Fiorentino, Pontorno, Parmigianino, Tintoretto and El Greco, as well as contemporary artists, photographers and filmmakers. Topics will include the controversy behind the term "Mannerism," the characteristics and analysis of various works of art, the social and political influences of the age, the sexual politics of the time period, and the relationship of Mannerism to modern and contemporary art. We will take several museum trips and view recent films.

AHD-2566-A

Baroque Art

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Werner

The word "baroque" usefully describes a span of world culture, from circa 1600 to the French Revolution. In the realm of art, the concept of "baroque" can only be clarified by engaging directly with the artworks of that period. This course is based on direct examination and discussion of a series of artworks at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. We will begin by focusing on the major European artists who flourished between 1600 and 1660: Caravaggio, Rubens, Bernini, Velázquez, Rembrandt, Poussin. The course then considers baroque as a cultural and social phenomenon, and finds a consistent outlook in art from 1600 to the French Revolution in 1789, in which decorative arts, drawing and printmaking have their place, as do thinkers and artist-politicians like Descartes, Locke, Diderot and Rousseau. Finally, "baroque" was an international movement, perhaps the first global cultural movement. In this view, the arts and industries of China, Japan, Persia, South and North America have their place as well. Note: The first session of this course will meet at SVA. Subsequent sessions will be held at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

AHD-2733-AExpressionism in Films

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Expressionism, briefly defined, is art in an agitated, anxious mode that distorts the normal appearance of things by presenting them through a perturbed consciousness. It is an art of exaggeration and intense subjectivity; giving primacy to the disquieted self, it characteristically portrays the world as a disrupted, menacing place. This course will examine various manifestations of expressionism and its influence in the art of film. The first flourishing of expressionism in films took place in Weimar Germany, and we will study several notable instances: Dr. Caligari, Fritz Lang, Murnau. We will consider how expressionism took root when transplanted to American films: in the American work of German filmmakers, in the gangster films, the horror film, film noir, etc. We will look into the work of such expressionist-influenced filmmakers as Alfred Hitchcock, Orson Welles, Ingmar Bergman, and the new Germans. We will also consider expressionism in the broader context of other art forms and of contemporary life.

AHD-2741-AWar and Religion in Art and Film

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Z. Amar

Using documentary and feature film productions, journalistic photographs as well as examples in painting and sculpture, this course will examine the cultures of war in relationship to the monotheistic religions of Judaism, Christianity and Islam throughout the world. The representation of war and religion will be explored through the ideologies of blood, violence, vengeance and grace.

AHD-2808-AWho's Looking (The Function of Women in Film)

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

Film both reflects and generates ways in which women are seen and function in our culture. The development of feminist film criticism and theory has given women a perspective from which to challenge the male-dominated film industry. Women are fighting back as critics, scholars and filmmakers. This course examines, from a feminist position, films by such masters as Jean-Luc Godard, Alfred Hitchcock and Martin Scorsese and also takes a look at some current box-office biggies. Critical readings by Laura Mulvey, Meaghan Morris and Angela Carter will ground discussions of such issues as the relationship of aesthetics and politics, and the construction of gendered positions both on the screen and in the audience.

AHD-2831-AIntroduction to Visual Culture

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Leslie

Tired of hearing about art versus design versus advertising versus the comic book? This course is designed to explore the issues of what constitutes culture—who said so, why, and what we can learn from and change about it. Our “society of the spectacle” engages case studies from sports, the mall, Madonna, James Bond, drag balls, Disneyland, Spike Lee, television, comic books and, yes, the fine arts, for their role in the construction of cultural values. Subtopics range from contemporary myth, the hero and heroine, the use of stereotypes and icons, attitudes toward gender and ethnicity and their consequences for the meaning and understanding of “culture.” Critical approaches are introduced to explore how cultural norms are established and to develop your own position in the current debates. Readings are from the German Frankfurt and British Birmingham schools of social thought, film and visual theory, studies in popular culture, feminism and cultural theory.

AHD-2947-AGame Culture: From Super Mario to Half-Life

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Chuk

Virtual reality has entered a new realm of accessibility gained by an influx of video games and the rapidly growing game culture that surround them. Video games are no longer limited to arcades—they have taken over homes and traveled alongside users on buses; they have extended into the everyday world, creating normalcy out of virtual environments in public and semi-public spaces. We will examine this expansion—its negative and positive effects—and the role game culture plays in the American economy, global exports, attitudes toward violence and general consumption of our daily rituals and free time. Looking back at the short but significant history of gaming, we will explore its transformation from hobby to cultural tool. Finally, this course will address how gaming encourages group activity, serves as cultural commentary and bridges the physical gaps that separate participants and their varying identities.

AHD-2953-ATechnology of Art: Inching Toward the Virtual

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Chuk

This course will examine how technological development affects works of art, media and everyday life, allowing for the potential of interactivity. The ease and accessibility of technology allows us to create artistic work more affordably and efficiently. We can adjust on the fly; fix in postproduction; and alter, duplicate or manipulate with the appropriate software. Technological advances have increased the absence of the material form, which takes shape in computer art, virtual mapping, television/TiVo, mp3/iPod, and mediated public and semi-public spaces. The result is a do-it-yourself revolution, making interactivity a more acceptable and attractive feature. As creators and receptors of art, we are both inhibited and enlightened by this technology. From YouTube to the ubiquitous MySpace phenomenon, these outlets have a positive and negative impact on how we perceive, use, and create works of art and media.

AHD-3137-AIrony and Beauty

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Matlin

Irony is a puzzling concept, far deeper than the dictionary definition: “Irony is the act of using words to convey a meaning that is the opposite of its literal meaning.” If this were the case, all sarcasm would be irony and the truly ironic act would be nothing more than a cheap theatric. Thankfully, real irony is hard to come by. It is rooted in something more than cleverness, just as beauty is more than simply being pretty. The idea of beauty is at its core a moment of transcendence, an experience of something greater than the tangible world has to offer. When done well, irony is a concentrated disaffection with what has been presented as truth; it is a mode of rebellion. The question becomes: Can beauty and irony co-exist or are they mutually exclusive? Is there any irony in the paintings of Barnett Newman or is it all deadly serious? Has irony become too easy? And has beauty ceased to answer any real questions? These are the issues we will address as we try to reconcile these seeming opposites.

AHD-3982-AThe Culture Club

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Yablonsky

Limited to 15 students

For this workshop in art criticism, students will explore the ways in which arts journalism operates in our culture. How does the press influence the public's perception of art? How does it impact an artist's career? What are the different attitudes expressed by such journals and newspapers as Artforum, October, The New York Times, Time Out New York, The New Yorker, Film Quarterly, among others? What responsibilities do artists and critics share? How do you pitch a story idea? Identify the issues? Students will develop their critical faculties by attending performances and events in theater, dance, film and visual art; writing reviews; reading and occasionally visiting with, current critics, such as Robert Hughes, Louis Menand, Peter Schjeldahl, Ben Brantley and Michiko Kakutani; and researching historic contributions to the field from such writers as John Ruskin, Clement Greenberg, James Agee, Dorothy Parker and John Berger.

AHD-3997-AIntersections of Art, Science and Technology

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Anker

From atomic theory to the decipherment of the human genome, science has spilled out of the laboratory and into our lives. When we add to this mix the invention of the Internet and its global perspectives in cyberspace, a revolution is upon us. As scientists engage in molecular makeovers, plastic surgery and nanotechnology, the corporeal body has become a topic of public and aesthetic discourse in itself. This course will examine the ways in which artists are addressing genetic engineering, new anatomical models, reproductive technologies, and cloning as part of the emergent "sci-art" movement taking place in the United States and abroad. Other topics will include genetically modified food, the commodification of bio-matter and lab residencies for visual artists. In addition, new imaging and 3D digital technologies will be conceptually explored. Field trips and visiting speakers complement the course material.

AHD-3999-AArt Creates Communities: Project in Chelsea

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Martegani

The effects of gentrification on disadvantaged communities and how artists may contribute to bridging cultural and social gaps will be researched and explored through on-site projects. The first part of the course will seek to define public art, study the interconnection of art and community, and address such questions as: Can artists truly collaborate with communities? Who are "the public"? Can art contribute to society, affect it, perhaps better it? Our case study is located in Chelsea, a neighborhood radically transformed by recent economic initiatives, including the influx of high-end art galleries; it is now a diverse area—home to condominiums as well as local public housing developments. Two artists will be invited to work with a group of children from the local Clinton Middle School, engaging them in different ways according to their own interests, artistic language and sensibility, and creating true works of art. Projects will encompass a variety of media. Artists who participated in the past include Tim Rollins, Gary Simmons, Anna Gaskell, Michael Joo, Elmgreen and Dragset, Luca Buvoli, Slater Bradley, Saya Woolfalk and Hope Ginsburg. Students will also work in a group on their own art project with the children. At the end, they will help install their collaborative projects in an exhibition at the middle school.

COMPUTER ART

SDD-2107-ATechniques for Visual Thinking

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Cudlitz

This course will expand each student's understanding of drawing to encompass the skills and vocabulary of diverse visualization methods. Students will learn techniques used in a variety of design and media disciplines to facilitate both individual and collaborative creative process. Each student will complete 12 specific group and individual visualization tasks and assignments in a standard sketchbook/journal format. The course will explore techniques for time-based linear media and nonlinear concepts and processes. Participation is an essential aspect of this course. Prerequisite: Students should have basic drawing skills.

SDD-2114Life Drawing for Computer Animators

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Ruggeri

Gesture, movement and character expression are important considerations for the computer animator. This drawing course will explore various facets of human expression, such as emotions and physical mannerisms. Using models, students will learn to "catch" a moment in time through quick poses, as well as work out individual subtleties through longer poses. Field trips will be part of the challenge of learning to draw people in crowds and in motion.

SMD-2134-BHumorous Illustration for Computer Artists

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Levin

This course is designed for students who aspire to work as professional illustrators, choosing humor as their medium of expression. Students will learn how to create and execute humorous content using Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator. The course will cover choreography of visual and subjective matter, the narrative, working with subtext and adhering to concept. Computer techniques, personal style, as well as the structure and use of humor in the development of dynamic work will also be covered. Professional-level assignments will be given in such areas as political and gag cartooning, magazine illustration, children's books, advertising, and others. There will be heavy individual critiquing and guest lectures by top working professionals. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2134-A.

SMD-2243-BPhotoshop: Beyond the Foundations

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: C. McCormack

People often say they know how to use Adobe Photoshop, but do they really know its most important features and how to harness its power? Each session will concentrate on one isolated aspect of Photoshop. By the end of the semester, every student will be a Photoshop power user. Issues to be focused on include levels, curves, actions, layer styles, filters, extract, alpha channels and liquefy, among others. In one semester, this course will cover the Photoshop universe. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-2243-A.

SMD-3221-BAdvanced Adobe Photoshop Techniques

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: K. Eismann

This course will explore the most advanced creative and production techniques of Adobe Photoshop, including image layer management, shapes and vector masking as well as integrated Web tools. Students will identify their professional and creative goals as they develop a portfolio of images. They will learn to design images for maximum results, whether the images are created for photographic printing, offset reproduction or the Web. The entire imaging process will be examined and explained, along with the most effective shortcuts that will speed the production process. Prerequisite: SMD-2243, Photoshop: Beyond the Foundations, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3221-A.

SMD-3228-B (previously SCD-3228)3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: E. Eiser

Alias Maya is widely used in the 3D animation industry and is highly regarded for its modeling, animation and special effects capabilities. Starting with storyboards, students will then learn modeling, cameras, lighting, surfaces, motion scripting and rendering. Several examples of high-end 3D animation will be demonstrated and analyzed. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3228-A.

SMD-3231-BDigital Photography for Computer Artists

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: K. Eismann

This intensive hands-on course will introduce you to the fundamental concepts of classic photography, including: determining proper exposure, lighting, lens choices, image composition, black-and-white and color photography. In addition, the course will delve into the most important aspects of digital photography such as: which file formats are best, camera management, and advanced digital dark-room techniques with Adobe Photoshop. The course will cover fundamental studio lighting techniques as well as provide a thorough understanding of digital camera types. Students will come away with a working knowledge of photographic exposure techniques to compensate for a variety of lighting situations and an understanding of camera optics and their impact on image composition. Students must provide or have access to their own digital camera. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3231-A.

SMD-3257-BAdobe After Effects Techniques

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: A. Meyers

After Effects is a powerful compositing and animation tool for creating video special effects, 2D and 3D animation, and broadcast graphics. Using keyframes, we will cover how to animate masks and filters over time, to create precise motion paths using bezier curves and to achieve complex layered compositions. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3257-A.

SMD-3267-BCreating 3D Graphics for Broadcast Design

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: E. Reinfeld

The ability to integrate 3D graphics in broadcast design and interactive media is now an essential design skill. This course will examine how to extrude type into 3D and to model simple 3D elements, as well as how to control CG lighting, rendering, masking and motion tracking. The integration of live-action footage with computer graphics will be covered as a foundation for dynamic visual effects for both still and moving images. Prerequisite: SMD-3257, Adobe After Effects Techniques. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3267-A.

SMD-3341Digital Matte Painting

Thursday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: D. Mattingly

Digital matte painting (DMP) is a field that has been around since the early days of still and moving images. Initially created as paintings on large pieces of glass, the digital revolution has extended the form to levels previously unimagined.

In the current climate of heavy visual-effects productions in film, broadcast, the Web and video games, the skills necessary to perform quickly and with emotion have become all the more crucial. The beauty of working in digital matte painting is that it employs traditional art skills blended with cutting-edge technology.

This course will introduce students to the history of the medium, the philosophy of "style" (photorealistic, non-photorealistic) and the practical applications used to execute a shot. Prerequisites: SMD-3228, 3D Modeling and Animation with Maya I, and SMD-3258, Advanced Adobe After Effects, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3341-A and SMD-3341-C.

SMD-3449-BIntroduction to Macromedia Flash Animation

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: O. Haddock

Macromedia Flash is the standard for creating interactive vector graphics and animation on the Web. Students will explore the foundation assets and techniques used within Flash and build several small projects as a basis to create a large portfolio of vector-based interactive animations. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3449-A.

SMD-3558Dynamic Abstraction—Writing Art-Making Machines with Macromedia Flash

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: J. Davis

Fundamentally, art and design have been taught as the very static process of executing style and method and arriving at an end result. In this course, students will learn to write programs that generate compositions and animations. With this method, the end result is never static. Students will learn how to use Macromedia Flash and ActionScript to build these art-making programs that can be used multiple times for various projects. Prerequisite: SMD-1020, Foundations of Visual Computing, or equivalent. Note: This course is cross-listed with SMD-3558-A and SMD-3558-C.

CFD-1074-A

Acting for Film

Fall semester: 3 credits

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Instructor: A. Rapoport

Limited to 16 students

This course is designed as an introduction to the world of actors and their techniques. Built on the basis of moment-to-moment reality, sense memory, improvisation and intuitive use of the self, students will learn how to create believable characters for the screen. The vocabulary necessary for communicating with actors will be taught as well as the art of constructive criticism essential to direction.

AND-1103-A

Introduction to Animation

Monday 2:00-6:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Ramos

The basic concepts of storyboard, layout, exposure sheets, extremes, timing, in-betweening, weight, squash-and-stretch, overlapping action, hook-ups, arcs, walk cycles and head turns will be covered in this course. Most importantly, this course will emphasize drawing skills, and the importance of one drawing in the context of many. Basic construction, line of action, perspective and looking—before touching pencil to paper—are essential to developing good drawing skills and personal style. Students will solve pictorial problems through these means. Character mode sheets, animal anatomy and live models will be drawn in every class. Students will complete a 30-second pencil test from storyboard through shooting.

CFD-2080-A

Production Design

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. LoBrutto

The purpose of this course is to investigate and understand the role of production design in the filmmaking process. We will begin by tracing the history of art direction in the Hollywood studio system through the work of leading art directors. Particular attention will be given to the work of William Cameron Menzies and how his contributions led to the advent of the production designer. The craft and job of the production designer will be explored in detail. The process and working methods will be defined and explained with particular focus on how directors collaborate with designers to capture their vision on film.

CFD-2088-B

Film and Television Makeup

Tuesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Fee: $75

Instructor: P. Mason

Makeup has been an integral part of filmmaking and television since their debuts—directors and actors alike rely on the talent of the makeup artist to give credibility to their characters. In this course, students will be given an overview of the field of makeup design and application (painting, construction methods, prosthesis) and then experiment with what they have learned. As an objective, students will design and create their own complete “character” makeup. The skills learned will be of benefit for personal projects and for a career in makeup artistry. Note: This course is cross-listed with CFD-2088-A.

CFD-2159-A

Film Criticism

Tuesday 7:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Mooij

Designed to offer a structure for critical film analysis, this course will examine a variety of approaches to film criticism, and will provide a means for students to analyze their own creative output as well as that of well-known filmmakers. Students will gain insights into how to formulate objective assessments of a particular film or body of work from the perspective that there is not a single “right” way to review a film—whatever the genre. Does the work have an overriding theme? How do style, form and tone relate? Are there any cultural differences that need to be considered? We will screen and assess films in class; writing assignments will be given.

CFD-2202-A

Acting II

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Limited to 16 students

This course is for students who want to increase their thespian skills by working on scenes and monologues. Advanced techniques will be taught as well as communication skills for the actor to collaborate with the director, while staying within the actor/director relationship.

AND-3172-A

Developing the Animated Series

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Goldman

The goal of this course is to provide the fundamentals for developing an animated series, including the premise, outline, character development and story arcs. We will begin with an overview of the history of the animated series in the United States, and how these series have been influenced by popular culture, as well as political and social events. While the focus of the course will concentrate on the creative process, we will also discuss such areas as domestic and international markets, financing, production, merchandise, and marketing and distribution.

AND-3137

Creating Unforgettable Animation Characters

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Solomon

Limited to 18 students

This course will delve into the process of creating animated characters. Methods of researching, creating a back story and understanding character psychology will be discussed and analyzed. Classic characters such as Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Wile E. Coyote, and Beavis and Butt-Head will be screened and studied. Students will design and produce a profile on a character of their own creation.

FDD-2020-B, C, D

Anatomy I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Gerndt

Anatomy can offer a concrete structure for drawing and painting the human figure. This course relates the study of the skeleton and the muscles to the live model. It will concentrate on the skeletal system in the fall semester and the muscles in the spring semester. Students will complete three life-size drawings of the human skeletal system, which will include views of the skull, torso and extremities, establishing the core of the human figure. Two triptychs, each consisting of a nude, muscular and skeletal drawing of a male and a female body, will be completed. We will learn the landmarks of the skeletal system, their relationship to the muscular system and how they work together to define the human form. An anatomy text such as Albinus on Anatomy by Hale and Coyle or Anatomy for the Artist by Jenő Barcsay is required.

Cut and Paste

Monday 9:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Twitchell

This course focuses on cut-and-paste techniques as they are employed in image-making. Ranging from collage and paper cut-outs, existing visual elements are reconfigured to fabricate novel types of pictures. Stencils, resists and layering are investigated as techniques for constructing complex images. Critiques and demonstrations will aid to focus each student's technical mastery; the theoretical underpinnings of collage will also be examined.

Color Theory

Monday 12:00 -2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Giacalone

Knowledge of color theory is only as good as its application to personal means of expression for the students. This course will accompany creative projects with basic color theory, using painting rather than the Josef Albers' approach of cut Color-aid paper collages. By improving techniques of painting, such as scumbling and applying glazes and mediums, students can learn complex means of creating color relationships in their paintings. The theories that produced the modern movement in painting are included: Albers' interaction of color; color as light seen in impressionist and postimpressionist paintings; optical color mixtures; light and space; color in contemporary paintings. A term project will include an analysis of colors from a favorite painting in a gallery or museum.

FID-2953-B

Introduction to Video Art I

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: N. London

This course will introduce students to the medium of video, within the context of contemporary art practice. It will present a range of conceptual, aesthetic and technical options through in-class exercises and applicable home assignments. There will be an emphasis on dialogue generated by work produced in class, screenings of historical and contemporary video art, and current exhibitions. The spring semester will expand on basic skills through more self-directed, long-term assignments. Class critiques and group discussions will be stressed. Students will be encouraged to consider their work in terms of the particular parameters of the medium, as well as in relation to other forms and the broader cultural field. Each student will have the opportunity to present their work as single channel and in installation, and will take a video project through the postproduction process to complete the course with several finished projects. Note: All fine arts digital workshops will be conducted in the department's new, state-of-the-art facility. Student will have individual editing stations equipped with Macintosh computers and flat-panel monitors.

The Tactile and the Digital I: Painting in the New Century

Tuesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Buvoli

Using varied media and subjects—from traditional to nontraditional—students will develop analytic and expressive dimensions in their practice, drawing from their personal interests and from many disciplines. We will meet as a group and on a one-to-one basis to receive and exchange points of view. By expanding visual and critical vocabularies, we will explore the role of painting in the digital age. The remainder of the time is designated for studio work. Through images of works by modern and contemporary artists, visits to galleries and museums, readings of related articles and essays, information will be presented that relates to the current art scene. The clarification of formal, conceptual and technical problems in painting is the content of this course. Projects will address light and space, color relationships, means and meanings of representation, and explore the limitations and potentialities in replicating the physical nature of painting through other media. We will also explore the cultural facets of gender, as well as social and political issues in relation to painting. During the spring semester, projects will address structure and freedom, visibility and invisibility, painting as object, text and texture.

FPD-3196-A

Advanced Painting with Photography as Source I: The Materials

Friday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Richer

Photography was a precipitous event in the advent of "modernism." Its invention continues to catalyze methods and concerns of painting. In the fall semester, this course will investigate the ways in which photographic processes—ranging from the camera obscura, the invention of chemical photography and Kodachrome, to x-ray, photocopy and digital images—have distinctly affected representations and methods in painting. To best link image to medium, we will examine a variety of paint mediums such as tempera, oil and acrylic, and study their inherent characteristics. In the spring semester, we will extend our investigation of these linked contemporary mediums. We will examine the historic artists in photography and the relationship to the painting of the same period. Students will work on a group of paintings that extend the stylistic approach discovered in the investigation of photographic and painting mediums. Students will also create a photographic project that extends their painting project.

FPD-3197-A

Advanced Painting with Photography as Source II: The Historic Practitioners

FSD-3303-A

Sculpture Now!

Monday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: P. Dudek

This workshop takes a worldview of the sculpture-making process and will show how different cultures and art forms have impacted today's sculpture. Students will not only draw on their own personal/cultural pasts to develop ideas and make sculpture, but also to challenge or ally those ideas with different information and influences. A wide range of materials and fabrication methods are available in this course. Through critiques and slide discussions, issues of form, content and context will be examined and interpreted. The use of language as applied to sculpture is of particular interest. A partial listing of the current vernacular that we will be cataloging and assessing for our use includes: architectonic, socially concerned, outsider art, site-specific, randomness and objectness. We'll attend exhibitions, films, lectures or performances that relate to our activities. There will also be required reading.

FSD-3303-D

Interdisciplinary Workshop

Friday 9:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: G. Sherman

Artists are scavengers—we borrow ideas and resources we need from any source available. This workshop is for students who want to explore interdisciplinary practices common in the arts today. Projects on “standardization and the module,” “camouflage and dematerialization,” “fuzzy science” and “the monument and souvenir” will guide an investigation of processes, materials and conventions that convey meaning, as well as the mechanisms of presentation that intensify or subvert meaning. Resources include art, architecture, industry, design, craft, horticulture, cooking, fashion, theater, performance, film, video, television, music, language and science, among others. At the beginning of each session, we will discuss exhibitions, films, reading, lectures and other activities that relate to our projects. The remainder of the session will be devoted to intensive work. Critiques and brainstorming will be used to test ideas.

FSD-3351-A (previously FSD-3304, first semester)

Sculpture/Video Art Workshop I: From Space to Time

Wednesday 9:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Equipment fee: $200

Instructor: L. Buvoli

Steel, wood, wire, rubber, video, film, light, sound, music, body movement, language, liquid and dust are just a few of the traditional and nontraditional materials used in this course. We will meet as a group and on a one-to-one basis, to receive and exchange information on student projects and current art. The rest of the time is designated for studio work. Through slides of works by modern and contemporary international artists, screenings of experimental films and videos, visits to exhibitions, readings of related articles and essays, information will be presented to help clarify directions and provide alternatives in which to work. During individual meetings, I will suggest many artists who share an affinity with your ideas and sensitivity, as well as materials and possible formal and conceptual directions that may benefit your work; you are encouraged to bring in personal interests—music, science, popular culture, philosophy, humor—and incorporate them in the few projects that will be presented for group critiques. Projects will relate to ideas and forms that include visibility and invisibility; sound and silence; time and motion; ephemerality and permanence; discipline and freedom; gender, social and political issues in relation to sculpture. Indoor and outdoor site-specific or performance-oriented work is included.

FID-3401-A

Electronics for Artists I

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

This is a beginning course for fine artists to learn how to use electronics in their work. Simple basic principles of electricity will be taught, providing students with a wide variety of skills. These skills will range from how to light a show without blowing fuses, to how to incorporate electronic technologies in their work and make it dynamically interactive. Various basic components will be explored such as LEDs, resistors, capacitors, transistors, relays, and more. Students will learn how to read and translate a circuit diagram into a circuit, and design a circuit and solder it together. Many sensors will be utilized such as laser, infrared, ultrasonic and microwave motion detectors. Safely handling and designing high-voltage electronics will be discussed and demonstrated as well.

FID-3402-A

Electronics for Artists II

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

This course is a continuation of FID-3401, Electronics for Artists I. Building on the high- and low-voltage electronic components and sensors previously explored, microcontrollers (very small stand-alone computers) will be integrated into student projects. The Basic Stamp 2 microcontroller will be used. It is able to control many devices, including any serial-controlled unit such as LCD readouts, DVD players, even cell phones, not to mention more modest devices such as light bulbs and motors. Students will utilize microcontrollers and learn how to program them to successfully create stand-alone artworks such as interactive sculpture, electronic installations and other computer artworks. Explorations of the pioneers in the field of art and technology will supplement class discussions. No previous programming experience is necessary.

FGD-3812

Silkscreen Multiples

Thursday 9:00-1:50

One semester: 3 credits

Materials fee: $150

Instructor: L. Wright

This advanced course will combine silkscreen printing with sculptural concerns to create large scale or three-dimensional mixed-media works. Concepts, fabrication, and sculptural edition problems will be tested and solved. We will explore tools, materials and methods, along with curating and documentation, and printing on a variety of different substrates such as plastic, metal, textiles and ceramics. Find out about decals, heat forming, embossing, pochoir and 3D printing. Get studio tips and logic. Learn about jigs for cutting and drilling. This course is a “hands-on make-anything” tour de force. Field trips and guests artists are included.

HHD-2051-R

The 21st Century: Globalization and the Restructuring of the World

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Bastian

This course addresses the major trends that are shaping the new century: the global economy and the multinational corporation, the North/South division of wealth and labor, environmental crisis and the United States as a reigning superpower. We will look at current events to understand the multiple directions history is moving in and the choices that confront ordinary citizens of the world in shaping future outcomes.

HHD-2052-R

The 21st Century: Globalization and People Power

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Bastian

This course reviews issues of economic globalization and America's superpower role to focus on two major trends: the shifting fate of nations and the rise of people power in defining the new world order. We will look at the U.S. relative to the European Union, the new Asian powers, and the causes of world conflict and disorder. We will also look at the growing role of people power and democracy movements, creating globalization from "below" around the environment, women's emancipation and human rights, fair trade, the free press and more.

Note: This course has no prerequisite; however, it is a continuation of the fall semester.

HLD-3026-R

Comparative Literature: Great Books

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Friedland

This course explores some of the more influential European and American literary and poetic works written between the turn of the 20th century and World War II. The modern period was rich for writers, stimulating participation in both political struggles of the age and its anxiety-ridden debates about progress. Class discussions will focus on how these works respond, both formally and thematically, to pervasive social transformation. We will read works by Baudelaire, Wilde, Kafka, Stein, Crane, Camus, Beckett, Levi, Baroka and Lorca.

HLD-4022-R

Poetry and Art

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Riccuito

Since Baudelaire, innovative poets have often exercised important influence on avant-garde visual artists, primarily through radical innovations of form and content in their poetry, but also as friends and, in some cases, major art critics as well. The course concentrates on the work of Baudelaire, Rimbaud, Mallarmé, Apollinaire and William Carlos Williams. Home assignments include readings to locate the poems against their literary and cultural background. There are also selected readings from the poets' essays and art criticism. Primary emphasis is on the poetry, and the course also attempts to answer the questions: What accounts for the mutual interplay of influence between poetry and visual art? How does it work?

HPD-2422-A

Art and Politics

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Palmeri

An examination of the role of political art in history including Goya's Disasters of War and Caprichos, Picasso's Guernica, and Käthe Kollwitz's antiwar woodcuts, posters and other graphic work. How do artists respond to the social upheavals of their times? What is the artist's responsibility to these concerns and what is the responsibility to one's craft and to the development of a personal statement? Readings will be supplemented by film, video and field trips.

HPD-3451-R

Introduction to Asian Thought

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will introduce the diverse doctrines and practices of the Hindu and Buddhist traditions as they developed in ancient India and traveled to Tibet, China and Japan. Through scriptural texts we will explore Hinduism's three spiritual paths: the Path of Action, the Path of Devotion and the Path of Knowledge. We will then examine how the Buddha's radical reinterpretation of the meaning of self formed the basis of one of the most powerful spiritual and philosophical movements in history. The course will then focus on Japanese Zen Buddhism through the writings of its founders. We will conclude with a look at the forms that these traditional schools are now taking as they are transplanted into Western cultures. Readings include: Fenton's Religions of Asia; Koller's Sourcebook in Asian Philosophy; Harvey's An Introduction to Buddhism; Suzuki's Zen Mind, Beginner's Mind.

HPD-3474-R

Social Problems in Contemporary Society: Peace, War, Terrorism and Personal Freedom

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bica

This course will be devoted to examining and interpreting the nature and justification, if any, for war and terrorism, moral questions about tactics in war and responding to terrorism, ideas for avoiding war and eliminating terrorism, concepts and strategies for attaining peace and the morality of relations between nations. Then, putting theoretics behind us, we will focus on the historical details of the Vietnam and Iraq wars in the hope of uncovering some historical insights relevant to these issues. Finally, we will discuss the impact of terrorism and war upon such important values as personal freedom, dissent and patriotism. Reading assignments will include the works of such thinkers and social activists as Michael Walzer; Stanley Karnow; Mohandas Gandhi; Martin Luther King, Jr.; George Orwell; Virginia Held.

HPD-3641-R and HPD-3641-R1

Abnormal Psychology I: Neurotic and Character Disorders

One semester: 3 credits

This course will introduce students to the psychological and interpersonal conflicts that underlie obsessional, hysterical, depressive and narcissistic disorders. Treatment strategies will also be explored with reference to actual case histories. Readings include selections from such clinical theorists as Sigmund Freud, Anna Freud, David Shapiro, Alice Miller, Charles Brenner, Karen Horney and Heinz Kohut.

Psychological Aspects of the Creative Process

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Kaufman-Balamuth

This course reviews the intellectual and the emotional processes that facilitate creativity. What kind of thinking facilitates creativity and what blocks it, and how do you develop creative thinking? What kind of internalized negative voices block you from achieving your fullest creative potential? How do you carve a personal space that will best assist your art-making? We will read psychological theories as well as personal accounts of writers and artists who write about the creative process. The work of Julia Cameron, author of The Artist's Way, will be the centerpiece of the course.

HSD-3114-RModern Art and Astronomy: The Expanding Universe

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

Where do stars come from? How big is the universe? What's inside an atom? Why is the sky blue? In the last century, scientists have given revolutionary answers to these questions, profoundly altering how modern society perceives reality. This course presents fascinating responses to these questions in plain, easy-to-understand English, along with illustrations of their impact on art and culture. Topics include Einstein's theory of the relativity of space and time, the discovery that the universe is expanding, space travel, the splitting of the atom, and the dawning of the nuclear age, as well as scientific metaphors in the arts.

HSD-3254-RScience and Religion

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Ouwendijk

What is the relationship between religion (popular and official) and science? Are they complementary in their effects, or are they antagonistic? Is there continuity and interdependence between the philosophical propositions of science and religion? Has Western science replaced religion as a rational activity? These and similar questions will be posed and discussed in the course through the critical examination of major historical, sociological and anthropological studies.

HSD-4026-RArt, Science and the Spiritual

Monday, June 4 – August 6

Hours: 1:00-4:30

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Gamwell

In this course, students will learn how directly, profoundly and indisputably modern science has transformed modern art, and how artists have created new forms of spiritual art for secular society. Age-old questions—What is the origin of life? What is the universe made of?—were asked anew in the modern era. Charles Darwin and Albert Einstein gave answers that precipitated abstract art by forever changing how we understand reality. The rise of science also entailed the decline of organized religion, and traditional theological questions were reformulated in secular terms. What is our place in the universe? How does a person know the world? The answers proposed by psychologists—the new doctors of the soul—have revolutionized modern society's understanding of the human psyche. Artists responded by creating metaphors for the human condition during the first secular, scientific age in human history. Note: In addition to the 10 in-class sessions, a field trip will be scheduled at the beginning of the semester.

ILLUSTRATION AND CARTOONING

Please refer to the advanced electives section of this book (beginning on page 205) for a complete listing of illustration and cartooning courses open to all students. The following is a sampling of course offerings.

CID-2050-CStorytelling I: Comics Narrative

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 2 credits

Instructor: G. Panter

This course will explore primary and complex strategies of storytelling in cartoon form. Assignments will require students to move from stream-of-consciousness and free association narrative exercises to controlled, coherent storytelling using the formal elements of cartooning and illustration. Increasing knowledge and comfort with traditional tools and techniques for getting ideas onto paper will be emphasized.

CID-2055-C (previously CID-2050, second semester)Storytelling II

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 2 credits

Instructor: G. Panter

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see CID-2050-C for course description.

ILD-3348Advanced Watercolors

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Soman

Building on previous studies, this course will enable students to pursue a higher degree of comfort and excellence in working with watercolors. Working from the model on extended poses will allow students the time and practice to discover both what they want from life painting and the important skills that this training brings to all aspects of an illustrator's work.

CID-4101 (previously CID-3616)Picture-Story/Comic-Strip Workshop

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Katchor

Rethinking the conventions of the comic strip with the goal of finding a personal drawing style and narrative voice is the aim of this course. Studio exercises will help students discover the visual world within their own writing and find literary inspiration through drawing. The course will examine the European precursors of the American comic strip and the work of contemporary alternative comic strip artists, with an eye toward placing the student's work within a larger literary and artistic context.

ILD-4206 (previously ILD-3246)Draw Anything: Especially From Your Head

Monday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Moriarty

The problems confronted when drawing from your head are different from those faced when copying. Someone who can copy a photograph accurately may have difficulty in drawing from their head while someone else who can't copy as well may have no problems in drawing from their head. This course is for anyone (beginning or advanced) who wants to be able to draw from their head right now. You will be shown how to make up your own ideas and go through the sketch process, then the finished drawing. Finally, you learn how to be objective about the results.

ILD-3316Life Painting Workshop

Monday 9:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Assael

This course will pursue direct painting from the model over a sustained period of time (three to four weeks per pose). Students will paint in a workshop environment alongside the instructor with the emphasis on the development of a highly representational image. The selective process that gives meaning to the expression of a representational painting is the primary concern. Simplifications of form and the gradual development of the parts in context to the whole are produced through the observation of light and shadow and warm and cool colors. Students will gain an understanding of materials and basic craftsmanship from ground supports to a variety of techniques in oil paint. Gaining an understanding of form painted from observation will give students the tools to formulate a selective eye when using photographic reference material. Note: Open to juniors and seniors only.

ILD-3336Classical Realist Life Painting Techniques

Thursday 9:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Mattelson

This curriculum is derived from the mindset and methodologies utilized by the great classical-realist painters. Working from the live model, you'll learn how to portray the illusion of three-dimensional reality on a flat surface. You'll discover how objective analysis of your subject will inform your decision making and allow you to depict solid, structurally sound figures with startlingly lifelike color, bathed in light and surrounded by air.

Instructor: S. Mellyn

The course will focus on creating a body of work based on content and technique. Students will draw material from a variety of sources, including photography, art history, and current and historical events. We will examine the illustrator's role in the contemporary art scene with emphasis on the bridge between the commercial and gallery worlds. Critique of work and in-class discussion will be included.

ILD-4311Modern Illumination

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Imperiale-Warner

During the Middle Ages, books were produced that drew widely from the use of symbolism and illustration to convey and support the meaning of the text, much like modern illustration. This course will focus on learning to use the materials and techniques of medieval illuminated manuscripts in a modern context. Students will learn to mix and use egg tempera, apply gold leaf and work on goatskin parchment. Some time will be devoted to looking at examples of manuscripts from Europe, Russia and Persia that were created in the Middle Ages, as well as contemporary examples of egg tempera. Individual research is a must. Initial course sessions are devoted to gilding and understanding the difficulties, limitations and beauty of egg tempera. The second part of the course is geared toward completion of a final project, which can range from re-creating elements of an illuminated manuscript to illustrations, cartoons or personal work. The course is recommended for students who have an attention to detail, excellent time management and patience with an extremely difficult medium. Knowledge of medieval illuminated manuscripts is not necessary. Note: Materials used in this course are generally more expensive than common painting materials.

ILD-4342Pixels on the Edge

Monday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250

Instructor: S. Ewalt

This course will explore and define the visual formulas that occur in popular images. You will then reinvent and "tweak" these formulas, while developing your own personal voice. We will strive for innovative, edgy solutions to problems, and discuss how an artist can produce marketable art for the mainstream while not compromising his or her aesthetics. Particular attention will be paid to issues of scale (the CD package vs. the billboard), period styles, tracing postmodern sources, and subculture genres. Students will combine their own drawn and found materials with the use of Adobe Photoshop and Adobe Illustrator. Prerequisite: Working knowledge of the Macintosh computer.

History of Interiors and Architecture III: Interiors of the English and American Traditions to 1900

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course will present the English interior from the Middle Ages, emphasizing the 18th and 19th century developments, as well as the complex inter-relationships with Continental styles. The American dependence upon this tradition from the 17th century onward to creative freedom will be explored. The totality of interior architecture, furniture and decorative arts will be stressed.

IDD-3110-A

History of Interiors and Architecture IV: Interiors of the 20th Century

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 interior design art history credits

Instructor: D. Dwyer

This course gives an in-depth picture of the richness and diversity of 20th-century design in European and American interiors, furniture and decorative arts. Topics will include: the Viennese Secession, Eclecticism, International Style, Art Deco, 1950s and 1960s modern and postmodern.

Green Design

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Sustainable design is an important strategy in today's design of the built environment, and clients are embracing it as part of their business models and mission statements. This course is geared toward the study of sustainable design strategy as related to LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design). Through case studies (in both the public and private sectors) and class projects, students will explore sustainable environmental design, as well as prepare for the LEED certification process.

Photography in Fine Art

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

While pronounced "dead" every so often, the painted "picture" never really goes away. Instead, painting survives (and flourishes) as a result of its collaboration with a medium once perceived to be its greatest foe—photography. This course will examine this historic co-dependence through lectures, gallery visits, guest lecturers and critique of student work. Artists as diverse as Salvador Dalí, Gerhard Richter and Tina Barney will be discussed in relationship to art history and in parallel developments in photography and print media. Of central concern will be recognizing the reasoning process and decision-making employed in the production of a work of art—be it a painting-scaled photograph or a snapshot-size painting.

PHD-3386-A

Take Photos. Add Techniques. Stir.

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Burrell

Techniques taught in this course will take the camera's image apart and insert an artist's vision. A series of in-class workshops will show students how to change tone, color, subject matter and composition in a photograph. Solvent transfers, blueprints and chemical "erasers" will reduce the clutter in photographs; photograms, multiple projections and drawings on acetate will add structure. Homemade lenses and unusual shooting assignments will change the camera's "drawing." Paint will mix with photography. Lectures on new theories of perception and traditional rules of academic painting will provide fresh understanding as the camera's record is turned into expressive pictures. This course does not provide access to darkrooms or computers. Instead, office copiers, slide projectors and one-hour mini-labs will be used as a "daylight darkroom."

PHD-3416Display, Presentation, Installation and Collaboration

Thursday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Garfield

Focusing on the application of theory and practice, this course will explore the uses of visual information in space. We will concentrate on the numerous implications of the relationship among the artist, the artistic object, the audience and on the use of this triangular relationship in conveying ideas. Using photo editing, drawing and drafting, model construction, computer and digital technology, experimental materials and nontraditional approaches in installations, we will explore aspects of presentation such as formal, spatial and political. Written and oral presentations are included. Discussions, slides and electronic media presentations, guest lectures and student experimentation to explore ideas, purpose, process and signature in exhibition will be employed. Texts will include excerpts from Visual Display, Slater; Before Photography, Galassi; Inside the White Cube, O'Doherty; Space, Site, Intervention, Suderburg; Visual Display of Quantitative Information, Tufte; The Power of Display, Staniszewski; New Media in Late 20th Century Art, Rush.

PHD-3423-APhoto Editing/Curatorial Projects I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: A. Brez, B. Yochelson

The photograph's flexibility, its ability to accrue meaning depending on context, is the basis of this course. Two different but related procedures will be explored: (1) The curatorial process in which exhibitions are formed that explore various themes, (2) Photo editing in which photographs are chosen or assigned to accompany printed text. This is a workshop course, and students will participate in these processes with work from both inside and outside the College community. Pictorial research and an informative attitude are expected, but this is also an opportunity for ideas and themes in each student's individual work to be identified and amplified. Note: No midyear entry.

PHD-3671-APhotography and the Cinema

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Maul

Both mainstream and independent cinema can play a subconscious role in the photography student's practice, operating like a deep depository of false memories when confronted by the real. This class will deepen the consideration of the moving image and how it informs the still image, using examples from artists in the 1970s who used photography and found justification in film to work in the current artistic community that appropriates film narrative. We will also address the vigorous relationship of commercial photography with cinema. In addition to lectures and critiques, readings will be assigned and discussed. Emphasis will be placed on articulating ideas as part of an individual's reasoning process.

History and Theory of Modern Art I

Tuesday 10:00-11:25

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: I. Taube

Intended to link the visual with the theoretical and the historical, this course will survey the relationship of art to its changing composition of ideas in a globalized context. Topics include: the contested concepts of the "modern," modernism and primitivism; the emergence of abstraction; the invention of photography, collage and the found object. We will trace the development of modern art in the 19th and 20th centuries. As a model for analyzing contemporary practice, the conceptual structure of the avant-garde will be studied historically in this course. Note: Open only to students enrolled in the Honors Program.

The Language of Modernism I

Thursday 10:00-11:30

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: R. Weinreich

What is "modernism?" Where does this period of aesthetics begin and end: between antiquity and the postmodern? This course seeks to define "modernism" through readings of key literary texts in order to explore the modernist sensibility as it is represented in the genres, structures and techniques of literature, as well as to examine how language delineates its parameters. Readings will be selected from the works of Wordsworth, Coleridge, Emerson, Whitman, Stein, Kafka, Woolf, Schulz, Camus, Beckett, T.S. Eliot and Pound, among others. Note: Open only to students enrolled in the Honors Program.

Visual Perspectives of the Premodernist World

Monday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

The history of art serves as a visual record of the history of ideas. This course will trace the changing nature of representation in painting, sculpture and architecture from the Paleolithic to the early 19th century. Focus will be placed on the rise of civilizations in the Greco-Roman world as well as their roots in non-Western cultures such as those in Asia and Africa. Class discussions, slide presentations and museum visits are a part of this course. Topics include art and ritual, idealism and beauty, iconoclasm, the grotesque and theories of God. Note: Open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

HUMANITIES AND SCIENCES

At the completion of the second-year Honors Program, students will receive nine humanities and sciences credits, and will have fulfilled the Humanities Distribution Requirements (HDRs) in history and social science. Note: Illustration and Cartooning majors may elect to defer enrolling in one of the following humanities and sciences courses until their junior year of study.

HHD-2050-HP

History of the Premodern World

Monday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Rednour

The course will examine how distinctive systems of belief provided emerging cultures with a framework for their social and political ideals and how these developed over time. We will see how geography influenced early Middle Eastern civilizations; how Confucius and the Tao directed China's path; how Hinduism provided India with cultural coherence; how the ideals and legacies of Greece and Rome set the tone for late Western thought; and how religion shaped medieval and early modern Europe. Finally, we will discuss how, in the early modern period, these systems came into closer contact, thereby creating the European Renaissance, and how these systems came into conflict and synthesis, ushering in the birth of globalization. Note: Open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

From Ancient Myth to the Birth of Modern Science

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Stafford

In this course we will begin by discussing the earliest forms of human thinking—animism and magic—and see how from these seeds, the human mind has created polytheistic religions, philosophy and ideas of law. We will conclude the semester by examining how philosophical and religious thought, from Aristotle to Galileo, has led to the development of scientific theory. Note: Open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

Human and Divine

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Hendricks

Beginning with the Sumerian Gilgamesh and ending with William Shakespeare's The Tempest, this course will examine the themes that concerned ancient and premodern storytellers: the genesis of humanity; the origins of evil; free will and morality; what it means to be human, neither divine nor animal. (Who are we? Where did we come from? Where are we going? Why?) By examining the characters, themes, motifs and structures of classic genres—drama, the epic and the lyric—that shaped and validated the story's content, this course will look at some of the answers that humans have proposed. Note: Open only to second-year students enrolled in the Honors Program.

Memory and History in Film

Wednesday 6:20-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Sinha

A range of issues will be addressed in this course, all intended to explore the relationship between history and memory in the films of Alain Resnais, Chris Marker, Andrei Tarkovsky and Alexander Kluge. How do the modernist and post-modernist discourses of memory and history take shape in these filmmakers' works? Questions crucial to the understanding of how cinema (re)works the ideas of history and memory through representation will be raised. What is the nature of this relationship? How do individual and social memories intersect? We will attempt to answer these and other questions as we trace the trajectories of two forces—memory and history—always at odds with each other in the films of these directors. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take AHD-3140-HP, Memory and History in Film, or AHD-3145-HP, Issues in Contemporary Art Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse.

Issues in Contemporary Art

Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Avgikos

We will focus our attention this semester on the impact/influence of globalism on visual culture and contemporary art. On one hand, we will frame the idea of "globalism" by rifling through the bones of history, including post-World War II distribution networks and post-Colonial legacies that begin to manifest in art in the '60s and '70s. On the other hand, we will investigate various exhibition formats, artists, audiences, narratives, circumstances and more (emphasis on '80s to the present), all of which contributed to the thrilling complexity of "worldwide visual culture" and the "global communication continuum." As Guy Davenport stated, "Art is the attention we pay to the wholeness of the world." This idea will be our first talking point. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take AHD-3140-HP, Memory and History in Film, or AHD-3145-HP, Issues in Contemporary Art Globalism—New Patterns of Practice, Shifting Grounds of Discourse.

HUMANITIES AND SCIENCES

HSD-3507

Visual Science Workshop

Thursday 3:00-5:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Gorrell

Limited to 15 students

This course will explore the science of the tools that visual artists use. While bringing to light the methods scientists use to see their theories come to life, we will study such topics as: the photoelectric effect, microscopy, chemistry of color, biology of vision and the growing dependence of visual techniques on computer science. Activities will include performing experiments in the classroom and with the staff at the American Museum of Natural History. Note: This course is open to all students. Third-year students enrolled in the Honors Program are required to take one semester of the course. All other students may register with permission of the instructor.

ACG-5050-A

History of Art Theory and Criticism I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: T. McEvilley

Required of all first-year students, this course will provide background to the history, theory and criticism offered through the elective course subjects. Students are given an overview of each subject that may be studied during the two-year program. The course also assists students in developing a thorough understanding of the prominent theoretical positions of art criticism—past and present.

ACG-5055-A

History of Art Theory and Criticism II

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: T. McEvilley

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ACG-5050 for course description.

ACG-5080-A

Writing I

Wednesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: S. Bee

This required course leads to the writing of the thesis in the final semester of the program. Students will read examples of different styles of critical writing. Brief texts, in the nature of reviews of current exhibitions, will be assigned. As the process advances, students are encouraged to dig more deeply into ideas without ever losing sight of the value of clarity. By the third semester of the program, students will write expanded texts that may be used as preliminary research for their thesis projects. Some students will choose to express themselves poetically and others analytically; the common goal will be clarity of expression.

ACG-5090-A

Writing II

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: R. Rubinstein

This is the second part of a three-semester course. Please see ACG-5080 for course description.

ACG-5341-A

Artists' Writings

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: S. Bee

This course will focus on the significant interventions that visual artists have made through art writing into the art criticism of their time. It will examine artists' writings, including: journals, art criticism, manifestos, theoretical writings, letters, and artist-run publications. Artists such as Wassily Kandinsky, László Moholy-Nagy, Kasimir Malevich, André Breton, Marsden Hartley, Barnett Newman, Ad Reinhardt, Robert Motherwell, Louise Bourgeois, Allan Kaprow, Robert Smithson, Donald Judd, Robert Morris, Adrian Piper, Mary Kelly, Carolee Schneemann, and many others have bridged the gap between art practice, artwork and critical theory, and invigorated the language of art criticism. We will concentrate on some of the key artists' writings from Russian constructivism to the Bauhaus, surrealism, abstract expressionism, Fluxus, feminism, conceptual art and minimalism.

ACG-5356-ASexual and Gender Dissidence in Art Criticism

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: R. Denson

Art has changed since the politics of feminism, queer activism and gender-bending in the 1980s. But the art of sexual diversity and transgendering has been a presence in art since the ancient Egyptians. So why are sexual and gender politics rocking the art world so resoundingly today? Designed to appeal as much to the straight student fascinated with the repression of sexual and gender codes as to the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender student seeking an analysis of self-expression, this course will first trace the art of the homosocial landscape of the heterosexual mainstream. We will then examine the historical, economic, ideological and cultural dynamics that have shaped homoerotic and homopolitical productions of the 20th and 21st centuries.

ACG-5368-AThe Idealist Tradition

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: T. Huhn

The idealist tradition begins with Plato, migrates to the neo-Platonists, the Renaissance Platonists, the Cambridge Platonists and Kant. After Kant, the tradition adapts through stages—Hegelian historicism, the critical historians, the British formalists (especially Bell and Frye), and lands with Clement Greenberg, who popularized and reinvigorated the idealist tradition for about a generation before it lost force, at least for a time. Readings include Plato's Ion, Phaedrus, Republic 3, Philebus; selections from Plotinus' Enneads; Kant's Critique of Judgment and selected essays; Clement Greenberg's Art and Culture and selected essays of Fried and Nodelman.

ACG-5394-AIntroduction to Visual Studies

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

Over the last half century, the historical development from cultural studies to visual culture to visual studies will be traced, with readings from Raymond Williams, Stuart Hall, Nicholas Mirzoeff, Marita Sturken and Lisa Cartwright, among others. Attention is given to the shifting relationship to Marxism and various approaches to the base/superstructure relationship. Classic studies in popular visual culture will be surveyed along with the ongoing friction with art history.

ACG-5411-AMarxism and Art Criticism

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: T. Huhn

The majority of the semester focuses on the Marxist aspect of art discourse over the last 20 years. Did the Situationist International really expel artists, and if so, why? Are the October critics essentially crypto-formalists? What is the relationship between the British movement of cultural studies and classical Marxism? Readings include works by Marx, Lukacz, Brecht, Adorno and Althusser, among others.

ACG-5423-APsychoanalysis and Art Criticism

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: D. Kuspit

Freud's writings on artists began the investigation of the relationship between art and psychoanalysis. From there, various theories emerge: those of Jacques Lacan and then Julia Kristeva; of Sandor Ferenczi, Geza Roheim and D.W. Winnicott; of Karen Horney and Melanie Klein. Starting in the 1970s, these branches of the psychoanalytic tradition began to enter explicitly into art theory and criticism—in the works of Peter Fuller in England, Hélène Cixous and Luce Irigaray in France, and others in the United States and elsewhere. This course will address such questions as: Is psychoanalysis a fruitful approach to art? What does it enable us to know that would not otherwise have declared itself?

ACG-5431-AThe Critical Evolution From Modernism to Postmodernism

Wednesday 3:00-5:50pm

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: R. Denson

This course deals with the relationship of postmodern theory and media to modernism as it was espoused by artists and art critics of the last half-century. Conceived in reaction to the formalist, reductionist and structuralist theories of modernism, postmodernism is born in the politically and aesthetically transgressive theories and media innovations of Dada and surrealism and evolves to challenge the art institutions and art historical canons. The writings of artists and critics of the last 50 years will accompany discussions on the media ironies of pop art; the anti-institutionalism of environmental art; the anti-formalism of postminimalism and poststructuralism; the deconstruction of originality and authorship in appropriation and simulation art.

ACG-5447-AScience and Art Criticism

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructor: S. Anker

Over the last century, art has been moving gradually away from the realm of religion and drawing closer to the realm of science. From Marcel Duchamp to Dennis Oppenheim to Agnes Denes and Nam June Paik, this course will consider recent significant texts that examine the incorporation of science and art. Readings will include works by Linda Henderson and Bill Camfield.

ACG-5477-AThis Moment

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructor: W. Beckley

Contemporary issues in art criticism will be examined, including the positions and attitudes of writers today—a kind of prosopography of contemporary art criticism. Important recent authors, books and essays will be consulted and discussed. The current state of criticism will be appraised through texts, art trends, publishing ventures and politics. This course will seek to answer fundamental questions such as: Is criticism becoming more or less critical? What is its relationship to religion and science? Does art criticism serve political agendas? Writings in art criticism of the last 10 years will be studied.

ACG-6030-AWriting III

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 4 credits

Instructors: R. Rubinstein

This course is a continuation of ACG-5090, Writing II, with an added element. In conjunction with writing and revising exhibition reviews for possible publication in the College's online journal, Art Lab 23, instructors will consult on thesis issues such as selection of a topic; shaping the parameters of the selected topic in a mode suitable for the thesis; review of written drafts and prognosticated outlines of the remaining work to come.

ACG-6050-AThesis Seminar

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 4 credits

Instructors: Thesis Faculty

Instructors from different backgrounds and fields will discuss what is important about a thesis from their points of view. Students will submit drafts of their work for discussion.

ACG-6060-AThesis

Day/Time: TBA

Spring semester: 8 credits

Instructor: Thesis Committee

Each student will meet with his or her thesis advisor and work on a one-to-one basis throughout the semester. Meetings are used for the instructor to read drafts of the thesis-in-progress followed by discussion on its development. A schedule for meetings will be established at the beginning of the semester.

AEG-5020-A

Educational Foundations

Wednesday 4:30-7:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. Salander

Art education will be explored through an examination of its cultural, social, psychological, environmental and aesthetic foundations. Art and its teaching will be situated within the contexts of psychosocial, cognitive and artistic development of children and adolescents. Research methodologies will also be introduced.

AEG-5050-A

Educational Psychology

Friday 5:00-8:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lombardo

The study of human development will be examined, including theories of cognition, social learning, information processing, motivation and mastery as they apply to the teaching process, especially in art education. In addition, educational, psychological and intelligence assessments will be discussed.

AEG-5080-A

Special Study I

Monday 4:00-5:00

Fall semester: 1 credit

Instructor: B. Salander

Weekly meetings to assist students in the development of the thesis project will be held throughout the semester. Students will conduct literature searches, prepare a literature review and conduct field research in SVA's children's programs or other placements and develop their ideas for a thesis topic.

AEG-5085-A

Special Study II

Monday 4:00-5:00

Spring semester: 1 credit

Instructor: B. Salander

Methodologies for conducting action-based research in classroom situations and data collection will be introduced in this course, and students will finalize their thesis proposals. Research techniques and compilation will provide the necessary background for thesis projects to be completed during the summer semester.

AEG-5120-A

Special Topics Seminar I

Day/Time: TBA; 6 sessions

Fall semester: 1 credit

Instructor: R. Viggiano

This seminar presents information on substance abuse for developing curricula materials that promote health and physical fitness for children in prekindergarten through the 12th grade. Discussions on how to identify and report suspected child abuse (or maltreatment), the prevention of child abduction and abuse, as well as information on fire prevention and arson will be included.

AEG-5125-A

Special Topics Seminar II

Day/Time: TBA; 6 sessions

Spring semester: 1 credit

Instructor: R. Viggiano

Special Topics Seminar II will address the use of art to support student learning in reading and literacy.

AEG-5160Curriculum for Special Populations

Monday 6:00-9:00

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Edmonds

Understanding the needs of special populations, and how disabilities, home situations and socioeconomic levels affect learning will be the focus of this course.

Students will teach workshops to elementary school-age children at a Red Cross shelter for displaced mothers and their small children. The role of art activities in fostering self-esteem and confidence in children will be explored, with an emphasis on group management, discipline and development of population-appropriate lessons. A special education component will focus on individualized instruction, legal responsibilities and ethical considerations for students with disabilities.

Monday 6:00-9:00

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. James

The purpose of this course is to create art educators who will be competent in the numerous new demands that educational reform is making of the entire learning community. Areas addressed will include: How the New York State Education Department performance standards relate to lesson planning; integration of classroom management as an element of good practice; cross-cultural issues and curriculum; integration of the visual arts with other subject areas; how to develop the listening, speaking, reading and writing skills of all students, including English-language learners. In addition, the course will familiarize students with the tasks that current New York State assessments present in social studies, science, math and English language arts. Requirements include the development and in-class presentation of sequential lesson plans.

ATG-5030-A

Theoretical Foundations of Art Therapy

Wednesday 1:00-3:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Obstfeld

The history of the theoretical aspects of art therapy will be explored. Analytic, behavioral, cognitive, interpersonal and humanistic approaches, important events, practitioners and the development of art therapy as a distinct therapeutic practice will be reviewed through readings, didactic and experiential sessions. Ethical and legal issues of art therapy practice, including certification, values, malpractice, confidentiality and an overview of psychotherapy theories relevant to art therapy will also be included in discussions and examined through case presentations and lectures.

ATG-5060-A

Expressive Therapies

Monday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Rapp

Students will be introduced to each of the expressive modalities, including dance, drama, writing and music as well as methods for integrating these modalities with the visual arts. Guest lecturers will provide the context for practical applications. Readings and experiential sessions will also be utilized.

ATG-5090-A

Child and Adolescent Art Development

Wednesday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Furman

This course will focus on the behavior of children from birth through adolescence. Through case presentations, readings and discussion, students will examine the physical, emotional and intellectual growth of children, and explore the psychological and physiological factors and cultural and environmental influences involved in learning, creativity and personality development. Normal development, psychopathology and art therapy treatment approaches will be included.

ATG-5130-A

Methods and Materials in Art Therapy

Monday 11:00-1:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Farber

This course will enable students to examine the use of paints, inks, organic art processes, sculpture materials and other traditional and nontraditional art media and their uses with specific client populations. Salient features of particular materials and expressive dimensions will be explored. Discussion of computer applications relevant to art therapy will be included. Students will explore the impact of art processes and materials through ongoing participation in personal art-making. By strengthening their connection to the creative process, students will gain an understanding of personal symbolic language, and arts-based learning allowing for the opportunity to integrate intellectual, emotional, artistic and interpersonal knowledge.

ATG-5150

Internship/Supervision in the Studio I

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 8 students

The MPS Art Therapy Department has developed numerous affiliations with a wide variety of institutions in and around New York City. Working with the field placement coordinator, each student will be placed in a supervised internship that corresponds with his or her area of specialization. Students are required to spend 16 hours per week at an internship site each semester. Small-group supervision will also be provided by SVA faculty members through a unique studio-based component of this course. This will give students a regular opportunity to reflect on their work with clients and to further their own artistic development as they explore the challenges of artist-as-therapist. Students will explore professional identity, professional ethics and the ethical practice of art therapy and the proper application of ethical and legal principles of art therapy practice, and gain familiarity with the ethical standards of the American Art Therapy Association and Art Therapy Credentials Board as well as other related fields.

Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: L. Furman
This course will assist in the development of clinical skills through an exploration of techniques and practices. Topics will include standards and methods of documentation, treatment planning, treatment team reports (oral and written) and case presentation. Emphasis will be placed on theoretical and experiential understanding of group art therapy techniques—group dynamics and process, counseling methods, leadership styles and approaches, member roles and behaviors, selection criteria, short- and long-term group process, therapeutic factors and stages of group development. Contemporary theorists will also be critically surveyed. In addition, research methodologies and design will be explored for thesis/special project preparation.

ATG-5240-A
Adult Development and Aging

Monday 9:00-11:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: R. Stephenson
Students will examine the physical and emotional development of adults and explore the psychological and physiological factors involved. Specific emphasis will be placed on the variations of the aging process and how these manifest themselves in behavior and creative expression. Normal development, psychopathology, clinical interventions and art therapy treatment approaches will be included.

ATG-5270-A Multicultural Issues in Art Therapy

Wednesday 6:00-8:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: B. Mosinski
The effect of ethnicity and culture in the therapeutic process will be examined through case materials, slide illustrations, didactic and experiential sessions. This course will explore cultural determinants of problems encountered in the field of art therapy and provide a foundation of knowledge in cultural diversity theory and competency models applied to an understanding of diversity of artistic language, symbolism and meaning in artwork and art-making across culture and within a diverse society. Students will investigate the role of the art therapist in social justice, advocacy and conflict resolution, including theories of counseling and development of competencies essential for a culturally responsive therapist with regard to age; gender; sexual orientation; ethnicity; nationality; socio-economic status; developmental disability; education; family, religious and spiritual values. Cultural self-awareness through self-assessment, strategies for working with diverse communities and critical thinking with regard to attitudes, beliefs and competent practice will be explored. Students will be encouraged to share their own cultural beliefs and attitudes in relation to the practice of art therapy.

ATG-5460-A
Psychiatric Populations and the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual (DSM IV)

Wednesday 9:00-11:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: M. Kraebber
Psychopathology, as determined by the DSM multi-axial system, will be examined in depth. Case material will be presented for each diagnostic category and the clinical implications for the art therapist will be explored. Treatment approaches will be considered, as will indicators of functional and organic disorders in behavior and artwork of clients. Types of psychopharmacological medications will also be covered.

ATG-6060-A
Clinical Topics in Addictionology

Thursday 6:00-8:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: M. Fisher
The phenomenology of substance abuse, utilizing a bio-psychological model, will be examined. A review of the history and evolution of current modes of treatment, in addition to the rationale for the disease concept of alcoholism, will be offered.

ATG-6090-A
Physiology of Addictions

Thursday 9:00-11:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: T. Becker
Contemporary neuro-chemical theories of addictions are the focus of this course. Neuroanatomy and physiology will be examined, as well as the use of psychotropic medication for treatment of substance abuse. An in-depth look at theories regarding the genetic etiology of substance abuse will be reviewed.

ATG-6120
Thesis Project I

Fall semester: 3 credits
In this course, students will be supervised by art therapy faculty members in the development and production of a thesis topic. Each project must present an original point of view and include supporting documentation of its concepts and findings. In addition, students may opt to explore grant-writing opportunities or other extensive in-depth projects. Structured methods and formats such as quantitative and qualitative research, formal case studies and arts-based research will be discussed. Students are required to present their thesis projects to peers and faculty. The department chair will oversee all projects.

ATG-6160-AClinical Topics in Challenged Populations

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. David

This course will offer a range of art therapy applications and issues, presented by a series of clinicians in their areas of expertise. Client populations, treatment approaches and related professional aspects will be covered, including isolation, trauma and chronic disease. Phenomena within the treatment settings explored will include interdisciplinary collaboration, co-treating, contribution to the treatment record, ethics and standards of practice. The potentials of therapeutic arts disciplines within the treatment milieu will be examined in depth.

ATG-6170Internship/Supervision in the Studio III

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 8 students

The MPS Art Therapy Department has developed numerous affiliations with a wide variety of institutions in and around New York City. Working with the field placement coordinator, each student will be placed in a supervised internship that corresponds with his or her area of specialization. Students are required to spend 16 hours per week at an internship site each semester. Small-group supervision will also be provided by SVA faculty members through a unique studio-based component of this course. This will give students a regular opportunity to reflect on their work with clients and to further their own artistic development as they explore the challenges of artist-as-therapist. Students will explore professional identity, professional ethics and the ethical practice of art therapy and the proper application of ethical and legal principles of art therapy practice, and gain familiarity with the ethical standards of the American Art Therapy Association and Art Therapy Credentials Board as well as other related fields.

ATG-6210-AArt Assessment and Diagnosis

Tuesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Bader

Art assessment and diagnostic materials will be explored through experiential sessions, didactic learning and casework. Students will learn the fundamentals of art therapy assessment, statistical concepts including reliability and validity, selection of the assessment tool and familiarity with a variety of specific art therapy instruments and procedures used in appraisal and evaluation, and gain an understanding of developmental levels, cultural factors, psychopathology and psychological health manifested in artwork and art-making. In addition, administration and documentation of art therapy assessment, formulation of treatment goals, objectives and strategies related to assessment and evaluation, including historical perspectives of assessment, basic concepts of standardized and non-standardized testing and assessment, fundamentals of psychological testing, biopsychosocial assessment, statistical concepts including reliability and validity, strategies for selection of the assessment tool and familiarity with a variety of specific instruments and procedures used in appraisal and evaluation will be discussed. Projective tests such as the Diagnostic Drawing Series (DDS), Leveck

Emotional and Cognitive Art Therapy Assessment (LECATA), Mandala Assessment Research Instrument (MARI), Silver Drawing Test of Cognition and Emotion, Ulman Personality Assessment Procedure (UPAP) and other psychometric instruments will be explored.

ATG-6430-AArt Therapy in Disabilities

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. O'Connell

This course will examine the relationship of art therapy intervention in persons with physical and emotional challenges. Emphasis will be placed on the facilitation of coping strategies. Case presentations, slide and video illustrations, readings, research and clinical implications for treatment will be offered.

ATG-6490-AFamily Art Therapy: The Impact of Disability and Addiction

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Rapp

Family therapy and systems theory will provide the theoretical foundation of this course. Family art therapy techniques and strategies will be explored as methods to assist families in the adjustment to the life transition of the disabled. Literature, research and case material will be presented.

ATG-6520-ACommunity Access Through the Arts

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Sereno

The professional role as an art therapist, with regard to function and relationships with other mental health providers, including knowledge of professional organizations, credentialing and licensure, public policy, advocating for the profession and client advocacy will be explored. Students will learn how to create an in-service presentation, which will include didactic materials and client work, to appeal to various audiences. Alternatives to traditional methods of psychotherapeutic treatment will be explored, such as psychosocial clubs, peer-led support groups and consumer-run centers. Field visits will be included for observation and presentation purposes. Students will receive instruction in preparing to enter the job market, including practice in résumé writing and professional interviewing skills. Occupational counseling, career development theory, information and resources, diversity factors, supervision and ethical and legal issues and the development of art therapy-based career counseling will be covered, along with knowledge and skills considered essential in enabling individuals and organizations to positively affect career development and aptitude.

ATG-6550-AInterviewing and Counseling Skills for Challenged and Addicted Populations

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Obstfeld

Students will be introduced to assessment and evaluation techniques for the treatment of challenged populations, chemically dependent clients and their families. Intake strategies for both short- and long-term settings, and how to develop counseling skills will be the primary focus. Students will learn the historical development of counseling and psychological theories, understanding of systems perspective, application to case material and critical thinking with regard to similarities and differences between art therapy intervention and counseling intervention. Case material and presentations, role-playing, videotaping, contemporary theories such as the Minnesota Model for treatment of substance abuse, behavioral, cognitive, educational, creative arts, lecture and experiential work will be offered.

Department of Computer Art

Degree Requirements

Successful completion of all course requirements

Complete a minimum of 60 credits

Maintain a minimum grade point average of 3.0 (B)

Produce a thesis approved by the Thesis Committee

Participate in a public thesis presentation

The MFA program in computer art offers a broad curriculum that covers all areas of digital art. Students may concentrate their studies in one of the following disciplines: animation, digital video, installation art, interactive media or networked media, or they may elect to do cross-disciplinary work. Examples of cross-disciplinary study include interactive video and DVD projects, new media performance, visual music and advanced programming projects. Students are required to meet with the departmental advisor to determine which courses are appropriate for their planned course of study.

Individual progress is assessed each semester to determine a student's readiness to proceed to the next level. Although most students earn their degrees in four semesters, some find it necessary or desirable to study for five or six semesters before completing the thesis process. Extended study in the program is determined on an individual basis and important considerations such as coursework, visa extension and financial aid must be resolved before extended study can be approved.

The recommended course load is 15 credits per semester. All students must be registered for a minimum of 9 credits per semester in order to remain enrolled in the program.

MFA Computer Art First-Year Requirements

Students must take all of the courses listed under Requirement A, and choose a minimum of two courses from Requirement B and a minimum of two courses from Requirement C.

STUDIO COURSES

SCG-5386

3D Modeling and Animation

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course will examine the technical concepts of creating computer-generated 3D imagery. It will also examine the application of the aesthetic concepts of traditional animation to creative 3D animation. Geometric construction techniques, surface texturing, scene illumination and cameras will be covered. Traditional animation techniques, such as squash-and-stretch, anticipation, follow-through, overlapping action, arcs of motion, exaggeration, staging and appeal will also be explored. Assignments will integrate technical and aesthetic information into short, creative 3D animation projects.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor
SCG-5386-A	W	11:00-1:50	S. Rittler
SCG-5386-B	Th	12:00-2:50	C. Edwards

SCG-5401

Character Animation I

Spring semester: 3 credits

This course is designed to deepen students' understanding of 3D character animation through a study of model rigging, animation, camera, texture mapping and other techniques central to the practice of character animation. Emphasis will be on the conveyance of character through movement according to animation principles and their implementation with software tools standard to the industry. Short team assignments will focus on developing two contrasting animated characters. Prerequisite: SCG-5386, 3D Modeling and Animation.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor

SCG-5401-B	F	3:00-4:50	C. Edwards

SCG-5416-A

Concepts of Interactivity

Monday 3:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Weinbren

Artwork should not be interactive merely because we have the knowledge to make it so. Designed for students interested in creating interactive media, installation art and/or networked media, this course will explore the relationship between concept and interactivity. In order to make the interactivity integral to the work, the conceptual underpinnings of the project must be explored. Students will be encouraged to discuss and write about their work in an in-depth manner, by investigating and critiquing the work of contemporary interactive artists. Students will be expected to conceive several different interactive pieces, one of which they will explore in depth for a final project.

SCG-5424-A

3D for Fine Artists

Monday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Acevedo

This course will introduce the possibilities, techniques and strategies of incorporating 3D animation and modeling software into a contemporary fine art practice. It is intended for students who are not necessarily pursuing 3D animation as a specialization. Softimage XSI will serve as the exploratory platform and will be introduced through a series of lectures and assignments. The course will also survey the historical and contemporary use of 3D computer graphics in fine art. Assigned projects will include both still and time-based imagery.

SCG-5441-A

Story Structures I

Wednesday 3:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Brownie

This course will study the structural elements underlying animated entertainment, visual music, and experimental linear and nonlinear art forms. Traditional story and musical structures will be examined, with the objective of discovering what kind of experience can be conveyed within a few minutes or 30 seconds in electronic entertainment and art. The course will provide an understanding of temporal composition that will enable students to engage the audience in a dynamic emotional or spiritual experience. Throughout the semester, students will develop an original story concept or adaptation realized as an animatic with sound. Prerequisite: Students need to have some drawing ability.

SCG-5442-A

Story Structures II

Wednesday 3:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Brownie

A continuation of SCG-5441, Story Structures I, this course centers on honing the craft of screenplay and storyboard structure. Students will focus on further development of concepts, such as central dramatic question, inciting incident, idiosyncratic characters and spaces, conflicts and needs, mounting tension, turning points, reversals and denouement. We will explore these concepts through the genre of short, narrative film. Students will develop an original story concept or adaptation realized as an animatic with audio, which may be used for a thesis in narrative animation. Prerequisite: SCG-5441, Story Structures I.

SCG-5462

Sound Workshop I

One semester: 3 credits

Each section limited to 10 students

Intended as an introduction to the creative possibilities of the medium of sound, this course will give equal emphasis to ideas relating to sound composition—structure, form, texture—and technical considerations in gaining competency with the equipment. Concepts relating to the physics and biology of sound, as well as the history of sound recording technology, are included. The focus is on creating and refining “sound art” compositions. Students will also learn the process of “sound design” that refers to creating sound to accompany video or film imagery. Digidesign ProTools is the primary audio editing software/hardware employed.

SCG-5501-A

Networked Media Studio I

Tuesday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Ludin

This studio course will introduce students to art-making and design possibilities using networked media. The primary focus will be on creating interactive projects that utilize telecommunication and Web technologies. Readings, presentations and discussions of the major themes currently being explored by networked media artists will be used to stimulate and inspire individual projects. An overview and introduction to the telecommunication tools needed to complete assigned projects will be presented and discussed.

SCG-5502-A (previously SCG-5606)

Networked Media Studio II

Tuesday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Deck

Intended for students interested in using the Internet for their theses, this course will address technical and methodological issues surrounding creative and innovative Web artworks. The development of a working process for artists using the Internet will be emphasized. Students are expected to produce Web sites that will be evaluated on both artistic and technical merits.

SCG-5523-AGame Design

Tuesday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Mikros

The study of interactive design is at the core of what is unique to creating art on the computer. Game design is the creation of interactive, self-contained systems of rules usually containing a challenge and a victory condition. This course is geared not only toward those interested in the game industry, but also toward artists and designers interested in creating compelling and meaningful interactivity. This goal will be met through the exploration and critique of the work of interactive artists and commercial game designers. The course will include guest lectures by contemporary artists and game designers; readings, including essays and interviews; hands-on assignments to conceive and create paper prototypes for games; analysis and critique of student assignments, commercial games and fine art games. Students are expected to research and play games that lie outside the course syllabus and to share those experiences in a thoughtful and meaningful way.

SCG-5529-AVideo for Computer Artists I

Friday 3:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Barron

This course examines the fundamental concepts of cinematography and video recording, editing structure, linear and nonlinear editing, special effects and transitions. We will also discuss issues pertinent to the final form in which the materials will be used. Students will gain a strong foundation in digital video production and postproduction; emphasis will be placed on the development of QuickTime and other digital formats that can be used in multimedia work, DVD or online projects.

SCG-5531-A (previously SCG-5729)Video for Computer Artists II

Friday 3:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Barron

A continuation of SCG-5529, Video for Computer Artists I, this course centers on honing the craft of linear video art. Students will focus on the development of concepts through examination of works by such diverse artists as Jan Svankmajer, Chris Cunningham, Laurie Anderson and Maya Deren. We will also examine technical issues such as green-screen, lighting techniques, multi-camera production, audio production, postproduction, compression techniques, and fixed- and live-video streaming. Students will be assigned three video projects that will be critiqued in class. Prerequisite: SCG-5529, Video for Computer Artists I, or instructor's permission.

SCG-5532Digital Compositing

Monday 8:00-9:50pm

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Lai

This course will survey a range of aesthetic issues, practical techniques and software applications used for digital compositing. The role of compositing in feature film and television commercial production will be examined in depth through practical examples. Students will be assigned short projects that reflect the ideas and techniques discussed in class and will present their creative work for group critique.

Course #	Semester
SCG-5532-A	fall
SCG-5532-B	spring

SCG-5537-AMultimedia Studio I

Wednesday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

For students wishing to create interactive projects, this course will give a solid grounding in the design and execution of interactive and networked media artworks. Emphasis will be placed on studio practice using Flash ActionScript as the primary exploratory platform. Contemporary examples of interactive media will be deconstructed and critiqued. Incorporating video, audio, graphic imagery and typography—within an interactive authoring environment—will be examined. The course will consist of lecture, discussion, several short creative assignments and group critique.

SCG-5538-AMultimedia Studio II

Monday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Denning

A continuation of SCG-5537, Multimedia Studio I, this course will focus on the conceptualization and production of interactive and networked media artworks. Emphasis will be placed on studio practice using Flash ActionScript as the primary exploratory platform. Topics will focus on advanced interactivity using database and rich media structures to incorporate video, audio, graphic imagery and typography for stand-alone, networked, and mobile creative solutions. The course will consist of lecture, discussion, several creative assignments, and group critique. Prerequisites: SCG-5537, Multimedia Studio I, and HSG-5202, Multimedia Programming I.

SCG-5544-AStereoscopic 3D

Thursday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Marks

Stereoscopic 3D, which provides separate images for each eye, has been part of imaging since the dawn of photography. Working with stereo imagery has become increasingly valuable in entertainment, and the arts and sciences. It also offers a window into visual perception and the opportunity to reexamine many of the techniques and issues confronted in conventional image work. This course will cover all of the diverse methods and artistic possibilities for producing and displaying stereo imagery. Students will produce several stereoscopic projects that explore their own artwork using video, still images or animation.

SCG-5586-APhysical Computing I

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

Artworks and technologies that interface computing with objects and spaces in the physical world are the central concerns of this course. Students will become familiar with basic electronics, sensing technologies, simple microcontrollers, computer-controlled motors and other actuators, as well as installation, robotics, telepresence and network-based projects that utilize them. Class members will be expected to simultaneously develop an articulate, theoretical basis for conceptualizing and discussing such works. While the course is highly technical, the development and realization of student projects will be the primary focus.

SCG-5657-AAdvanced Modeling and Rigging Concepts

Friday 12:00-1:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Y. Canetti

Creating animated characters is one of the most challenging aspects of modern cinema. In this course, students will learn how to create 3D characters from design to modeling and setup through the development of a character pipeline. Considerations in character design, how to incorporate anatomy to improve characters workability, and how to develop a flexible nonlinear work flow will be covered. Modeling issues such as geometry types, topology and efficiency will also be explored. Rigging topics will include inverse kinematics and forward kinematics, expression and binary nodes, joint placement and orientations, and binding and deforming skin geometry. Students are expected to actively participate through weekly assignments and critiques. By the end of the course, students will have created a character they can easily animate.

SCG-5727-ADigital Montage

Friday 3:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Bowen

The theoretical function of montage will be investigated by examining how digital compositing tools and techniques have impacted the creation and perception of still and temporal imagery. The history of montage will also be explored through selected theoretical readings that will help students to place their personal practice within the broader context of digital art and culture. Course work will progress from the creation of still imagery to motion graphics using Adobe Photoshop, After Effects and other software. Class time will be divided between critical discussions and studio projects.

SCG-5736-ANew Forms in Video

Wednesday 12:00-1:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lowder

A half century ago, video was only available through the medium of television. Today, video is accessible through the Internet, DVD, PDA, installations, sculpture, performances, mobile phones, etc. The objective of this studio course is to investigate multiple means of creating and distributing video art. Gathering imagery using both lens-based and non-lens-based technologies will be explored, including various types of video cameras such as "pinhole" CCD cameras that are used for surveillance applications, stop motion and time-lapse techniques. Interactive forms of video will be examined. We will also explore the many ways that video can be displayed and acted upon, such as projection and LCD's. Alternative distribution technologies will be covered. Students will be assigned a semester-long project that must be completed in at least two of the following media: Internet, installation, PDA, performance, interactive screen-based application, sculpture, DVD or hybrid.

SCG-6050-AThesis Group I

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructors: Thesis Committee

This course is intended to guide students through the initial stages of their thesis. A forum for discussion and critique of thesis work-in-progress with faculty, class members and visiting artists will be provided. The thesis project consists of documented research and a body of finished work for the MFA degree. Work should reflect individual direction and interests, attained through an awareness of the computer and its creative potential in the chosen area of practice. The thesis process takes a minimum of two semesters. In Thesis Group I, students will finalize a written thesis proposal, conduct research and begin their creative work. Throughout the year, students will work with a thesis group leader and the department chair.

SCG-6060Thesis Group II

Friday 12:00-2:50

One semester: 6 credits

Instructors: Thesis Committee

A continuation of SCG-6050, Thesis Group I, this course is geared to achieving the goals outlined in their thesis proposals. Weekly group and individual critiques will be held.

SCG-6210Thesis Research and Writing I

Fall semester: 3 sessions, no credit

Intended to help students to better articulate thesis research, concepts and context, this course will focus on preliminary research, finalizing the thesis proposal, and the thesis research paper. Students will meet with the instructor in groups and individually several times during the semester. The critique and review portion will be open to all thesis students every week. A schedule of meetings will be distributed to students at the beginning of the semester.

SCG-6351-D-F	spring

SCG-6354-ADVD Authoring

Friday 3:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lowder

Exploring the creative possibilities and limitations of DVD and how to go beyond the boilerplate approach of the movie industry to creating titles that are site-specific to the medium is the focus of this course. In other words, the creation of new works that are meant to originate as DVD pieces. Students will learn the techniques possible within the medium as well as ways to use DVD-video within responsive installations or video sculpture such as controlling custom DVD players with the Basic Stamp 2 microcontroller. Prerequisites: SCG-5529, Video for Computer Artists I, and SCG-5462, Sound Workshop I, or equivalent.

SCG-6364-ASeminar in Musical Choices

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Grana

Limited to 12 students

Guiding students toward a process for designing a sound environment that is properly connected to their visual concept is the premise of this course. The process will provide a sound accompaniment to help students better realize the story line and the motion of characters involved in their animations. Web site designers and installation artists can achieve a strong musical reference point in order to formulate a sensible sound parallel to their visuals. Students will learn how to make music choices for projects that will guide artistic vision or enhance what is already conceived.

SCG-6372-AInterface Design

Monday 12:00-1:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Lederman

This course will examine advanced issues and techniques of user-centered design. In addition, a general approach to interface design will be explored through review of other interactive networked environments and kiosk-based works. Students will be challenged to achieve unique and workable design decisions, and will test their projects with prototypes. Field trips and guest lectures by leading interface designers will provide a forum for discussion.

SCG-6386-APhysical Computing II

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

A continuation of SCG-5586, Physical Computing I, this course will go into greater depth in the examination and discussion of available technologies for creating interactive artworks and installations that involve sensors, microcontrollers, motors and other means of interfacing the physical and the virtual. Development and realization of artworks will be the primary focus of the course. Prerequisite: SCG-5586, Physical Computing I.

SCG-6387-A (previously SCG-6486)Physical Computing III

Friday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Muelas

A continuation of SCG-6386, Physical Computing II, this course will go into greater depth in the examination and discussion of available technologies for creating interactive artworks that involve sensors, microcontrollers, motors and other means of interfacing the physical and the virtual. Exploring solutions for thesis projects will be the focus of the course; however, we will also explore advanced topics such as robotics, wireless sensor and data transmission solutions. Prerequisite: SCG-6386, Physical Computing II.

SCG-6401-AProduction Issues: Animation

Wednesday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Hong

This course will examine the production of animation projects and will cover such topics as animation choreography, camera and character motion, texturing, lighting, effects, rendering and compositing. The main focus will be production methods as they are practiced in the professional world. Assignments will focus on the conceptualization, design, scheduling and techniques of animation production that are covered in class.

SCG-6401-BProduction Issues: Interactive Media

Thursday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Shupe

This course will examine the production of interactive projects, including asset development and integration, programming, testing, debugging and delivery. Divided into a lecture/individual format, both new topics and student projects will be examined. Specific areas of focus include: improving programming techniques (including focused efforts in JavaScript, and ActionScript), cross-platform development issues, testing and debugging approaches and more. The main thrust of the course will be toward providing support for the creation of thesis projects, and teaching students production methods as they are practiced in the professional world.

SCG-6401-CProduction Issues: Video

Monday 3:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lowder

This course will examine professional video production methods as they apply to installation, linear format, interactive DVD, performance and Internet video works. Topics to be covered include: advanced editing, compression, video integration within an installation and DVD-video programming/production. The focus will be toward providing support for the creation of thesis projects. We will also discuss industry standards and fine-art video practice.

SCG-6402-AProduction Issues: Animation II

Thursday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: I. Hong

A continuation of SCG-6401-A, Production Issues: Animation, this course will go into greater depth in the examination and discussion of thesis projects and professional production methods. Advanced techniques in lighting, texturing and rendering will be covered. Prerequisite: SCG-6401-A, Production Issues: Animation.

SCG-6402-BProduction Issues: Interactive Media II

Thursday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Shupe

A continuation of SCG-6401-B, Production Issues: Interactive Media, this course will go into greater depth in the examination and discussion of thesis projects and professional production methods. Advanced programming techniques in JavaScript and ActionScript, as well as audio and video issues, will be covered. Prerequisite: SCG-6401-B, Production Issues: Interactive Media.

SCG-6411-ACharacter Animation II

Tuesday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Edwards

This course will provide thesis students with a workshop setting in which to solve advanced animation problems and deepen their practical understanding of professional techniques. It will focus on advanced animation techniques such as hierarchical modeling, inverse kinematics, model deformation (morphing), animating lights and camera movement, rotoscoping, lip sync and facial expressions. Students are encouraged to explore other advanced techniques such as particle systems, plant growth and special effects. The course will be divided into lectures, demonstrations, tutorials, in-class exercises and critiques. Prerequisite: SCG-5401, Character Animation I.

SCG-6462-ASound Workshop II

Wednesday 3:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Lowder

Limited to 10 students

This course will build on the material covered in SCG-5462, Sound Workshop I. Conceptual and technical context for the composition of music will be introduced, and course work will include creative projects, in-class listening, critique, lecture and discussion. We will also cover two primary areas in which the capabilities of Digidesign's Pro Tools are expanded: music composition using MIDI sequencing and real-time, surround-sound mixing. SampleTank and Reason applications will be introduced. Prerequisite: SCG-5462, Sound Workshop I, or equivalent.

SCG-6558-AVideo for Computer Artists III

Wednesday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Bowes

Limited to 10 students

After mastering the basics of creating, editing and compositing digital video image sequences, the issues of refining a directing style and content choice become relevant. Students will produce short video projects and/or Webcast programs that will be presented for group critique. Lecture topics will include directing styles, editing philosophies, preparing video for CD-ROM, DVD and the Internet, developing Webcast programming, and advanced topics. Prerequisite: SCG-5531, Video for Computer Artists II, or SCG-5736, New Forms in Video, or instructor's permission.

SCG-6561-AMusic Composition and Sound Design

Tuesday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Grana

Limited to 12 students

The fundamentals of music design and selection for animation, Web sites, DVDs, video and other digital art projects will be the focus of this course. It will involve the selection and use of prerecorded material, as well as the creation of music and audio content. We will address the inspirational stage, the final music track and the time constraints involved in music and sound production through the students' execution of original material. Discussions will center on the differences between working with sound in a narrative and an interactive environment. Students will present their projects for in-class critique.

SCG-6588-AVideo Issues

Wednesday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Friedman

Limited to 10 students

In this experimental course, we will look at relationships between basic philosophical issues and the moving image. Students will read theoretical texts, view video works, and make several short sketch assignments based on ideas taken from the readings. Students will develop a final project based upon one or more of these sketches. The course will be run as a seminar, and presentations on specific topics will be developed through each student's individual research. Prerequisite: SCG-5529, Video for Computer Artists I, or instructor's permission.

SCG-6959Independent Study

One semester: 3 credits

Independent study is granted to students in the second year, who wish to pursue a special project not covered by the parameters of course curriculum. Students work independently, under the tutelage of an appropriate faculty member or professional sponsor. Prior to beginning independent study, students must submit a detailed proposal that outlines their goals. At the end of the semester, a summary of the completed work is required. Independent study proposals must be approved by the departmental advisor and the department chair.

SCG-6969Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Students can gain valuable professional exposure and experience through an internship project with a professional sponsor or an employer. The departmental advisor and department chair can assist in locating internships that suit students' goals. To receive credit, students must get departmental approval in advance, start the internship by the third week of the semester, and receive a positive evaluation from the sponsor/employer at semester's end.

COMPUTER SCIENCES/
PROGRAMMING COURSES*HSG-5010*Computer Systems I

Tuesday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course will demystify hardware and software components of computing systems in general, and will empower students with practical decision-making skills of a technical nature. We will discuss the user-interface, operating system, CPU technology and bus architecture of the platforms in the MFA Computer Art Lab. We will undertake a comparative study of programming languages. Further discussion will include mass storage, input/output devices and networking.

Course #	Instructor
HSG-5010-A	T. Brous
HSG-5010-B	M. Kirby

HSG-5011-A (previously HSG-5366)Computer Systems II

Tuesday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Brous

The MFA Computer Art Lab is a sophisticated and complex network of computers, peripherals, software, servers and other high-end components. If students are to take advantage of the true potential and power of the MFA lab, indoctrination in "real-world" problem solving is necessary. This course dissects, researches and solves systems problems that prepare students to successfully execute a thesis in interactive media or networked media. In addition to lectures, field trips will be made to state-of-the-art facilities. Prerequisite: HSG-5010, Computer Systems I.

HSG-5111-AProgramming for Artists I

Wednesday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Mikros

Intended for students with no prior exposure to computer programming, this course is recommended for all concentrations. Beginning with a discussion about how programming has evolved to its present form, students will gain an understanding of the various applications of computer programming and the flexibility it allows for going beyond commercially available software products. Emphasis will be placed on solving creative problems. Topics will include understanding computer architecture, basic programming constructs, a survey of languages and their applications, procedural vs. object-oriented programming, graphics programming, and an introduction to the Processing programming language and environment. The course will consist of lectures and short weekly assignments.

HSG-5146-AWeb Programming I

Monday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Deck

The basic concepts, techniques and technologies of Web programming will be introduced, with the goal of learning how to design and build dynamic and database-driven sites for the Web. Conceptual and practical programming concepts will be examined through the creation of flowcharts, as well as working through examples of code and scripts, including HTML, CSS, JavaScript and PHP. The exploration of design principles and building of dynamic templates will be achieved by working on assigned projects.

HSG-5202-AMultimedia Programming I

Thursday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Shupe

This course will introduce multimedia programming concepts using Flash ActionScript as a foundation. Topics will include variables, data types, scope, conditionals, loops, functions, and program flow. Similar compatible languages, such as JavaScript, PHP, and Processing will be discussed briefly, with a focus on language similarities and differences. Additional technologies, such as audio, video, XML, authoring for mobile devices and external sensors and controllers may also be explored. These comparative looks at programming approaches will help students determine which will be most useful during thesis development. The course will consist of lectures, short weekly assignments, and a final project.

HSG-5336UNIX

Fall semester: 3 credits

The UNIX operating system remains an essential tool to the computer animator and artist. This course will strive to prepare students to go beyond the basic functionality of UNIX and into the realm of scripting—where the real power and flexibility of the operating system lies. Along the way, we will explore topics that will help students to understand and control the environment in which they work, and learn the tools that will help achieve goals more quickly and efficiently.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor
HSG-5336-A	W	6:00-7:50	L. Skedde
HSG-5336-B	Th	6:00-7:50	A. Deck

HSG-5564-AMax/MSP/Jitter I

Wednesday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Ralske

Students will learn how to use Max/MSP/Jitter by Cycling 74, a programming environment that allows you to create interactive environments with MIDI (Max), real-time audio processing (MSP), and real-time graphics and video processing (Jitter). Max can be used for developing interactive installations and improvisation/performance systems. This course will cover the fundamentals of designing programs in Max, as well as how to integrate simple hardware systems and the basics of real-time sound and video processing. Students will create one or two projects. Occasional group critiques will be given. Prerequisites: SCG-5462, Sound Workshop I, and SCG-5529, Video for Computer Artists I.

HSG-6046-AWeb Programming II

Monday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Gluck

Students will be introduced to programming concepts used to create dynamic content for the Web. Assuming basic HTML skills, students will learn to add JavaScript to pages to effect client-side dynamic pages. CSS, XML, JSP and introductory database techniques will be explored to add functionality to a Web application. Several short assignments will be given, enabling students to produce creative and innovative Web sites. Prerequisite: HSG-5146, Web Programming I, or instructor's permission.

HSG-6047-AWeb Programming III (previously HSG-6146)

Tuesday 12:00-1:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Deck

This course will examine scripting techniques used in Web programming. PHP and ActionScript will be the primary focus. Integration of browser-based scripting and server-side techniques will be covered in depth. A technical foundation for meaningful interactivity using the Internet will be a major goal of the course, and students will conduct research into the programming techniques demonstrated in class. The course will also help students learn to coordinate the use of various languages, such as JavaScript, HTML, PHP and ActionScript. Debugging of programs, and the Document Object Model that underlies Dynamic HTML, client server communication, application servers, file and socket operations, ECMA script, and databasing will also be covered. Students will complete a final project that incorporates course material. Prerequisite: HSG-6046, Web Programming II, or instructor's permission.

HSG-6111-AProgramming for Artists II

Tuesday 6:00-7:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Gluck

A continuation of HSG-5111, Programming For Artists I, this course will further explore object-oriented and graphics programming through the use of the Processing programming language and environment, and will introduce the Java programming language and environment. Emphasis will be placed on solving creative problems by going beyond commercially available software products. Topics will include understanding computer architecture, 2D and 3D image processing, intermediate programming constructs, and rich media Web solutions. The course will consist of lectures and short weekly assignments. Prerequisite: HSG-5111, Programming for Artists I, or HSG-5202, Multimedia Programming I.

HSG-6112-AProgramming for Artists III

Thursday 8:00-9:50pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Gluck

A continuation of HSG-6111, Programming For Artists II, this course will use the Java programming language and environment as the primary platform for an in-depth examination and discussion of advanced object-oriented programming and graphics programming. Emphasis will be placed on solving advanced creative problems that may include student thesis projects. The course will consist of lectures and short weekly assignments. Prerequisite: HSG-6111, Programming for Artists II.

HSG-6202-AMultimedia Programming II

Thursday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Mikros

A continuation of HSG-5202, Multimedia Programming I, this course is intended for students interested in producing highly interactive creative work, including games, installation art and rich media Web sites. We will cover advanced programming topics related to the design and creation of interactive media. Object-oriented programming and design will also be explored through a series of short assignments using Flash and ActionScript. Course time will be divided between lecture, discussion and group critique. Prerequisite: HSG-5111, Programming for Artists I, or HSG-5202, Multimedia Programming I.

HSG-6466-ATechnical Direction

Monday 12:00-1:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: E. Kane

A technical director manages the relationship between software options and computational processes in the animation production pipeline in order to achieve optimum visual results using the most economic means. This course will study script-based approaches to modeling, rigging and constraints, texture mapping and shaders, illumination algorithms, renderers and rendering, compositing and other 3D animation tools and techniques. Shell scripting, MEL and the Maya expression language will be examined in detail.

HSG-6564-AMax/MSP/Jitter II

Friday 6:00-7:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Ralske

A continuation of HSG-5564, Max/MSP/Jitter I, this course will further explore utilizing Max to create interactive works. Topics such as audio and video analysis, application development, generative sound and 3D graphics will be covered. Students will be expected to create a substantial project using Max. Occasional group critiques will be given. Prerequisite: HSG-5564, Max/MSP/Jitter I, or instructor's permission.

HSG-6567-AMax/MSP/Jitter III

Wednesday 8:00-9:50pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Ralske

Geared for students working on thesis projects in the areas of installation art, interactive video, sound art and performance, this course will focus on advanced features and application development using Max software. Topics will also include real-time 3D graphics, improvising with algorithms, and using Max with a network. In addition to a deeper exploration of the advanced audio and video processing aspects of this graphic programming environment, students will be given assistance with Max for their thesis projects, as well as individual and group critiques. Prerequisite: HSG-6564, Max/MSP/Jitter II, or instructor's permission.

ART HISTORY COURSESSDG-5010-A*Digital Art Seminars

Day/Time: TBA

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: T. Schreiber

These seminars will consist of lectures and discussions that address various aspects of digital art history and theory, including the evolution of digital technologies and their impact on contemporary art and culture. In addition to these seminars, students will be required to attend select events offered through the greater digital art community of New York City. The primary goal is to expose students to a broad range of ideas and forms of expression that the digital arts encompass.

SDG-5441Contemporary Voices

Wednesday 7:00-8:50pm

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Brew

Limited to 15 students

Guest artists will discuss their artwork in a forum designed to help students understand the work of their contemporaries. By exposing students to a spectrum of computer art-making possibilities, this course inspires creative work and provides an opportunity to meet prospective thesis advisors and professional digital artists.

SDG-5452-AHistory of New Media in 20th-Century Art

Friday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Deck

This course will explore developments in 20th-century art with a particular focus on artists' practices that examine or embrace new circumstances in the media and technologies of their time. Students will also research and discuss related work of critics and theorists. The term "new media" will be treated broadly to include developments in film, photography and radio, as well as the beliefs and expectations that accompany new technologies.

SDG-5463Animation Culture

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Schreiber

Why do we love animation? What is it doing for us—or to us? This course will explore the impact of animation on our perception and culture through screenings, discussions and written work. We will discuss how pervasive animated worlds influence people through entertainment, games, advertising, broadcast media, medicine, law and architecture. The use of animation as commentary on topics such as politics, emotional life and intimacy will be considered. The culture of animation itself—as represented by legendary companies, people and practices of this multifaceted art form—will also be addressed. Guest speakers and field trips are included.

SDG-5501-ANetworked Media Seminar

Monday 12:00-2:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Paul

This course will introduce students to the history and critical theory surrounding artworks that utilize computer networks and interactive telecommunications technologies. The course will outline the history of tele- and network communications and basic Internet technologies as well as the forms and concepts of interaction and participation related to them. We will examine aesthetic and technological possibilities for artworks in networked environments ranging from the Internet and networked installations to locative media projects using mobile devices such as PDAs, cell phones and GPS. Through a series of readings, discussions and written assignments, class members will learn to articulate their interests and concerns as artists working with these technologies.

SDG-5521-AVirtual Reality Seminar

Thursday 12:00-2:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Nechvatal

This course is designed to investigate the theoretical and historical bases of immersive virtual reality (VR) art. It will primarily do so by investigating immersion, the experience considered as the indispensable characteristic of VR. Lectures, readings and discussion will demonstrate that immersion into virtual electronic space is the cornerstone to understanding contemporary VR culture, as well as certain key aspects of previous cultures. This investigation will lead the student to the formulation of an aesthetic theory of immersive consciousness, indicative of immersive culture, by joining choice examples of simulacra technology into mental connections, with relevant examples from art and architecture, as well as technology, myth, space, gender studies and philosophy.

SDG-5531-AVideo Art and Beyond

Thursday 7:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: B. London

This course begins by examining the emergence of video art of the 1960s, through structuralist films and the freewheeling days of "feedback" and "real-time" manipulation of the analog electronic signal. Students will examine how the barriers between artistic disciplines broke down as artists took up portable video cameras, experimented with installation, staged actions, and went outdoors to build land art. Works of contemporary video artists who move freely between painting, sculpture, photography, film, performance and other media will be discussed, as well as the contributions by musicians toward developing new working methods. The course will consist of weekly screenings, analysis of installations, readings and written assignments.

SDG-5541-AEcstasy and Apocalypse

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: T. Goodeve

In this course, we will study selected science-fiction utopias and dystopias in popular culture, literature, cinema and theoretical writing from the 19th century to the present. We will begin with the question, "Why is science fiction our political theory?" in order to use the genre to analyze relations of power and control; capitalism and the media; ethics and freedom; definitions of human, gender and race in an increasingly bioengineered world. Among the texts will be Mary Shelley's Frankenstein, George Orwell's 1984, Margaret Atwood's Oryx and Crake, as well as essays by Donna Haraway, Tom Moylan, H. G. Wells, Frederic Jameson, Scott Bukatman, Allucquere Rosanne Stone, Samuel Delany and Jean Baudrillard. Students will have the choice of writing a seminar paper or creating a piece of serious critical work in another medium for their final project.

SDG-5551-AArt & Technology and the New York Avant-Garde

Wednesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: J. Nechvatal

In this course, computer technology will be examined in the context of the artistic New York avant-garde. We will delve into discussions of Dada and neo-Dada concepts, procedures and artists relevant to computer technology (e.g., interactivity, hypermedia, immersion, virtual reality and other aspects of digital art). Audio art and multimedia are examined in detail in this context as is the impact of digital technology on the practices of poetry, painting, sculpture and architecture. Weekly readings are assigned and students will complete a research assignment. Content will be divided into four major topics that heavily reference the history of the New York avant-garde and its relevance to digital culture.

SDG-5561-AEthics and Politics in the New Media Age

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Deck

The attack on the World Trade Center demonstrated the power of mass-mediated images to transform global political realities and the discourses of right and justice that underpin political action. This course examines how concepts of political agency and ethical judgment may be transformed by the technological condition of contemporary culture, and asks whether art might play a particular role in charting new political and ethical frameworks to meet this predicament. It will begin with a series of key readings in political philosophy and cultural theory, which include work by Agamben, Arendt, Baudrillard, Benjamin, Chatterjee, Said, Stiegler, Virilio and Zizek. To contextualize these readings, students will examine the rhetoric of selected media texts and images, and critically analyze the work of contemporary artists who explore the political and ethical potential of new media.

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE (ESL) COURSES FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

Several courses geared for the international graduate student are offered in the fall and spring semesters. These courses include study and practice in all areas of the English language: grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation, thesis writing and conversations in contemporary art, among others. A listing of these courses follows. For course descriptions and information, please refer to the ESL course offerings, located in the humanities and sciences section of this book.

DSG-5060-A

Design for Television: Graphic Design Using Time, Motion and Sound

Tuesday 5:00-8:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: B. Siegler, A. Capelli

The course is a semester-long project in which the students are asked to create an identity for a new television channel of their own invention unrestricted by its commercial value. This will be achieved through understanding the content of their channel, designing its logo and ultimately producing three short-image spots promoting the channel. This project will be peppered with smaller assignments that will explore the different ways a designer is asked to solve problems using the moving image. In addition, students will attend weekly technology workshops to learn Adobe After Effects and other software programs needed to complete course work.

DSG-5070-A

Crossing Disciplines: Authorship and the Web—New Venues, New Ideas

Friday 3:30-6:30

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Capuzzo

This course will present students with the challenge of authoring a strong Web experience. Focusing on how content can be handled effectively, students will work on a semester-long project that will take them through all phases of producing a Web site—pitching ideas, making an information architecture document, gathering content and site navigation. The final project will be a Macromedia Flash/HTML hybrid and will be presented as a real pitch. Guest lecturers will share their experiences of creating and working in the interactive realm.

DSG-5080-A

Paul Rand Lecture Series: A History of Graphic Design

Tuesday 1:30-4:30 and Friday 3:30-6:30

Fall semester: no credit

Instructors: R. Balsmeyer, K. Godard, S. Heller, J. Scher

These lectures address various aspects of the history of graphic design over the past 150 years, including movements, pioneers and icons, as well as issues and events. Lectures focus on 19th-century premodern practice, early and mid-20th-century orthodox modernism, and the late 20th-century postmodern. Themes include racism and design, symbolism and the swastika, type and culture, politics and propaganda, modernism and Art Deco, and avant-garde magazines of the 20th century. Students will engage in critical and analytical discussions that relate design history to current communication practices.

DSG-5100-A

Design and Intentions

Wednesday 6:00-9:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Glaser

This course is structured to help students examine their assumptions about their own work. It begins with a restaurant project where many design considerations intersect, such as communication, service, interior spaces, lighting, color, and comfort. The course continues with a series of exercises that intends to disrupt or support the students' working methods. Ultimately, the objective is to develop an awareness of what they are already doing.

DSG-5130-AWriting and Designing the Visual Book

Thursday 5:00-9:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W. Lehrer

This course combines design and literature to create integrated and meaningful expression. Students will develop their creative writing skills through a sequence of exercises in continuous writing, observational writing, titling objects and images, theatrical improvisation, storytelling, writing from different points of view, structuring a narrative and editing. Selected texts from exercises are then set into a variety of book formats, using any combination of book structures, typography, images and symbols. Emphasis is placed on discovering a visual form that emerges out of the meaning and shape of an original text. Historical and contemporary examples of “visual text” will be presented.

DSG-5170-ANew York Stories

Monday 3:00-4:30

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: M. Kalman

In this collaborative workshop, each student will select an individual and tell his or her story in a variety of design media. Students will be required to develop a humanistic interpretation of their subject. Some sessions will take place off campus.

DSG-5200-A3D Product Reality

Thursday 6:00-9:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. O’Callaghan

This course is devoted to the how in the question: How do I begin to create a “prototype” model of my product idea? This course will devote attention to each student’s product prototype and its development. By exploring different materials available and demonstrating methods of working with those materials, students will reach the final goal of a finished product.

DSG-5210-ACan Design Touch Someone’s Heart?

Tuesday 5:00-8:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Sagmeister

It is widely assumed that movies, literature and music get to our emotional core. At the same time, it seems to be more difficult for design to achieve that same affect. In this course, we will explore this possibility with three individual assignments.

DSG-5230-AJust Type

Friday 3:30-6:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Anderson

Just Type is an exploration of contemporary and classic typefaces that students will apply to 10 short projects over the course of the semester. Every week, students will be given a font to research and work with on a specific project. In some cases, students will work on cutting and pasting printouts during class. At the end, a type catalog of the fonts used will be compiled and the class projects will be shown as examples of the faces in action. There will be no images, color or devices used—just type.

DSG-5250-AThesis Introduction

Monday 5:00-8:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Kace

This course will introduce students to faculty thesis consultants who will assign exercises that are designed to initiate R&D and jumpstart the conceptual process for the thesis project. By the end of the course, students will have identified at least two areas of interest to be further explored for the final thesis.

DSG-5260-AExplaining Yourself

Wednesday 5:00-8:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Stowell

How do you use design to tell engaging stories? How can you communicate clearly and/or appropriately—both in your work and about your work? This isn’t a public-speaking course, but you’ll do some. It isn’t information design, but you’ll make some. And this isn’t a portfolio course, but you’ll think about your work and how others experience it. We’ll work on projects with different sets of constraints, hear from guest speakers with various points of view and think about speaking to a range of audiences through (and about) design.

DSG-5433-A (previously DSG-5020)The Book—From Idea to Package to Consumer

Monday 5:00-8:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: H. Reeves

Creating the overall design concept for a book that has commercial as well as artistic appeal is the aim of this course. A range of formats and genres will be discussed, including illustrated books, children’s books, and interactive and nonillustrated. The “book” will be discussed and scrutinized from editorial conception to design, production, marketing and sales. Key to the examination will be the “client” and how to meet needs and expectations while maintaining creative integrity. Throughout the course, working independently, students will develop a portfolio of book concepts and related covers and layouts for various formats. Each student is responsible for the extensive development of a book dummy of professional quality and commercial appeal.

DSG-5447-A (previously DSG-5220)Design is Easy

Thursday 5:00-8:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: L. Leon Boym

The objective of this course is to understand and create three-dimensional consumer products. Via case studies, field trips, historical examples, and a vocabulary of forms and techniques, we will explore design ideas in the current cultural contexts that are appropriate and stimulating. Students are encouraged to go beyond formal styling to learn to formulate invigorating product concepts and apply them to their assignments. Techniques for researching application of new and alluring materials, sensorial qualities of design, craft techniques, high-tech and electronic opportunities will be introduced. Using these methodologies, students will be able to turn their design concepts into successful products and bring them into the commercial market.

DSG-6010-AIntroduction to Design Criticism

Thursday 5:30-8:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: V. Vienne

The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the complex issues and ideas that are essential to understanding what is happening in the graphic design field today. The course is designed to give students the linguistic tools they will need to decipher the various and often conflicting cultural, philosophical, historical and political trends that impact the way we think about design. Among the topics we will explore are arcane subjects such as semiotics, structuralism, Marxist theories and postmodern analysis as well more pragmatic fields of inquiry such as branding, marketing, visual research and brainstorming techniques. Though this course deals with abstract theories, it is hands-on, interactive and practical, with constant references to how the ideas discussed in class can help students shape their thesis projects and transform them into viable products.

DSG-6030-AIntellectual Property and the Law

Friday 3:30-6:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: F. Martinez

The general concepts of law and intellectual property law as they apply to the practice of design will be examined, including basic legal issues of contract and property law, within the creative context. Among the topics explored will be the work-for-hire agreement, the consignment agreement and the agency agreement. The law of copyright, trademark and patents will also be explored. Issues such as registering a copyright, copyright infringement, registering a trademark and trade dress infringement and patents (in particular, design patents) will be examined from the perspective of the professional designer. In addition, design and information issues presented by new technology, such as the Web, will be included throughout the course.

DSG-6050

Seminars

Wednesday 5:30-8:30

1 credit per seminar

Instructors: TBA

To enliven the program and bring students into contact with a significant number of working professionals, a series of workshops will be scheduled each semester. Seminar topics will change from year to year based on student interest and shifts in the overall field.

Course #	Semester	Dates
DSG-6050-A	fall	9/5 – 10/10
DSG-6050-B	fall	10/17 – 11/7

DSG-6070-A

Thesis Consultation (preparation)

Tuesday 5:30-8:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: E. Bruck, K. Carbone, M. Kace

This course will prepare students to identify a product suitable for full-scale development and the audience they aim to target. The semester is divided into four sections: developing a market research survey; writing a comprehensive business plan; e-commerce and e-ideas. In addition there will be seminars on the theory of design and fabrication of design objects, as well as advice on how to produce viable thesis projects that will have marketplace potential.

DSG-6080-A

Thesis Consultation (research and writing)

Monday 5:30-8:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: D. Globus, J. Scher, S. Schwartz, L. Talarico

This course will assist students in the preparatory market and audience research needed to identify a product suitable for long-term development. The semester is divided into three sections: proposal writing and editing, material research and development, and media exploration. In addition, there will be numerous off-site visits to related exhibitions and resource centers. The end result is a written, edited and designed proposal book and fabricated prototype.

DSG-6090-A

Thesis Consultation (production)

Tuesday 5:30-8:30

Spring semester: 6 credits

Instructors: G. Anderson, N. Callaway, B. Collins, L. Talarico

With the aid of a faculty advisor, students will complete a thesis project, a finished product, ready to be marketed. Students are required to make a final presentation to the Thesis Committee for its approval. The MFA degree will not be conferred without approval of this final project by the Thesis Committee.

DSG-6110-A

Thesis Consultation (exhibition)

Monday 5:30-8:30

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Globus

Students will design and install an exhibition of their thesis projects. Responsibilities for the elements necessary to produce a show will be distributed among the group, including: design of the installation; production of poster, invitation and exhibition labels; public relations and editorial work; project coordination; budget; opening reception. The course will culminate in the thesis exhibition.

DSG-6120-A

Thesis Consultation (pitch and presentation)

Thursday 5:30-8:30

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: E. Bruck, K. Carbone, S. Schwartz, L. Talarico

In this intensive course, students will develop a viable and professional pitch book to use as a tool to bring their thesis product to potential producers, investors and the market. In addition, they will be given tutorials on how to deliver a verbal pitch to potential backers and clients.

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE (ESL) COURSES FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

Several courses geared for the international graduate student are offered in the fall and spring semesters. These courses include study and practice in all areas of the English language: grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation, thesis writing and conversations in contemporary art, among others. A listing of these courses follows. For course descriptions and information, please refer to the ESL course offerings, located in the humanities and sciences section of this book.

DPG-5220-A

Digital Materials and Processes

Tuesday 7:00-10:00pm

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This comprehensive survey of the terms, tools and technology of digital-image processing addresses the technical aspects of digital input, color correction and output. We will cover how to evaluate and improve image quality, understand and apply critical technical analysis to workflow components, and delve into hardware and software applications and solutions for the professional photographer.

DPG-5250-A

Color Management and Output

Tuesday 3:00-6:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course tackles the most prominent problem in making a print—accuracy and consistency in reproducing the photographer's vision. Topics include: creating files that are color-managed from input to output, properly sharpened files for a wide selection of media substrates, working with a variety of color management systems and equipment, using Photoshop for soft proofing, and experimenting with various papers and output options to achieve consistent results.

DPG-5280-A

Digital Asset Management and Workflow

Thursday 3:00-6:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

As more and more photographers work digitally, they are being inundated with thousands of files. This essential course examines how to manage files from capture and download to processing and archiving. Students will gain an understanding of online, near-line, and off-line backup and archiving strategies. We will also focus on consistent work habits in naming, managing and applying metadata templates to enable secure backup and archiving of files on redundant optical and magnetic media.

DPG-5310-A

Personal Vision, Storytelling and the Art of Editorial Photography

Thursday 7:00-10:00

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course will simulate real-world magazine assignments. Students will develop story ideas, go into the field "on assignment," learn about in-field backup and trouble-shooting, and how to edit the work for final submission. They will complete a body of work for print or online publication. Most importantly, participants will garner valuable inside knowledge about how prominent editors and photographers conceive and execute highly sought after magazine assignments.

DPG-5350-A

i3: Images, Inspiration, Information I

Wednesday 7:00-9:00

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: TBA

Consisting of lectures, seminars, and portfolio reviews this course features presentations by cutting-edge digital photographers, hardware and software developers, and industry experts. There will be monthly peer review sessions of student portfolios to allow for rigorous creative exchange and encouragement.

DPG-5355-Ai3: Images, Inspiration, Information II

Wednesday 7:00-9:00

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: TBA

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see DPG-5350 for course description.

DPG-5420-AAdvanced Image Processing

Tuesday 3:00-6:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Advanced creative and production techniques are the focus of this course. In addition to working with and comparing the latest raw processing software packages and strategies, we will address working with HDR (high dynamic range) images, mastering high-resolution files with Smart Objects and exploring Helicon Focus photography.

DPG-5450-AScripting and Automation

Thursday 3:00-6:00

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course explores the essential need for the computer to do the mind-numbing and repetitive work entailed in handling large numbers of image files. How to write and debug actions and JavaScripts will be covered, as well as applying variables and datasets to process a quantity of images quickly and automatically. Working with Macintosh and Windows operating systems, students will learn how to script for reference-networked watched folders to speed up production, backup and critical file management.

DPG-5480-AStudio Management and Practices

Thursday 7:00-10:00pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Being a successful photographer requires more than talent and good fortune. Photographers need to develop a business plan and a budget with realistic short- and long-term goals. This course will examine studio business practices that include budgeting and financial planning; buying, leasing or renting concerns; safe business practices; and working with an agent, accountant and tax advisor. The essential management concerns covered in this course will improve communication with clients, labs, prepress houses, commercial printing companies and stock agencies.

Tuesday 7:00-10:00pm

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

From concept to capture and image processing, this course addresses the creative workflow that commercial and fine art illustrators use to make compelling photo-montages and composites. Students will learn the essential attributes of a successful composite, including: planning the image before lifting the camera; lighting and photographing the image elements and background plates; selecting, color matching and compositing the elements; and working with an art director and production team to create the best image possible.

DPG-5820-ALarge-Format Printing

Monday through Friday, May 12-16

Hours: 9:00-5:50

Summer semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

In this course, students will learn to select, prepare and fine-tune their images for large-scale printing. Topics will include: refining digital input; modifying tonal adjustments to match the proofs; appropriate sharpening techniques; understanding proofs in relation to size, substrate and color. Students will work with professional service providers, wide-format printers and professional RIPs to create large-format, high-quality color and black-and-white prints.

DPG-5910-AThesis: The Electronic Portfolio

Tuesday, Thursday; May 20 – June 19

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 2 credits

Instructor: TBA

As a first step in a sequence that will lead to a final thesis exhibition, students will begin the process of editing, grouping, sequencing, and posting their final selections online. Since this is digital process, students have tremendous freedom to explore their images and to experiment with the most effective way to sequence images for online and video presentation.

DPG-5920-AThesis: The Book

Tuesday, Thursday; June 3 – July 3

Hours: 7:00-9:50

Summer semester: 2 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course takes editing and sequencing issues a step further as students develop text, experiment with page layout and delve into the importance of effective pace and sequencing. The final book will be produced through digital book publishing services or as a hand-made book that may serve as a promotional mock-up for established book publishers or as a promotional portfolio piece.

DPG-5930-AThesis: The Exhibition

Tuesday, Thursday; June 24 – July 24

Hours: 3:00-5:50

Summer semester: 2 credits

Instructor: TBA

Working in a gallery space is a creative and often collaborative challenge. The number of images shown, their size and presentation, delivery, insurance, hanging and removal are all issues to be considered. This course concentrates on organizing and allocating the gallery space in which the final thesis exhibition will be presented.

The MFA program in fine arts offers specialization in the following media: painting, sculpture and printmaking. There are also some students who employ these media, incorporating photographic, video, digital and other techniques into their works. Students may concentrate in any one of the principal media—painting, sculpture, printmaking—and, if they so elect, can change their media of choice during their tenure at the College and are free to mix media as well.

AHG-5010-A

Seminar I

Thursday 9:30-11:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: D. Shirey

Devoted to cognate areas of art—its history, art criticism and theory, philosophy of art, and relevant issues—this course endeavors to examine such topical arguments as the nature of the museum and gallery system, the intricate problems of censorship in the arts, the origins of critical thought in the modern era and the interaction of various artistic and aesthetic disciplines. The seminars focus on fundamental art theories, crucial to the evolution of contemporary viewpoints. Drawing from the wellspring of resources in New York, students will view notable exhibitions in museums and galleries. The second semester concentrates on the critique of student work, using if pertinent, critical and historical criteria. Students will continue to visit assigned exhibitions.

FIG-5010

Workshop I

Fall semester: 6 credits per section

These workshops provide group instruction and critiques in the students' areas of concentration. Structured to refine skills and artistic development, workshops pay as much attention to technical mastery as to experimentation and individual imagination. Note: All students must register for two sections of FIG-5010 in the fall semester each year.

FIG-5111-AIntroduction to Digital Art

Monday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: no credit

Fee: $250

Instructor: S. Fleischmann

This course will offer a hands-on approach to basic Web site creation. Adobe Photoshop will be explored for use in the preparation of images to be incorporated into Web pages. Then Dreamweaver, sophisticated and comprehensive Web-design software, will be demonstrated. Dreamweaver writes the HTML code that is used to create Internet pages. In this way, the Web pages can be edited in either Dreamweaver or the standard HTML code. The class will include demonstrations and in-class exercises that will culminate in each student's production of his or her own Web site.

AHG-6010-ASeminar III

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: P. Bard, K. Fujita

The second-year seminars are devoted to the contemporary art scene and to contemporary criticism, ideas and ideologies in art. The first semester focuses on art concepts and notions—historical and contemporary, traditional and current. Discussions topics may include: the diverse roles that art plays in both private and public venues; art as perceived from aesthetic, political, historical social-cultural viewpoints; patronage in the arts; and the confluence of the visual arts with other means of artistic expression. Seminar IV concentrates on significant examples, movements, trends and influences of contemporary art. Students will make presentations on a particular preference or personal interest they entertain in the arts. Outstanding professionals from various disciplines in the arts will be invited as visitors to the seminars.

AHG-6015-A (previously AHG-6010, second semester)Seminar IV

Thursday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Cameron

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see AHG-6010 for course description.

FIG-6030 (previously FIG-6050, first semester)Term Review I

Day/Time: TBA

Fall semester: no credit

At the end of each semester, students will meet with instructors for a special discussion and review of student work. The work, chosen by students and exhibited in their studios, should reflect significant artistic developments and accomplishments. At the end of the second year, instructors conduct a thorough review of graduating students' special projects.

ILG-5010-A

Critique I

Wednesday 10:00-3:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: M. Arisman, C. Titolo

The morning session of this course is structured to emphasize the relationship between fine art and commercial art in dealing with the visual essay. Students will begin the process of developing visual essays in a limited form. There will be weekly assignments dealing with a variety of subjects related to contemporary concerns. Students will begin to incorporate the material from HCG-5050, Creative Writing Workshop I, with their artwork. The afternoon is conducted primarily as a studio session in which a wide range of media is investigated, and various approaches to composing an image will be explored. Tools and methods will be introduced for both ongoing projects initiated in the studio and unexpected workshop situations.

ILG-5015-A (previously ILG-5010, second semester)

Critique II

Wednesday 10:00-3:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructors: M. Arisman, C. Titolo

A continuation of ILG-5010, Critique I, this course will focus on the production of a one-of-a-kind book that includes text and image. Individual meetings and class critiques are ongoing throughout the semester.

ILG-5020-A

Drawing I

Friday 12:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Fabricatore

The development of drawing ability with a concentration on discovering a unique personal voice is the focus of this course. Through drawing from models in the studio and going out on location, students will also study and interpret the relationships between subjects and their environment, and expand their drawing vocabulary beyond the use of a two-dimensional reference. By keeping sketchbooks and compiling interviews, students will explore receptive observation, risk-taking, spontaneity, drawing from intuition and sketching from the energy and unpredictability of being on location. At least one narrative series assignment will be completed over the course of the year.

ILG-5025-A (previously ILG-5020, second semester)

Drawing II

Friday 12:00-4:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Fabricatore

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ILG-5020 for course description.

ILG-5030-A

Visual Essay Seminar

Thursday 5:30-8:20 (first seven weeks)

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: M. Arisman

Through lectures and slide presentations, this course will investigate the role of the artist as a visual commentator. The class will complete a journalistic assignment. There will be guest lecturers in all areas relevant to visual essay.

ILG-5040-ABook Seminar

Thursday 5:30-8:20 (second seven weeks)

Fall semester: 1.5 credits

Instructor: V. Koen

This course will explore the role of the illustrator in contemporary books, primarily through lectures and slide presentations. Assignments will be based on incorporating the students' artwork into a finished book that includes typography, layout and production, and other pertinent areas.

HCG-5050-ACreative Writing Workshop I

Thursday 1:30-5:30

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Zackheim

This workshop is structured to develop writing skills in prose and fiction through readings and discussions. The goal is to explore personal expression through writing that reflects artistic concerns.

HCG-5055-A (previously HCG-5050, second semester)

Creative Writing Workshop II

Thursday 1:30-5:30

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Zackheim

A continuation of HCG-5050, Creative Writing Workshop I, this semester will focus on poetry, writing for the theater and songwriting.

ILG-5090-AComputer Illustration Portfolio I

Tuesday 9:00-12:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250 per semester

Instructor: M. Richmond

Digital tools have become mainstream in the design and printing fields, and the Internet has evolved into a medium that enables illustrators to create interactive animations and globally accessible projects. This course will touch upon several aspects of digital technology, from advanced Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator techniques for print to all facets of Web design production as well as interactive Flash animation. Understanding the fundamentals of computer illustration will aid students in preparing professional projects and personal portfolios.

ILG-5095-A (previously ILG-5090, second semester)

Computer Illustration Portfolio II

Tuesday 9:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Lab fee: $250 per semester

Instructor: M. Richmond

A continuation of ILG-5090, Computer Illustration Portfolio I, the spring semester will focus on Web site design. Please see ILG-5090 for course description.

ILG-5120-ASeminar

Thursday 5:30-8:20

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Ilic

Through lectures by noted guest illustrators, political satirists, art directors and graphic designers, this seminar will explore the many specialized areas of visual commentators. The course will also include portfolio reviews from professionals working in the field.

ILG-6010-AThesis Project: Visual Essay I

Day/Time: TBA

Fall semester: 6 credits

Students will choose a New York City artist as their thesis faculty advisor to work with on an individual basis, and establish a schedule to research, write and visualize the thesis project. Emphasis will be on topics with visual essay interest such as graphic novels, comics, illustrated books, children's books or a series of paintings.

ILG-6015-A (previously ILG-6010, second semester)

Thesis Project: Visual Essay II

Day/Time: TBA

Spring semester: 6 credits

A continuation of ILG-6010, Thesis Project: Visual Essay I, this semester will focus on the completion of thesis projects. Students will participate in a group exhibition at the end of the semester.

ILG-6020-AStudio Workshop I

Tuesday 5:00-10:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Sandlin

Studio Workshop I will develop concepts and finished artwork in relation to the thesis project. Student work will be critiqued regularly by visiting professionals (illustrators, art directors, artists and gallery directors).

ILG-6025-A (previously ILG-6020, second semester)

Studio Workshop II

Tuesday 5:00-10:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: D. Sandlin

A continuation of ILG-6020, Studio Workshop I, this semester will focus on refining and completing thesis projects. There will be individual and group critiques; visiting professionals will continue to view and discuss student projects.

ILG-6030-AFine Arts Symposium

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M.J. Vath

An examination of the role of the figurative artist in the contemporary fine art world is the focus of this course. Guest speakers will lecture and show slides of their work, as well as discuss their creative processes. Students will visit galleries and museums on a weekly basis, and will be required to keep a journal of critical analysis for each exhibition.

ILG-6040-AThesis Review I

Friday 9:00-11:50

Fall semester: no credit

Instructor: M. Arisman

Thesis review is a series of individual meetings with the department chair for review and critique of the thesis project. The meetings will supplement the ongoing work in Thesis Project: Visual Essay I and II.

ILG-6045-A (previously ILG-6040, second semester)

Thesis Review II

Friday 9:00-11:50

Spring semester: no credit

Instructor: M. Arisman

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please see ILG-6040 for course description.

ILG-6050-A

Painting I

Wednesday 6:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Crane

With an emphasis on figurative painting techniques, this course will focus on the uses of form, color, composition, light, proportion and perspective. Contemporary and classical approaches to oil painting will be explored. The goal is to provide a solid foundation in oil painting techniques.

ILG-6055-A (previously ILG-6050, second semester)

Painting II

Wednesday 6:00-9:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Crane

This course will focus on an advanced approach to the concepts and techniques of figurative painting in oil, including direct, sustained observation of the human form. Emphasis is placed on a more fully developed or visualized painting process.

ILG-6070-A

History of Storytelling: Comics

Thursday 7:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N.C. Couch

This course provides an introduction to graphic media in North America, from the beginning of the newspaper comic strip through the development of comic books, the growth of graphic novels, and current developments in electronic media. Focusing on its history and aesthetics, we will compare developments in the United States, Mexico and French Canada, as well as the social and cultural contexts in which comic art is created and consumed. The first half of the semester will concentrate on early comic strips and the development of the comic book form through the 1940s. The remainder of the semester will focus on changes that affected comic art in the 1950s and '60s, the development of a comic book subculture from the 1970s to the 1980s, and contemporary electronic media developments.

PHG-5010-A GSAL Master Critique I

Tuesday 10:00-12:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: N. Prior

This group critique provides a stimulus for creative exchange and a forum for students to focus their individual growth and activities during the GSAL year. Guided by prominent figures in the visual arts, the structure and content of meetings is determined largely by student needs.

PHG-5015-A (previously PHG-5010, second semester) GSAL Master Critique II

PHG-5030 Master Critique I

Wednesday 3:00-5:50
Fall semester: 3 credits

Group critique seminars are the focal point of student activity in any given semester. Guided by prominent figures in the visual arts, and assisted by their peers, students concentrate on producing a coherent body of work that best reflects their individual talents and challenges the current boundaries of their media. The program is designed to expose students to divergent points of view. Prior to beginning PHG-6200, Thesis Project, students work with a different Master Critique instructor each semester. Note: Open to first-year students only.

PHG-5030-C Video Master Critique I

Friday 3:00-5:50
Spring semester: 3 credits
Instructor: E. Bowes

This course will study the subjects and creative issues of project development, narrative and non-narrative moving-image syntax, craft, structure and production in video and other time-based work. This investigation will take place in the context of the practice and critique of assigned exercises and individual projects. Nonfiction and fiction will be studied and practiced. This is an intensive workshop that will require significant commitment, practice, input and group participation from each student.

PHG-5050-A Historical Perspectives: Photographic History and Museum Practice

Thursday 10:00-12:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: B. Yochelson

This course examines how museums collect, preserve and interpret photographs: as art, artifacts and as carriers of information. Topics include: the evolution of the canon of photographic artists, which paralleled the growth of modernism between the 1910s and the 1970s; the postmodern attack on the idea of a canon in the 1980s; the museums' varied responses to this attack in the 1990s. How have photography curators responded to critics, new scholarship, the escalating art market, and the shift within museum management toward marketing and entertainment? The search for answers includes the examination of a variety of exhibition catalogs, including monographs on photographers such as Eugene Atget, Carleton Watkins, Berenice Abbott and Irving Penn; as well as thematic and multimedia exhibitions, including shows by history museums and libraries. Three museum visits with curators and a tour of the auction house previews are required.

PHG-5050-B Historical Perspectives: Then and Now

Thursday 3:00-5:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: S. Rice

Our postmodern age has signaled the end of the modern époque initiated by, among other things, the invention of photography. Computers are in the process of supplanting the time and space of modernity embodied in the Paris of Baudelaire, Nadar and Manet. Working in an arc connecting the Second Empire in France and contemporary America, we will chart an evolutionary path between two turning points in Western history that gave birth, respectively, to the physical networks of trains and photographic images and the virtual networks of cyberspace. This is an open seminar demanding student participation. It starts from the position that these two historical moments, in their turmoil, are parallel worlds, each in their own way laying the foundation for a future that needs the lessons of both.

PHG-5050-C Historical Perspectives: Issues in the Moving Image—A History of Hybrids

Thursday 3:00-5:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: A. Taubin

"Cinema is truth 24 frames per second," remarked Jean-Luc Godard, begging the question of whether truth is an attribute of fiction or documentary. Throughout his 45-years-thus-far career, Godard—more rigorously and prolifically than any other filmmaker—blurred the presumed boundaries between so-called "fiction," documentary, ethnographic, pornographic and avant-garde films. His work will be central to this course, as will the films of Andy Warhol. We'll also look at work by Chris Marker, Orson Welles, Haroun Farocki, Alan Clarke, Nick Broomfield, Jonas Mekas, Yvonne Rainer, Alain Resnais, Guy Debord, Werner Herzog, Jean-Pierre Gorin, Chantal Akerman, Robert Frank and Craig Baldwin. We'll devote several weeks to contemporary moving-image works that deal with issues of diaspora and statelessness. Weekly screenings and reading assignments will be required. A 1,000-word paper at mid-semester, and a longer paper at the end of the semester, will be required.

PHG-5050-D Historical Perspectives: Issues in Photographic Representation Since 1960

Tuesday 6:00-8:50
Fall semester: 3 credits
Instructor: J. Blessing

This course will map a history of contemporary art via the medium of photography. Since 1960, photography and photo-based media—including video and film—have been central to the practice and theory of art. We will track the various ways that photographic images have been incorporated into contemporary art, as well as examine the discourse around photographic reproduction that has been integral to postmodernism and poststructuralist theory. Artists whose work will be discussed include: Robert Rauschenberg, Yves Klein, Andy Warhol, Ed Ruscha, Robert Smithson, Mel Bochner, Vito Acconci, Nam June Paik, Martha Rosler, Hans Haacke, Jeff Wall, Cindy Sherman, Sherrie Levine, Richard Prince, Barbara Kruger, Mary Kelly, Annette Messager, Christian Boltanski, Sophie Calle, Adrian Piper,

Robert Mapplethorpe, Nan Goldin, Bernd and Hilla Becher, among others. Each session will consist of a lecture on a specific group of artists, which will be followed by discussion about critical readings that illuminate the work of those artists. Presentations by class members on topics related to the subject of the course are required.

PHG-5070-A

Criticism and Theory: Contemporary Criticism

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Leslie

This course is designed to examine both general and specific areas of critical discourse. The first project is to examine the distinctions between commonly used terms such as "history," "analysis," "theory," "criticism" and "critical theory" in broad, but grounded, terms. The second project is to delineate the concepts of modernism and postmodernism by tracing the development of specific methodologies such as formalism, Marxism, semiotics, literary theory, structuralism and poststructuralism, deconstruction, feminism and psychoanalysis. Such a mix also provides location of emerging discourses in cultural studies, and issues of imaging and representation. There will be a focus on understanding the issues as an interrelated history of ideas.

PHG-5070-B

Criticism and Theory: Critical Reading

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Davenport

This course will combine a format of reading and classroom discussions aimed at providing critical perspectives on the issues that inform the practice of contemporary art and photography. Readings will include texts by artists, writers and theorists of the past three decades that bear upon the practice of the students' art-making today. Students will be required to develop a framework from these readings that is relevant to their own objectives. Discussion will be based on interdisciplinary study, screenings and exhibitions.

PHG-5070-C

Criticism and Theory: Technology of Ideas

Friday 10:00-12:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Stafford

The history of technology is often presented as a progressive scheme inside an historical framework—the idea of technology as something that just keeps improving. This idea surfaces even in dystopian visions of the future, which project a society ruined by an advanced dominant technology. Our thoughts about technology mask the extent to which technology itself drives these ideas. We are subject to technology not so much physically (the slave of the machine, the prisoner in the Panopticon), as metaphysically, in the way we internalize and enact its ideas. The course looks closely at some of the areas where ideas of and from technology are having great cultural impact. Prerequisite: one criticism and theory course.

PHG-5070-D

Criticism and Theory: Global Issues and Strategies

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Leslie

The course is designed to examine changing currents in a world understood as complex, variant and global, with no specific path or set of standards for the creation of images. We will identify and present themes, issues and artists from a global and comparative perspective. The issues may derive from art, art history and sources such as cultural and commercial practices, geopolitics, topical events and current intellectual trends. The purpose is to explore contemporary issues, images, contexts and challenges in relation to image-making in any media. Weekly readings will be discussed for context, and to broaden personal orientations and strategies. Students will help select topics and direct reading sessions. They must produce a paper (hard copy, hypertext, or image essay) that explores a theme relevant to their own interests using strategies different from their previous orientation to image production.

Criticism and Theory: Culture of the Image, Still and Moving

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: A. Taubin

The term "photographic" is not a category exclusive to photography; it is a condition that appears in several genres and practices that involve imagery. It embraces film, painting and video, as well as photography and new forms of digital media. Above all, it is connected to a visual field where actions include cutting, framing, stopping and expanding movement. This course will examine contemporary and historic works along with theoretical writings that address the aesthetic, social and psychological aspects of the "photographic," both still and moving.

PHG-5090-A

Contemporary Issues: Photography and the Visual Arts After 1960

Wednesday 10:00-12:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Anker

In a media-driven society what becomes a legend most? How do social factors, cultural institutions and consensus, as well as redefinitions of the functions of photography and the other visual arts, drive the interpretation and representation of images? This course will focus on the visual arts from 1960 to the present explicating the integration of photography into the "mainstream" of painting and sculpture. Arranged as an investigation into contemporary issues, the pursuit of "aesthetic" identity will typically examine the changing status and means of image-making. Concepts to be explored are historical determinism, commodity culture, the blurring of boundaries, representations of memory, the clash of cultures, the new grotesque, the culture of the copy, public spectacle and private myth. The course's intention is to demarcate the roles of the artist in the "real world" and the ways in which artistic practice is relevant to understanding the human condition.

PHG-5090-B

Contemporary Issues: Video Culture

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Silver

This course will immerse students in the modalities of video practice that have shaped currents in our contemporary cultures. This includes video's dominant role in documentary and public dialogue, its antecedents in film histories, and its emergence as an art/installation and multimedia performance medium. Drawing on screenings of video works and on artists' writings, we will examine the many issues surrounding the act of contemporary video-making. Questions to be raised include: Why make video? What is at stake in a particular video? Why make it this way? Where is it made to be shown? Where will it, in fact, be shown? What are the expectations of the audience and what then is the strategy of the maker?

PHG-5090-C

Contemporary Issues: American Photography, 1950-2000

Thursday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Rice

This course will focus on the images that laid a foundation for the postmodern media revolution. Vietnam, the space program, the Gulf war, civil rights and feminism, the eclipse of illustrated magazines by television and the rise of the Internet. All of these historical and technological developments took place during the boom years of American high and low culture. The interrelationships between history and aesthetics, elite and popular culture, and art and photography will be the emphasis of this seminar course.

PHG-5090-D

Contemporary Issues: Photographic Genres

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: N. Davenport

This course attempts to acquaint students with the currents of contemporary photographic/art practice. It will examine specific models and matrixes that define trends in today's scene. The following are areas of consideration: topologies, mythical realities, cinematographic structure, computer transformation, epic social narratives and the sublime idea. We will engage in discussion, lecture, slide presentation, and visits to studios and galleries. Students are encouraged to analyze their own work in light of recent developments, and to develop their own paradigms for new work.

PHG-5090-E

Contemporary Issues: Right Here, Right Now

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Cotton

This course offers a forum to research, debate and unravel some of the pressing issues that affect contemporary photographers. Each week, we will concentrate on a question or a theme that is crucial to contemporary practitioners. Subjects will include: does size matter?, contemporary print aesthetics, the new color: the return of black-and-white, where has editorial gone?, the power of the edit, slowed down photography: roles of nostalgia in a digital era. Through lectures and readings, we will connect contemporary photography with historical precedents, and through discussions explore these connections to each student's photographic practice.

PHG-5090-F

Contemporary Issues: Moving Image Colloquia

Monday 3:00-5:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

This course will consist of professional presentations and workshops in topics that relate to the theory, development, production, postproduction and distribution of video. Visiting professionals will be an integral component of the colloquia.

PHG-5130-A/B

Studio: Digital Imaging I

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Eisman

This is the first semester of a two-part course. In the fall semester, we will explore the theory and practice of digital imaging. The use of digital cameras, flatbed and film scanners, and enhancement of images for a variety of output options will be examined. Tonal and color correction, color management, restoration and retouching techniques will be addressed. In the spring semester, each section will focus on a specific area of using digital images.

Course #	Day	Time
PHG-5130-A	M	10:00-12:50
PHG-5130-B	M	3:00-5:50

PHG-5130-C

Studio: Digital Imaging I—Moving Image

Monday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Jablonsky

This course will explore the theory and practice of digital production and post-production for the moving image. It will concentrate on specific applications including Apple Final Cut Pro, Adobe After Effects, DVD Studio and Macromedia Flash, as well as on traditional and Web-based distribution strategies.

PHG-5135

Studio: Digital Imaging II

Spring semester: 3 credits

This is the second part of a two-semester course. Please refer to individual course descriptions that follow and choose the section that best aligns with your area of interest. Note: Midyear entry with instructor's permission.

Course #	Day	Time	Instructor

PHG-5135-A

Studio: Digital Imaging II

Monday 10:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: K. Eismann

This is the second part of a two-semester course and will concentrate on the multiple image. We will focus on creative masking and compositing techniques to create images from multiple image sources. Issues addressed include: planning and executing the composite image, advanced masking techniques, creating photo-real and surreal composites, exploring abstract panoramic image-making, and creating a body of work that is well-executed from concept to presentation.

PHG-5135-B

Studio: Digital Imaging II

Monday 6:00-8:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: S. Jablonsky

This is the second part of a two-semester course and is designed for students who want to investigate the options for presenting ideas for the Web. HTML will be the main focus of the technical instruction and will also provide a foundation for using Macromedia Dreamweaver as a simplified means when creating a Web site. Content for Web-based artwork will be discussed and critiqued as we learn how imagery can be created for the Web.

PHG-5411-A

Studio: Introduction to Video

Friday 11:00-1:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Patierno

While photography and video share many basic traits, they also differ in a variety of ways. For example, video is a time-based medium, and an electronic technology; composition includes movement of the frame and within the frame; and the editing of images is central to the process. This course explores such considerations through assigned exercises, and culminates in the production of two video projects during the semester. It also prepares students for advanced video and multimedia courses.

PHG-5411-B

Studio: Looking Out

Thursday 10:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Perkis

When a generation of scholars and critics exposed the biases and dubious agendas of an earlier generation of celebrated photographers, writers, anthropologists and filmmakers, they turned the entire documentary pursuit on its head. Their assault may have dented our faith in the "absolute" truth of documentary work, but it does not diminish the importance of the pursuit. Since photographs are both faithful depictions of what is in front of the camera as well as subjective abstractions, it becomes impossible to define exactly what a documentary photograph should be. In this class, students will explore the process and possibilities of using the lens to observe, interpret and record the dynamic flow of people, places and events, and in so doing, define and refine their artistic voices. Black-and-white, color, still, video, digital, sound or word—students may use any media or approach that befits their subject and concept. Note: Open to first-year students only.

PHG-5411-C/D

Studio: The Laws of Light and How to Break Them

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Callis

This course is an opportunity to learn the laws of light and to gain an appreciation of how important an understanding of light is to a photographer's process. We will begin with an exploration of the physics of light in order to explain its behavior. Sessions and assignments will teach students to approach every lighting experience with confidence. The purpose is to master these concepts and to ensure effective application of this knowledge. The ability to problem solve is a crucial element when faced with challenging lighting situations. Without this understanding it is very difficult to move beyond obvious limitations. The ultimate goal is to be able to apply these concepts and then to see all the possibilities.

Course #	Day	Time

PHG-5411-D	Tu	3:00-5:50

PHG-5411-E

Studio: Solving the Mysteries of Light

Tuesday 10:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Callis

The goal of this course is for each student to develop a unique style. This will be achieved through discussions on photographs that students bring to class, along with an evaluation of how the lighting was achieved. There will be a lighting demonstration each session, based on student concerns. Students will also bring in photographs for which they want to emulate the lighting, along with sketches showing their best assessment of how the lighting was achieved. Through class discussion, new sketches will be developed. Assignments will be given based on the photographs brought to class and the revised lighting sketches that evolve. A class notebook will be submitted at the end of the semester.

PHG-5477-A

Sexuality and Representation Seminar

Wednesday 10:00-12:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: P. Mieli

An analytical approach, with Lacanian emphasis, to the voyeurism inherent in all photography is the focus of this seminar. Readings, discussion and critique are involved in deciphering the influence of sexuality in image-making. Prerequisite: One criticism and theory course.

PHG-5610-A

Studio: Video Projects

Friday 11:00-1:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: M. Patierno

This course will delve into video production to prepare students for advanced video and multimedia courses. We will examine the foundations of video-making and explore working in a time-based medium. Editing, lighting and sequencing will be focal points.

PHG-5640-A

Studio: Video Development, Preparation, Production

Wednesday 2:00-4:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructors: E. Bowes, S. Silver, G. Weinbren

Focusing on modes of constructing a moving-image work, this course will address conception, preproduction and production. Each of these areas encompasses a variety of practices and styles. The course challenges students to go beyond their customary habits and natural tendencies, engaging in a variety of approaches. We will screen and discuss works of many genres in an attempt to understand and adopt working presuppositions. The course is divided into three segments, each taught by a different image-maker, and students will navigate among the perspectives of each instructor.

PHG-5680-A

Studio: Video Techniques

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: TBA

Video is the medium of many and is a complex craft. It is demanding and constantly changing. While craft is often interpretive, it is also content-based and technical. This course focuses on craft aspects of cinematography, art direction, sound and editing. Sessions will center around demonstrations, lectures and screenings. Emphasis is placed on craft specific assignments and critiques.

PHG-6030

Master Critique III

Fall semester: 6 credits

Group critique seminars are the focal point of student activity in any given semester. Assisted by their peers, and guided by prominent figures in the visual arts, students will concentrate on producing a coherent body of work that best reflects their individual talents and challenges the current boundaries of their media.

Note: Open to second-year students only.

PHG-6030-D

Video Master Critique II

Thursday 6:00-8:50

Fall semester: 6 credits

Instructor: S. Silver

This second-year course will study the subjects and creative issues of project development, narrative and non-narrative moving-image syntax, craft, structure and production in video and other time-based work. This investigation will take place in the context of the practice and critique of assigned exercises and individual projects. Nonfiction and fiction will be studied and practiced.

PHG-6040-A

Contemporary Issues: Fieldwork

Tuesday 3:00-5:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Traub

This course is designed to assist students in photographing subject matter of contemporary concern for social, political and public issues. Students will be guided in developing a working methodology in acquiring background research and experience for involvement in extended photographic witness and observation of external social realities. Guest lectures will address cultural, political and economic issues that are of importance to the students' understanding. Participants will be directed to work individually or in groups in developing unique topics for exploration that imply an extended commitment to the documentary processes in their broadest definition.

PHG-6040-B

Contemporary Issues: How?

Thursday 10:00-12:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: W.M. Hunt

This course addresses the art and commerce of photography. How do you create a strategy for a career as a photographer? This is an ongoing forum that is both structured and improvised and requires a full-time commitment from the student. Guest lecturers will range from accountants to collectors, artists to art buyers and people in the world of professional photography. Questions such as "why?" will also be examined.

PHG-6040-C

Contemporary Issues: Emerging Forms of the Image

Tuesday 10:00-12:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: C. Yang

Even casual visits to galleries, museums, the Internet, indeed even the iPod, cell phone, or any number of visual distribution venues and devices make it evident that imagery—still and moving—continues to grow, change and adapt as readily in the 21st century as in the 20th. This course closely considers the history, forms and implications of these changes.

PHG-6050

Thesis Forms I

Fall semester: 3 credits

This course is required in the fall semester of the second year as a preparation for thesis. Students nail down the central ideas that will become their thesis project, and consider appropriate strategies for the form, presentation and distribution of these ideas. In a highly practical way, the course considers the history and features of various visual solutions available to photographic artists, depending on their audiences and goals. Books, exhibitions, installations, interactive presentations—the course helps students identify the questions each form raises, and work through them to find appropriate answers for their own projects.

Thesis Project

Spring semester: 9 credits

The student's thesis project represents a unique and original vision that furthers an understanding of creative visual expression. It is the culmination of the student's matriculation, suitable for public viewing, accompanied by written documentation that explains the historical precedents, evolution and generation of the project. Each student works in an integrated set of relationships with the Thesis Forms instructor, fourth-semester critique class and an outside advisor chosen from the community at large.

Studio: Digital Design and Visual Effects I

Wednesday 6:00-8:50

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: R. Bowen

An extension of the trompe l'œil tradition in painting and set design, special effects involves suspending the disbelief of the spectator by tricking the eye. In this course, students will learn to achieve seamless photo-realistic effects, art-making bravura and inventive design strategies. Advanced technical issues will be demonstrated and students will solve problems in image-processing and design. Skills are taught in context with related contemporary cultural and art historical examples. Assignments are drawn from visual effects areas, including type design, architecture, photo design, high-resolution retouching, stereo imaging, matte-painting, anamorphoses, panoramic-panoptic viewing, package design and 3D computer graphics. Prerequisite: PHG-5135, Studio: Digital Imaging II, or equivalent.

PHG-6422-A

Studio: Video Postproduction

Tuesday 7:00-9:50

Fall semester: 3 credits

Instructor: G. Weinbren

How do we make a stream of audio and video material mean what we want it to mean? To what extent can we control its meaning? How much control does an artist want anyway? This course studies the grammar of image/sound sequence. There will be an equal focus on craft issues and on critical issues connected with the practice of film and video editing. Some members of the class will work on a series of practical assignments designed to help them master established techniques as they develop individual styles and approaches; other students may already be working on projects that they wish to refine and develop in a postproduction environment. The class will be run in a critique/seminar fashion, with all students expected to participate.

PHG-6422-B

Studio: Book Design for Photographers

Wednesday 11:00-11:50

Spring semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Y. Cuomo

This course considers the photographic book as a tool for visual communication, and seeks to elevate the image-maker's awareness of design issues through the process of creating a book. Starting with the subject matter and visual concept, the course will cover editing, photo sequencing and all aspects of design, including color, scale, format and type. Assignments must be produced digitally. Students will end up with a completed maquette for their own photographic book.

PHG-6959

Independent Study

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Individual sponsor

Independent studies are granted to exceptional students, generally in the second year, who wish to pursue a special project not covered by the parameters of course curriculum. Students work independently, under the tutelage of an appropriate faculty member or outside sponsor. An independent study can be particularly useful in the student's pre-thesis semester. Working with a potential thesis advisor as an independent study sponsor helps establish this crucial working relationship early, and allows time to resolve specific issues or problems in the match between student and thesis advisor. Independent study proposals must be approved by the departmental advisor and the department chair.

PHG-6969

Internship

One semester: 3 credits

Instructor: Professional sponsor

Students can gain valuable professional exposure and experience through an internship project with a professional sponsor or an employer. The departmental advisor and department chair can assist in locating internships that suit students' goals. To receive credit, students must get departmental approval in advance, start the internship by the third week of the semester, and receive a positive evaluation from the sponsor/employer at semester's end.

ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE (ESL) COURSES FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

Several courses geared for the international graduate student are offered in the fall and spring semesters. These courses include study and practice in all areas of the English language: grammar, vocabulary, pronunciation, thesis writing and conversations in contemporary art, among others. A listing of these courses follows. For course descriptions and information, please refer to the ESL course offerings, located in the humanities and sciences section of this book.
